TARIFF BILL PASSES; 10 REPUBLICANS BOLT

Senate Adopts It by 45 to 34, McEnery Only Democrat Voting for It.

THE HOUSE WILL RUSH IT

Plan to Have Bill Sent to Conference Immediately—Senate Removes Tobacco Tax.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The Senate passed the Tariff bill at 11:11 to-night by a vote of 45 to 34. Ten Republican votes were recorded against the bill and one Democratic vote for it. The Republicans voting in the negative were: Beveridge, Indiana; Bristow, Kansas; Brown, Nebraska; Burkett, Nebraska; Clapp, Minnesota; Crawford, South Dakota; Cummins, Iowa; Dolliver, Iowa; La Follette, Wisconsin, and Nelson, Minnesota. McEnery of Louisiana was the single Democrat recorded in the affirmative.

At 11:18, seven minutes after the bill was passed, the Senate adjourned after a continuous session lasting through luncheon and dinner. At 10 o'clock Senator La Follette was beginning the third hour of a speech which he had said would not exceed an hour in length. No other speeches were expected then, and Senator Aldrich was confident that a vote would be ordered whenever the Wisconsin Senator should close his remarks.

He was, however, doomed to disappointment, for Mr. La Follette had no sooner surrendered the floor than Mr. Gore took it, denouncing the bill, and suggesting that the President in fairness to his campaign pledges ought to veto the measure.

At 10:45 o'clock Senator Beveridge, who spoke after Mr. Gore, announced that the insurgent Republican Senators would vote against the tariff bill, as the list above shows many of them did.

The vote in detail was as follows:

Yeas—Senators Aldrich, Borah, Bourne, Bradley, Brandegee, Briggs, Bulkeley, Burnham, Burrows, Burton, Carter, Clark, (Wyoming,) Crane, Depew, Dick, Dixon, Dupont, Elkins, Flint, Frye, Gallinger, Gamble, Guggenheim, Hale, Heyburn, Johnson, (North Dakota,) Kean, Lorimer, Jones, McCumber, McEnery, Nixon, Oliver, Page, Penrose, Perkins, Piles, Scott, Smith, (Michigan,) Smoot, Stephenson, Sutherland, Warner, Warren, and Wetmore—45.

Nays—Senators Bacon, Bailey, Bankhead, Beveridge, Bristow, Brown, Burkett, Chamberlain, Clapp, Crawford, Culberson, Cummins, Daniel, Dolliver, Fletcher, Foster, Frazier, Gore, Hughes, Johnston, (Alabama,) La Follette, McLaurin, Martin, Money, Nelson, Newlands, Overman, Owen, Shively, Simmons, Smith, (South Carolina,) Stone, Taliaferro, and Taylor—34.

Immediately after the announcement of the vote the Vice President announced that the conferrees would be Senators Aldrich, Burrows, Penrose, and Cullom for the Republicans, and Bailey, Money, and Daniel for the Democrats. These selections are according to the rank of the conferrees on the Finance Committee. The same arrangement in the House will result in the appointment of Chairman Payne of New York, Dalzell of Pennsylvania, McCall of Massachusetts, Hill of Connecticut, and Boutwell of Illinois, Republicans, and Clark of Missouri, Underwood of Alabama, and Griggs of Georgia, Democrats.

There has been much consideration of the question of the conferees, and both in House and Senate an effort has been made to select them geographically, so as to give all parts of the country representations in the conference. This plan was defeated in the Senate largely through the attitude of Senator Lodge, who ranks next to Cullom. The geographical arrangement would have put Smoot of Utah or Flint of California on the Conference Committee over the head of Lodge, and the Massachusetts man declined to yield his seniority. There has been much manoeuvering in the House to avoid having Hill of Connecticut among the conferees. His well-known fighting proclivities promise trouble and delay in the conference, both of which it is desired to avoid.

If the House follows the Senate lead and selects its men by seniority, there will be four men from New England, two from Pennsylvania, and one from New York among the Republican conferees, with two from Illinois and one from Michigan. The West will thus be entirely unrepresented and the Middle West almost so. But there is no seniority rule in the House as there is in the Senate, and the selection of the conferees may follow the geographical plan, which is favored by the Speaker. That would put in Fordney of Michigan, or Calderhead of Kansas.

The Insurgents' Position.

The vote came after a long day of speeches, most of which, especially toward the last, were comparatively short and made chiefly in explanation of the votes about to be cast by the speakers. It has been known for a long time that some of the "progressive" Republicans, whom the Aldrich men called insurgents, would vote against the bill, but the events of the last few days have given the impression that the number of them would not be as large as it proved.

Most, if not all, of these insurgents were supporters of the income tax plan of Senator Cummins, and when President Taft detached a number of income tax votes from the list through advocacy of the corporation tax it seemed that some of these detached would carry the thing through consistently and vote for the bill.

Their votes against the bill leave them in the unenviable situation of having accepted the corporation tax merely as a device to kill the income tax which they had been professing to support. Their votes against the bill now are due to

CENTRAL ASIA IS SHAKEN.

Severe and Widespread Earthquakes in India and Russia.

SIMLA, India, July 8.—A severe earthshock occurred at 3 o'clock this morning and was felt from Rawalpindi, the capital of the Rawalpindi Division, to Chitral, the capital of the State of Chitral. Several houses were thrown down. The shock was also felt at Iskardo, the capital of Bultistan.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 8.—Telegrams from Kerki and Katti-Kurgan, in Turkestan, and Khokan, in Asiatic Russia, report that an earthquake damaged several houses at those towns at 2 o'clock this morning. Shocks also occurred at Yekaterinburg, Skobeleff, and Novaya Bukara lasting several minutes.

The seismographic records locate the earthquake in the districts of East Bokhara, Pamir, or Hindu-Kush, in Central Asia.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The magnetic observatory of the Coast and Geodetic Survey, located at Cheltenham, Md., recorded a moderate earthquake shock yesterday, beginning at 4:51:03 P. M. The second phase of the tremors began six minutes later. The maximum motion was at 5:05:31 on the north-south instrument and at 5:25 on the east-west instrument. The tremors ended at 5:55 P. M.

The character of the record indicated that the earthquake was of distant origin and undoubtedly had to do with the Indian shocks.

Similar records are reported from the seismographs at Hamburg, Germany; Grenoble, France; Tortosa, Spain, and Tashkent, Asiatic Russia.

ROCKEFELLER IN TIOGA CO.

Dr. Biggar Says on His 70th Birthday He May Live to be 100.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 8.—Mr. Rockefeller surprised the friends who had hoped to see him upon his seventieth birthday by disappearing from his Forest Hill estate. He played golf Wednesday afternoon. After some friendly games, he was hurried to the Union station, where he took a train for the East.

No information could be obtained as to his destination. Those who knew kept their knowledge. It is rumored, however, that he went for his birthday to Richford, Tioga County, N. Y., his birthplace.

Whether the hurried and carefully guarded trip is for business or pleasure no one knows. That he is amply able to make such a trip on business was the declaration of Dr. H. S. Biggar, his family physician to-day. Dr. Biggar declares that at seventy years, Mr. Rockefeller is good for twenty-five or thirty years of life yet, and that he should live to be ninety-five or one hundred.

"His health is very good, indeed," said Dr. Biggar. "He has not had a sick day for more than sixteen years. He plays a good game of golf and enjoys tramps over the links with his friends. Aside from golf, autoing is his favorite recreation. The two keep him in fine physical condition."

KILLS HIS STEPFATHER.

Boy Shoots Him for Striking His Bride of Two Weeks.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., July 8.—Albert Ferro, 21 years old, shot and killed his stepfather, Emanuel Giglio, at their home, 23 Passaic Street, this afternoon.

"I shot him because he was a brute and ill-treated my mother," Ferro told a detective who captured him at the Passaic Falls grounds, to which he fled after the shooting.

Giglio married Ferro's mother two weeks ago, and, with Ferro, they went to live in the Passaic Street house. A few days after the wedding, according to the stories told to the police by neighbors, Giglio began to abuse his wife and seemed to be jealous of his stepson.

Young Ferro is employed as a baker and works at night. He was asleep this afternoon when his stepfather came home and began to abuse his wife. Ferro awoke to find Giglio beating his bride with his fists. Ferro rushed at him. There was a clinch and then Ferro seized a revolver and fired four bullets into his stepfather's body. Ferro, barefooted, and wearing only undershirt and trousers, fled from the house, while neighbors summoned the police and an ambulance. Giglio was dead when the ambulance arrived.

METZ WILLING TO RUN AGAIN

For Any Old Office, but Not on Any Old Ticket, He Says.

Controller Herman A. Metz, who is sailing on the Cunarder Mauretania next Wednesday, at a good-bye dinner given for him last night at the Brighton Beach Hotel under the auspices of the Brooklyn Democratic Club, replying to a number of eulogistic speeches, said that although he could make ten times as much money by retiring to private life and looking after his business, he was not a "quitter, and was willing to run again for any old office that old New York wants me to, but not on any old ticket."

Later, Senator P. H. McCarren got a hearty round of applause from the fifteen hundred present, when he said that when the time comes to make the ticket up Mr. Metz would probably be found on it.

TEACHERS HALED TO COURT.

Neighbors Accuse Them of Causing Trouble and Annoying Their Children.

Bitter feeling of long standing between residents on the block of Prospect Place, between Albany and Kingston Avenues, Brooklyn, and two school teachers, the Misses Estella and Henrietta Sternglanz of 1,073 Prospect Place, who live in the same block, caused the teachers to be summoned to the Gates Avenue Court yesterday to answer charges made against them by their neighbors. Twenty-nine names were signed to the petition, which alleges that the neighbors and their children have suffered wrongs at the hands of the school teachers.

Some of the charges named in the petition against the two women are: Using vile language to the children and some of the adults in the neighborhood, stealing children's toys, threatening to shoot one of the signers of the petition, calling the police for fancied wrongs, and behaving altogether in a disorderly manner.

George W. Harper, one of the signers of the petition, alleges that his children have been drenched with water played upon them through a hose by the teachers when they passed their house.

Edward Cahn, counsel for the teachers, told Magistrate Hylan that his clients were blameless.

Dwight Teese, counsel for the petitioners, said the teachers are "common scolds." Magistrate Hylan adjourned the case until Aug. 5.

ASSAY OFFICE MADE A THIEVES' FENCE

Gold Jewelry Bought from Crooks by Pawnbrokers Sold to the Government.

SLEUTH GUARD PUT THERE

By Bingham but Since Withdrawn—The Suspects, Alarmed, Quit or Melted Their Loot First.

Through the withdrawal from the New York Assay Office of a Central Office man, who had been put there to detect deposits of stolen gold, it became known yesterday that for the last six months systematic efforts have been made by the Police Department, under Commissioner Bingham, with the co-operation of the United States Government officials, to put an end to the turning in to the Assay Office here of stolen watches and other gold jewelry which had been taken in this city by thieves and pickpockets.

An investigation, undertaken last January, definitely established that a number of the deposits made at the Assay Office represented stolen jewelry, and the conclusion was reached by the Police Department that good would come of placing permanently a Central Office man in the Assay Office to watch all deposits of gold, with the purpose of helping the police in running down and capturing the thieves from whom this gold was bought, and in turn deposited by the purchasers in the Assay Office.

No explanation of the withdrawal of this Central Office man by the new police administration has been made to the United States Government officials, including Supt. Kingsbury Foster, who co-operated with the New York police in this matter, so far as could be learned yesterday, and the reason for abandoning this method of following up the thefts of gold jewelry has therefore not yet been made known.

There are about 1,000 depositors who from time to time turn old gold over to the New York Assay Office. The great majority of these are jewelers, banks, and others well known to the officials, but included in the number have been many pawnbrokers in this city and nearby places. Upon some of these suspicion rested even before the police started their work in the Assay Office last January. The evidence collected by the Central Office men detailed to this work, under the supervision of former Deputy Commissioner Woods, established definitely that perhaps a dozen of these pawnbrokers were depositing stolen gold.

As the investigation went on some of the suspected depositors seemed to have reached the conclusion that they were being watched, for they ceased making the deposits they had been in the habit of making, and still others, instead of bringing in watch cases, gold rings, and other battered jewelry, brought in lumps of crudely melted gold.

This checked to some extent the ability of the police to determine whether or not the gold was stolen, but the suspected depositors were still watched, with the result that about twenty-five pawnbrokers who were either known to have brought in stolen goods or were strongly suspected of having done so have ceased altogether to make deposits with the Assay Office.

At first the Central Office man detailed to the Assay Office watched the depositors as they came to the office, and got the names given by the depositors who for any reason he suspected of handling stolen gold. Later this method, which probably was responsible for the suspicion aroused among some of the suspected depositors, was given up, and for a time the Assay Office force, by keeping detailed information regarding numbers on watch cases, markings on rings, &c., supplied the Police Department with information without the help of a Central Office man.

The police later, however, asked again to keep one of its own men in the office, and the understanding was reached between the Assay Office and the Police Department that a man should be kept permanently on duty there. This plan was decided on early in June, and from that time until Wednesday of this week a Central Office man was in the Assay Office in the assumed capacity of a clerk in the department through which these deposits of gold are made.

In the opinion of those familiar with the work that has been done as a result of this co-operation between the Assay Office and the police much good has already been accomplished by frightening off some of the pawnbrokers who were in the habit of buying stolen gold and bringing it into the Assay Office, but in these same quarters the belief was expressed yesterday that more remained to be done before the Assay Office here can be entirely relieved from accepting stolen gold.

The investigation brought to light interesting facts regarding the disposition made by thieves of some of the gold stolen in this city. Suspicion was early directed to certain pawnbrokers in New Jersey and more particularly in Newark, and the work done by the police developed the fact that these pawnbrokers were getting gold stolen in New York City. Some of this gold came into the Assay Office direct from these Newark pawnbrokers, and some of it was turned in by traveling dealers who were in the habit of making the rounds of Jersey pawn shops.

Through these suspected depositors watch cases, the numbers of which had been reported to the police by the owners, turned up in the Assay Office, and the police thus got information of part of the chain of thieves, fences, and dealers through whose hands this gold passed from the time it was stolen till it reached the Assay Office, but in most instances the information so far gathered is understood to have been incomplete. But with the withdrawal of the Central Office man from the Assay Office this method of surveillance has been abandoned.

WOMAN DIES OF A BLOW.

Said to Have Been Quarreling with Sister—Sister Arrested.

Miss Lena Kolsch, 36 years old, who lived with her sister, Margaret Kolsch, aged 40, at 1,487 Avenue A, died in the Presbyterian Hospital last night of an injury to the head, received in some unknown manner.

Neighbors of the sisters found Lena on the basement steps of her home yesterday afternoon unconscious, with her head cut. Policeman Reith called an ambulance and sent her to the hospital. Her skull was fractured.

After the ambulance had left with the injured woman, neighbors of the sisters told Reith that they had heard the sisters quarreling sometime before the woman was found on the steps. Margaret Kolsch was arrested, charged with assault. The police say that she has a black eye, which she told them she received in a fight with her sister.

OCEAN RECORD CUT AGAIN.

Mauretania Lops Off 17 Minutes More—Thursday Landing Sure Soon.

The Cunard liner Mauretania has again lowered the westward record—her own—over the long course, 2,891 knots, across the North Atlantic. She arrived off the Sandy Hook Lightship at 9:16 o'clock last night, having clipped 17 minutes off her own and the world's record, till then 4 days 16 hours and 53 minutes.

The new record from Daunt's Rock to the Sandy Hook Lightship is 4 days 16 hours and 36 minutes. The Mauretania's best previous westward record was made on the voyage from May 15 to 20.

The hourly average speed of the Mauretania for the trip just ended is unofficially given as 25.70 knots, as against her best previous average of 25.62. Her day's runs will not be announced until the vessel reaches her pier this morning.

This voyage of the Mauretania was made under good conditions. There was little bad weather. The great vessel bowled through the water at a rate of speed, which in every way justifies the belief that she will soon be able to make the journey across the Atlantic, and arrive at Sandy Hook early enough to allow her to land her passengers here on Thursday night. Each trip she cuts down the time by a few minutes. Last night she came to the lightship almost in time to allow her to dock. Taking aboard the mails at Fishguard, Wales, instead of at Queenstown will help. It is expected that this will save six hours.

In a few weeks the vessel will be on the southern or short course, 2,780 knots, but it is Capt. Pritchard's ambition to come over the long course, and still land on Thursday night.

AUTOS TO AID BOULEVARD.

Commission Plans to Levy on Them to Keep Up the Jersey Route.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., July 8.—At the meeting of the State Highway Commission with the Freeholders of Cape May, Ocean, Atlantic, and Monmouth Counties in Sea Girt to-day, the route of the projected Ocean Boulevard was laid out as previously announced from Highlands to Cape May City with only one slight change. The coast route from Mantoloking was abandoned and a curve out from there made to Burrsville and thence by inside route to Toms River. This was done to avoid an expensive bridge at Seaside Park.

It was the concensus of opinion that inasmuch as the automobiles will use the highway more than any other class of vehicles they should pay for the wear on the roads. It was said that 50 per cent. more license fee would bring in $100,000 a year, and this was urged on Gov. Fort. It is possible that an increase in automobile licenses will be asked for at the next session of the Legislature.

FIVE HURT IN AUTO CRASH.

Japanese Merchant's Carriage Wrecked by Machine at Park Ridge, N. J.

PARK RIDGE, N. J., July 8.—Five persons were injured here to-day in a collision between a carriage containing five persons and an automobile in which one person was driving. The occupants of the carriage were thrown out and injured, one of them seriously. They were Kikusaburo Fukui, a Japanese merchant of New York; his wife, and five-year-old son; a governess, Clara Seibert, and a Japanese driver.

Mr. Fukui and his family were on the way from their Summer house here to the railroad station when, at the corner of Park Avenue and Main Street, their horse took fright at a passing automobile in which E. Vernon Smith, an electrician, was driving. The animal shied and the two vehicles came together with a crash. The carriage was wrecked.

Mrs. Fukui was the worst hurt, and her condition is serious. It is said she may be disfigured for life. The little boy was also severely hurt, and the others are suffering from bad bruises.

Mr. Smith was not hurt.

Mr. Fukui is the American representative of Misui Brothers of Japan. His office is at 445 Broome Street.

HORSEWHIPS A CHAUFFEUR.

Carriage Driver Gives a Severe Lesson to a Reckless Autoist.

A. V. Sammis, the young Chief of the Volunteer Fire Department at Huntington, L. I., horsewhipped the driver of an automobile yesterday in the sight of many Summer residents of Huntington, who cheered the Chief and urged him to have the chauffeur arrested. The latter, whose offense had been that he had tried to drive his car ahead of the Chief's carriage, almost colliding with the horse-drawn vehicle, got a severe drubbing. His name is unknown.

Chief Sammis was driving along New York Avenue when he turned out to pass two carriages abreast in the road. As he did so a touring car containing seven persons came up behind. Instead of waiting for Chief Sammis's rig to get safely out of the way, the chauffeur ran his machine ahead, crowding the fireman almost off the road. The wheels of the two vehicles were nearly locked when Sammis asked the chauffeur to have a care.

"Get out of the way!" was the chauffeur's reply, as he tried to slip between the Chief's carriage and the other two rigs.

Sammis dropped his reins, grasped his whip and applied it vigorously on the head and shoulders of the auto driver. The latter sprang from his machine and started for Sammis, but a crowd that had gathered by this time gave a cheer for Sammis, and the chauffeur, frightened, retreated to his machine, turned on the power and sped away.

THROUGH McADOO TUBE AFOOT

W. C. Riley the First Outsider to Make the South Tunnel Trip.

William C. Riley of 40 Astor Place, Jersey City, spent last evening celebrating his successful trip through the south tube of the McAdoo tunnel from Cortlandt Street to Exchange Place, Jersey City, which he made on foot yesterday afternoon.

He entered the tube in Manhattan at 1:55 o'clock, and by pretending that he was in search of an engineer, managed to get past the watchmen. His walk lasted just twenty minutes, and then he ascended to the surface in Jersey City.

Riley said last night that he had walked through the tunnel simply that he might have the distinction of being the first man outside of the tunnel employes to make the trip.

FASHIONS IMMODEST, SAYS VATICAN ORGAN

Present Style of Women's Dress Called the "Shipwreck of Virtue."

AIM TO EXCITE PASSIONS

Gowns Grieve the Holy Spirit and the Father of Truth, Says the Osservatore Romano.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, July 8.—The issue of the Osservatore Romano, the organ of the Vatican, which reached Paris this evening, contains a scathing denunciation of the tendencies of the feminine fashions of to-day. Taking as its text the petition against the immoral press forwarded by the Catholic ladies of Bergamo to the Minister of the Interior and signed by several thousand Italian women, the Osservatore says:

"We hope the competent authorities will apply the law against these new Augean stables. At the same time we cannot but deplore another danger to good morals which comes to us from other countries, and against which women might well unite. We refer to the fashions worn in the streets by women of all ages and by young girls.

"Those who profess with ardor the Catholic faith and morals should not be indulgent toward women who walk about the streets wearing immodest garments. All the present-day fashions are designed to excite the passions. It is the shipwreck of virtue. These fashions are prejudicial to beauty, which is the reflection of the bounty of God, and, therefore, fruitful in material and moral well-being.

"Cleanse these unholy wardrobes. Rid them of their dresses which make the wearers' guardian angels weep. Let your wives and daughters make their own clothes rather than wear dresses which grieve the Holy Spirit and the Father of Truth."

PULLED THE PUP'S TEETH.

Boy Tried Some Dentistry After a Session in the Chair Himself.

Edward Horner of Jacksonville, N. J., believes that his 6-year-old son Edward is cut out for a dentist, and will have him educated with that end in view.

The boy's mother took him to a dentist a few days ago to have a tooth extracted. The boy was placed in the operating chair, but when he saw the dentist's kit of tools, he squirmed out of the chair in a hurry. Bribes of candies, fruit, ice cream, and pennies failed to get him back. Finally the boy was forcibly placed in the chair. He squirmed and twisted in such a way that the dentist was unable to get his forceps into his mouth. Then the youngster was strapped in the chair.

This done, the aching tooth was removed, but not before the dentist had received several kicks in the face. When the boy reached home he was in a sulky mood, and it was not long before he was caught in the act of placing a pair of pliers in baby's mouth, with the intention of removing its only tooth. For this the boy received a sound spanking.

Determined to get even on somebody or something, the opportunity arrived yesterday, when Mr. Horner brought home a setter pup, which had cost him $25. The pup was placed in the carriage house, to be out of harm's way, and the boy stealthily removed the baby's high chair to the carriage house, taking the pliers along with him. Finding that the pup objected to its teeth being removed, he got a rope and tied him in the high chair.

The howls of the pup were heard by the boy's mother, who ran out to learn the cause. She got there just as Edward had extracted the third tooth from the pup's mouth.

NO CHANCES WITH LAWYERS.

That Is Why She Wouldn't Tell Where She Kept Her Money.

In Jersey City yesterday a hearing in bankruptcy was held in the office of Referee E. A. S. Mann to determine the disposal of a house at 1,020 Garden Street, Hoboken, transferred by Bernard Braunstein, a jeweler, to his mother-in-law, Mrs. Marc C. Bondevyns of Somerville, N. J., just prior to his going into bankruptcy.

Mrs. Bondevyns was questioned about where she kept her money. "In my house," she answered. "What part of the house?" she was asked. "I will not tell."

"Are you afraid we will go out there and break in?" asked a lawyer.

"Well," she replied, "I do not care to take any chances."

The answer caused much laughter. Later the woman said she kept most of her money in the house and a small check account to pay household bills.

DIVORCES ALDRICH'S SON.

Senator's Former Daughter-in-Law Receives $10 a Week Alimony.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 8.—Mrs. Mary Larned Dorrance Aldrich got a divorce to-day from Edward Burgess Aldrich, oldest son of Senator Nelson W. Aldrich, and brother-in-law of John D. Rockefeller, Jr. Mrs. Aldrich began proceedings five years ago, and met opposition from her husband. He sued in turn, but his suit was unsuccessful. Mrs. Aldrich charged that her husband treated her with extreme cruelty.

The divorce gives to Mrs. Aldrich the custody of her little daughter, Susan. It also provides her with $10 a week alimony. The Aldriches were married on Thanksgiving Day, in 1896. Mrs. Aldrich was formerly Miss Mary Larned Dorrance, daughter of the late Charles T. Dorrance, of an old Rhode Island family. Miss Abbie G. Aldrich, sister of the bridegroom, and later the bride of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was bridesmaid for Miss Dorrance at her wedding.

CHANNEL FLIGHT SATURDAY.

Latham Will Attempt a Crossing from Calais to Dover.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, July 8.—Hubert Latham gave formal notice to-day of his intention to try Saturday for The Daily Mail's £1,000 prize for a flight across the English Channel.

He intends to make a preliminary trial flight early Saturday morning, and if the machinery of his monoplane is working well and the weather conditions are favorable, to start from Sangatte, near Calais, in the evening for Shakespeare Cliff, Dover.

HARRIMAN IS MUCH BETTER.

Will Reach Badgastein by Special Train To-morrow Night.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, July 8.—Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Harriman will arrive at Badgastein Saturday evening by special train. Mr. Harriman continues to be greatly benefited by his stay at Semmering. He told Mr. O'Shaughnessy, Secretary of the embassy here, the other day that he was feeling much better than at any time since his departure from New York.

Mr. Harriman devotes the entire forenoon to the cure, taking the baths and resting on the balconies of his apartment and the spacious covered verandas adjoining, equipped with every imaginable sort of reclining chair.

Prof. Strümpell, who calls to see Mr. Harriman daily, will accompany him to Badgastein as will Dr. and Mrs. Nixon and Mr. O'Shaughnessy.

ABDUL HAMID'S FUNDS HERE.

Resident of Washington Offers to Tell Where They Are Deposited.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, July 8.—An inhabitant of Washington, D. C., has written to the Turkish Government offering to furnish a list of American banks in which Abdul Hamid, the deposed Sultan, had deposited large sums.

The Government replied that the Turkish Embassy at Washington had been ordered to take the matter up with the American Government.

MRS. TAFT'S HEALTH BETTER.

Change from Heated Conditions in Washington Greatly Benefit Her.

BEVERLY, Mass., July 8.—Although Mrs. Taft, the wife of the President, has been at the "Summer White House" but four days, she has showed a marked improvement in health, according to a statement issued to-day by Dr. Delaney, her physician.

The change from the heated conditions which prevailed in Washington last month has been of great benefit to the wife of the President.

WOMEN WRECK SALOONS.

Fifty-six Rebel at Refusal to Sell Them Beer in Buckets.

PITTSBURG, Kan., July 8.—Although there are no saloons in Kansas, fifty-six women were arrested at West Mineral, a coal mining centre, to-day on charges of disturbing the peace by wrecking four saloons.

The proprietors refused to sell the women beer in buckets.

FRENCH MINISTER STRUCK.

Caillaux Drives Off Without Retaliating on Former Deputy.

PARIS, July 8.—As he was leaving the Senate to-day M. Caillaux, the Minister of Finance, was struck in the face by Charles Bos, a former Deputy, who claims that the Finance Minister slandered him in the Chamber by charging him with lobbying in Parliament against the bill to renew the subsidy agreement with the Messageries Maritime Company.

According to the ex-Deputy, M. Caillaux raised his cane, but did not strike back, saying as he drove off, "A blow by you does not count."

BRISTOL NOW ONLY HALF DRY.

Virginia End of City Goes Wet in Local Option Election.

ROANOKE, Va., July 8.—By a majority of 32 the "wets" won out at the local option election held here to-day, and Bristol is now half wet and half dry. That part of the city in Tennessee is "dry," and has been since July 1. The portion of the town in Virginia voted "dry" two years ago by a bare majority of 207.

Both the temperance people and saloon interests have waged a strenuous campaign. The ringing of church bells before daylight to-day summoned the temperance workers to the polls. Paraders wearing white ribbons and singing temperance hymns marched about the city all day, while women were busy electioneering and serving lunches. Bands of women and children held prayer and song services at the polling places.

GIRL SMUGGLER FINED $2,000.

Miss Lonstorf Pays Well for Bringing in a Lot of Fine Furs.

TRENTON, N. J., July 8.—Miss Camille Lonstorf, said to be of Chicago, was fined $2,000 by Judge Cross in the United States District Court here to-day after she had pleaded non vult to the charge of smuggling. Miss Lonstorf, who is only 22 years old, was represented by a Chicago lawyer, and her fine was immediately paid.

The young woman, with her mother and sister, had been abroad, and brought into this country about $2,500 worth of furs. Her defense was that she did not know that the furs were dutiable.

The Lonstorf family arrived in Hoboken, N. J., on June 12. The reason the girl was indicted instead of her mother was because she signed the declaration given to the customs officers. The mother's name is Mrs. M. Lonstoff.

Immediately after paying the fine the Lonstorfs left Trenton.

MOTHER SHOT DEAD AS SON FIGHTS THIEF

Mrs. George Staber of Flatbush Killed by Bullet That Grazed Young Man's Body.

FIERCE BATTLE FOR PISTOL

Young Staber Wins and Wounds Burglar as He Flees with Pal—Thief's Loyalty Leads to Capture of Both.

A crime, which in sensational features paralleled some of those recently committed in Manhattan, shocked Brooklyn yesterday. Early in the morning, one of two burglars who had entered the home of George R. Staber, at 455 East Eighteenth Street, Flatbush, after a hand-to-hand struggle with Mr. Staber's son, shot Mrs. Sophia Staber, the wife and mother, through the lung, the wound resulting in her death in a few moments.

After their temporary escape the two burglars, one of them so dangerously wounded by young Edward Staber, who shot him twice with the burglar's own revolver, that his recovery is not looked for by the physicians in the Swedish Hospital, where he is a prisoner, made their way in stocking feet through a country alive with mounted policemen and patrolman for a distance of two miles. And, though the whole neighborhood was on the alert for them, neither was captured for several hours.

The episode demonstrated to a surprising degree, those who have studied the features of the affair say, two things: first, that "honor among thieves," even of the worst type, is no mere fiction, and secondly, that a crime that arouses a whole neighborhood to arms may be perpetrated right in the city with a fair chance of the perpetrators escaping in outlying districts.

Both of the burglars are now under arrest on the charge of homicide, and both have confessed, the uninjured one, Alexander Metzler, to being concerned in the attempted robbery; the dying man, John Smith, or that's the name he gave to the police, to the act of homicide itself. But though Capt. Farr of the Parkville Station, Capt. Duefer of the Schneider Avenue Station, a score of detectives, and the mounted police and patrolmen from two precincts joined in the search, it was directly through the medium of a little Italian cobbler, Nick J. Bilotti of 875 Utica Avenue, that they were captured. The police had let Metzler pass; the cobbler seized him.

Loyalty to Pal His Undoing.

But had it not been for his faithfulness to a dying pal, Metzler, at least, could have escaped. His picture in the Rogues' Gallery is No. 13,696. In 1907 he was sent to Elmira for grand larceny, and in 1903 he served four years in Sing Sing for a savage attack on a woman. Yet if ever a man stood squarely by a friend in trouble this crook, Metzler, stood by his pal, Smith.

Ditmar Park in Flatbush is about as serene a neighborhood as you could find, and especially peaceful is the Staber house, for it stands next to the Flatbush Congregational Church. It is a three-story shingled house, and there Mr. and Mrs. Staber, their son, Edward, about 20 years old, and their two daughters, Maud and Ida, live. On Thursday they had company, too, some relatives, a Mr. and Mrs. Krohn, who were about to return to Germany. They are quiet people, and they went to bed early.

At 2:45 o'clock Mr. Staber, who occupied a front bedroom with his wife, awoke suddenly with the feeling that a car was rushing down on him. He woke with the glare of an electric flashlight full in his face. He saw in a second that a pistol barrel paralleled the flash. A foreignlike voice said: "Lie still; I won't hurt yer."

Just then Mr. Staber's daughter, Maud, sleeping upstairs, called out:

"Father, what's the matter?" but he must needs hold his peace, for the pistol was at his face.

Then his son's door, to the rear of Staber's own, opened, and the father heard footsteps in the hall. The burglar heard it, too, and started for the door, his revolver and the electric flashlight held parallel before him.

Edward Staber, the son, heard the sound of the house breaking, and as he reached his father's door, he called: "Father, what's the matter?"

That second he saw clearly enough, for he encountered the burglar at the threshold, saw the pistol, and sprang at the intruder. The flashlight fell to the floor and went out; the men grappled, swayed, swung, and circled in a furious battle about the hall. Then Edward heard footsteps in the room across the hall, and knew he had two men to contend with. He thought of the bathroom, with its narrow window and no possible exit for a man, and tried desperately to force his man thither.

Young Staber's Desperate Fight.

He felt the burglar try to crook his wrist, and the muzzle of the pistol moving diagonally back and forth along his back, as the man tried to hold it perpendicularly, so as to fire and kill. The young man strained the more as the fellow turned and twisted, but at last the pistol exploded. Staber felt a hot line along his ribs, to the left side, near the abdomen. He felt blood, too. Round and round they went, panting and straining. The other burglar was at the bedroom door, but he had no flashlight and could see little.

Edward finally forced his man into the bathroom, his own back toward the hall. The pistol exploded again, but Staber did not feel the bullet this time. His sisters were screaming for help from the windows, and now he heard a voice crying "Edward! Edward!"

It was his mother—he knew she was in the hall.

Young Staber redoubled his efforts as the pistol flashed again. He heard his mother catch her breath with a gasp, and he heard the thump as she fell to the floor.

With a passionate hate now he clutched the burglar's wrist, twisted it, and wrenched at it, his other hand gripping at the other's throat. At last he benumbed the burglar's fingers and the pistol clanked upon the floor. A few seconds of silence followed while both men stood panting in the dark. The girls upstairs waited with hushed breath, and those on the floor of the struggle were gasping with dread of what was to come.

Shot Fleeing Antagonist.

Just then the other burglar dashed for the stairs. "Come on, George!" he shouted. As the other followed, springing four steps to the landing at a bound, young Staber grabbed up the pistol from the floor and fired. He could see that the man reeled on the landing, banging against the wall and sending a picture crashing down. Edward again pulled the trigger, and there were other shots from downstairs. But the man half stumbled, half leaped down the stairs, and the pair were away All the neighbors were awake by now. The first to the house was Fred Severs, a friend of Edward Staber. He ran from his house, 469 East Eighteenth Street, and sent for Dr. Moxon of 1,807 Ditmars Avenue, but it was too late to save the mother, who was dead when an ambulance with Dr. Kline arrived from the Kings County Hospital. A patrolman had by this time come to the scene from the Schneider Avenue Station. Soon the neighborhood heard from all directions the clatter of hoofs as mounted policemen rode furiously through the streets.

The men had escaped as they had entered, through the kitchen window. They had placed a piazza chair to that and jimmied it after removing a pane from the cellar window. But they had gone upstairs in their stocking feet—two patent leather shoes and one tanned shoe being found in the house where they had left them. Tracks of blood showed that they had crossed Nineteenth Street, going east, but when detectives got there they found even better evidence.

Directly behind the Stabers house lives Edward J. Metzger. He had awakened to hear shots, as many as ten he thought, and screams. With a pistol he ran to a window, and just then two men passed under the street light. They went at a dog trot; one limping, the other, a tall man, who trotted with his hand on the other's shoulders. They passed into the next field, which adjoins the house of Mrs. Ramsey.

She, too, had heard shots and screams and had run to a window. She saw the men drop into the tall grass of the field and heard a loud whisper from one—"Which way—which way shall we go?"

A little later a detective found the fourth shoe behind a house further down the line. Two miles east of this point comes the corner of Church and Utica Avenues; between is almost open country, fields, and farms, broken mainly by unfinished roads. On one corner is a saloon, where William Dietz is bartender; diagonally across from that, just off the corner is the cobbler store of Nick Bilotti, a little Italian.

Caught by a Cobbler.

To the saloon at 6 o'clock came a man in shirt sleeves and broken shoes, a derby over his eyes.

"Hello! Give us a drink, bartender," said he. Then he asked for shoes, and the bartender told him of Bilotti.

To Bilotti then he went, displayed a roll of bills, and offered $20 for a coat and shoes. After much haggling he got Bilotti's shoes and coat as a loan till 9 A. M. on deposit of $21, and departed.

There dropped in at the saloon a man at 8:20, Patrolman Keogh, who told the bartender to look out for a wounded man or a man wanting shoes.

"Why!" said the bartender, "such a man was here. Ask Bilotti."

Keogh called up Capt. Duefer when Bilotti told him that the man had said he would be back at 9. Capt. Duefer joined Keogh, and both questioned Bilotti closely, and looked at the shoes the man had left, and waited till 9 o'clock.

Then they went across to the saloon corner, thinking that the man wouldn't be fool enough to come back.

But Bilotti waited at his door with George Schneidermuller, keeper of a delicatessen store at 5,006 Church Avenue, and just at 9:30 there hopped from a car the man with Bilotti's coat on. He started down Utica Avenue toward Paudaget Woods, a quarter of a mile distant. The policemen gave him no attention.

Not so Bilotti. He darted across the street, and seized the collar of the fellow's coat.

"Gimme my coat and shoes!" he cried, for the man had new shoes on.

The other, who was carrying a big bundle, tried to put him off, offering him money. "The police are after me," he said, "wait—"

"— with money, me policeman now!" cried Bilotti, valiantly, and then Schneidermuller whistled for the police, who ran over and seized the man. He did not resist.

They found in the bundle whisky, soda, shoes, rolls of doctors' gauze dressing for wounds, sandwiches, overhalls, and cigarettes. He admitted he was one of the burglars, and gave Carlo Geiro for a name. He was taken to the Schneider Avenue Station and later was identified as Metzler.

Wounded Pal Found in Woods.

Then Patrolman Moran and Sergt. Charles W. Maley set out for the thick woods. They are full of brush and brier and take up about a square mile. After a short search they heard groans, and pushing through a thicket, came upon Smith propped against a tree. His chin hung down and a handkerchief was wound around his arm above the elbow, and blood flowed from it. Another was tied around his thigh. Metzler's coat was thrown over his knees. He was bareheaded.

The policemen telephoned for a patrol wagon. Smith groaned with the pain and begged them to go easy as they raised him. They drove to the Schneider Avenue Station, and the distance of the drive made them wonder that a man so wounded could have traveled two rough miles; but they were more surprised at Metzler's loyalty—that he had got clean away into Brooklyn or Brownsville, but had come back with food and medicine for his pal, and into peril of his life.

Yet the two, confronting each other in the station, admitted their guilt, and when Inspector McCaffery questioned them Smith said he had done the shooting; Metzler, that he had abetted him. Edward Staber was called to the station, and said he thought these must be the men, though he could not positively identify them. Then Smith was hurried to the Swedish Hospital, where Dr. McGuire thought he had a bare chance to live.

Later Edward Metzger was taken into a room, where Metzler was placed in a line-up between two policemen in citizen's clothes. Inspector McCafferty asked him to pick out the man he had seen running, and he walked up and touched one of the policemen.

But to Inspector McCafferty, the corroberative confessions in the presence of witnesses, and the fact that the shoes found in the house fit the prisoners is proof enough for anybody. He had Metzler taken to Brooklyn Headquarters, questioned, photographed, and measured, and there Commissioner Baker himself saw him.

Meant to Get Away at Night.

The police believe that Metzler had friends in Brooklyn or Brownsville, and that on his three-hour trip he had tried to arrange with them to bring a wagon to the woods after dark. With this he had hoped to bring his pal away, and many think he might have succeeded, had he himself not felt bound to return and tend to him that morning.

The police can only explain the fact that Metzler had on a pair of shoes—very old and battered—when he came to Bilotti, on the theory that he picked up discarded ones on some ash heap. They believe, too, at least Inspector McCafferty does, that Metzler fired some shots in the house and in the darkness hit his own pal, as the wound in his leg was in front. Yet only one revolver, a pearl handled one, was found—nothing else but a jimmy and an ammonia pistol and the shoes.

Commissioner Baker was pleased with the swift capture of the burglars. Every one was hot against them, and First Assistant District Attorney Elder, in the absence of his chief, District Attorney Clarke, said he would hurry on their indictment and trial.

"No time will be lost," said he, "in bringing the two wretches before the grand jury. It is now in session—only the statements of witnesses will be necessary. We must show that such crimes will be swiftly punished."

Coroner Brewer visited Smith last night with two detectives, but no statement, ante-mortem or otherwise, was taken, though the fellow has dangerous internal injuries. The pal who had stuck by him so loyally was removed to the Parkville Station, as it was in that precinct where the murder occurred.

Edward Staber's wound, near the abdomen, was but a scratch, though it was only a fraction of an inch from a death wound. He went on to Manhattan with his father yesterday to arrange for his mother's funeral. At the house it was said the funeral would be private.

George R. Staber is a paper merchant whose place of business is at 127 Duane Street, Manhattan.

present conditions in their home States, but it is a question how much good the negative votes will do them in view of their wobbling on the income and corporation tax propositions.

Their avowed reason for voting against the bill is the fact that it is a revision upward instead of downward. They argue that their action to-night will tend to strengthen the House in its opposition to the Senate bill and to hold up the hands of the House conferrees. Incidentally they believe, or affect to do so, that it will tend to strengthen the position of President Taft, if he should be at all inclined to veto the bill. But it is generally regarded as out of the question now for the President to veto the bill.

Though the speeches of the insurgents were for the most part bitter they all held out the hope that the bill would be improved in conference. They indicated an apparent readiness to vote for the bill on its final passage, but they indicated clearly that it must come from conference far better than it now is.

To-day's Changes in Bill.

As it passes the Senate the bill contains almost 400 paragraphs. The Senate made 840 amendments to the House provisions, many of which were added to-day. Consequently the enrolling clerks are finding the preparation of the bill for the House an arduous task. They have been following as closely upon the heels of the Senate as was possible, and have the work well in hand, but say that they will probably not be able to complete their labors before late to-morrow.

The Senate sat continuously to-day from 10 o'clock in the morning until late to-night, stopping neither for luncheon nor dinner. Most of the many speeches during the day and evening were brief, and, in the main, the day was devoted to action upon amendments.

The most interesting occurrences of the sitting were the adoption of amendments by Senator Bradley of Kentucky and Senator Curtis of Kansas, the former exempting tobacco "in the hand" from the internal revenue tax of 6 cents a pound, and the latter placing a countervailing duty on crude petroleum shipped from countries which impose duty on oil importations from the United States. The action on tobacco was a surprise. The Senate has frequently refused to remove the tax.

Senator Aldrich accepted Senator Bradley's amendment to remove the six cents a pound tax on leaf tobacco, which was agreed to by a viva voce vote after the Senate had rejected by a vote of 24 to 34 an amendment by Mr. Daniel to reduce the tax on tobacco from 8 cents to 6 cents a pound. Mr. Daniel and Mr. Martin of Virginia, Mr. Bailey of Texas, and others having urged that the increase in the tax would lay the burden not upon the trust, but the independent tobacco manufacturer and the poorer consumer.

The removal of the restrictions on the free sale of tobacco in the hand as provided in the amendment of Senator Bradley is the result of many years of agitation and of much active recent campaigning. It is a live question in the tobacco-growing States, and has been the subject of many representations to Congress.

The prohibition of the present law, preventing freedom in trade in tobacco in the primitive state, is said to have been responsible for the forays of "night riders" in Kentucky and Tennessee.

The other provisions of the tobacco schedule were retained. These impose a taxof 8 cents a pound on chewing and smoking tobacco and snuff; of $3 on cigars weighing more than three pounds per thousand; with increases for high grade cigars, running up to $9 per thousand; of 75 cents on cigars weighing three pounds or less; $3.60 on cigarettes weighing more than three pounds per thousand, and $1.25 on cigarettes of not more than three pounds per thousand.

Senator Curtis's amendment providing for a countervailing duty on crude oil from any country imposing a duty on American oil, such duty to be one-half of the duty levied on American oil, was adopted by a vote of 44 to 31. Senator Burton said the purpose of this amendment was to prevent oil coming in free from the Republic of Mexico, where, he said, the Standard Company had three refineries, and Senator Gore offered an amendment providing that importers of crude petroleum shall not be entitled to the drawback provisions of the Tariff bill. Senators Aldrich and Curtis promptly accepting this provision, it was made a part of the amendment offered by Mr. Curtis, and agreed to with it.

The failure of the Senate to keep the promise made to the people by the Republican party respecting a revision of the tariff downward was the theme of Senator Beveridge as the debate was drawing to a close.

"Our votes," he said, "shall be cast in harmony with our party's pledges as voiced by our party's leader, and the nation's President."

Suggesting that the "insurgents" would cast their votes on the final passage of the bill in conformity with their previous action, Mr. Beveridge said they would do so as a notice to the conferrees to bring back a bill in which there should be decreases of duties.

Mr. Aldrich said he had often seen men interpret their own judgment as the judgment of their party.

"The Republican Party is a party of majorities," he added, "and the views of the majority in matters of legislation control party policies. The Senator from Indiana does not speak for the Republican Party. He has no right to call here the name of the President of the United States in support of any suggestion which he has made."

Mr. Aldrich declared that the pending bill was a fulfillment of the party's pledge. If Senators wished to vote against the bill, he said, they should not attempt to speak for their party.

"I have listened with deep interest to the tearful and prophetic funeral oration," said Mr. Stone from the Democratic side of the chamber. He said it reminded him of the old hymn, "Hark from the Tomb a Doleful Sound."

"It will take more than the Senator from Rhode Island to read the State of Minnesota out of the Republican Party," said Mr. Nelson amid applause, which called down the gavel of the Vice President with an announcement that such expressions were not permitted. Then the bill was put on its passage.

EXPECT NO DELAY IN HOUSE.

May Go Straight to Conference—New Yorkers Against Corporation Tax.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—There will be no delay in sending the Tariff bill to conference after it reaches the House. It is expected that the bill will be sent to that body by the Senate late to-morrow, and in order that no time may be lost Representative Dalzell of Pennsylvania of the Rules Committee obtained the adoption of an order to-day by which the House will meet daily from now until the end of the session.

As soon as the bill is received Mr. Dalzell is expected to offer a resolution by which the House will disagree to the Senate amendments in block and agree to a conference. If there is any disposition to debate the resolution Representative Payne (New York) will probably move the previous question on the resolution, thereby shutting off discussion, and when Mr. Dalzell's resolution is adopted, the Speaker will announce the list of conferrees.

The secrecy which will surround the work of the conferrees is indicated by the care with which the names are guarded by the Speaker. Mr. Payne, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, professes ignorance as to the probable number or who they will be. He is also as reticent with regard to the time that may be required for consideration of the bill in conference, but it is generally believed that it will be reported finally from conference by Monday, July 19.

Meantime opposition to the Corporation Tax amendment is brewing in the House. Seven members of the New York Republican delegation, representing New York City, to-day joined in a request to Representative Sereno Payne, dean of the New York delegation, that he call a meeting of the entire delegation from that State to form a definite programme. Five of them are opposed to the tax.

It is expected that Mr. Payne will accede to the request, and that a caucus on the question will be held to-morrow night.

CORPORATIONS TO FIGHT TAX.

Will Test Constitutionality of Taft Revenue-Producing Measure.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Confirmation of the expectation in many quarters that the large corporations of the country will seek to hold up the collection of taxes under the Corporation Tax bill, if that measure is enacted, by an appeal to the courts to test the constitutionality of the law, was given here to-day by a prominent official of the Treasury Department, who has just returned from New York and who refuses to be quoted by name.

The possibility of suspension of this expected large source of revenue and the possible necessity in that event of a bond issue by the Government to meet the situation in the Treasury has caused concern not alone to the Treasury officials, but to political leaders who point to the political consequences attributed to the bond issues of the Cleveland Administration.

It would be within the province of a court it is conceded to permit the taxes to be collected, subject to a refund, but such a course is unusual, and it is a well-known fact that money once paid into the Treasury is exceedingly hard to get back, and even when returned involves a multiplicity of complications. Secretary of the Treasury MacVeagh is out of the city, but an official of the Department of Justice, who is qualified to speak on the subject, declared to-day that he believed the bill as now framed, is clearly constitutional, and that any action looking to a test of constitutionality would not prevent the Secretary of the Treasury from proceedings to collect the tax in the usual way.

The Department of Justice officials not only believe that the bill if enacted will be found to be constitutional, but that pending a determination of the case in the courts, if such action is taken, the collection of the tax will not be interrupted.

Should the tax bill be declared unconstitutional, the persons paying it, in his opinion, would have ample recourse to compel its return, but even should the courts decide to grant a temporary injunction restraining the Secretary from collecting the tax, it is pointed out that the Secretary has ample resources at hand with which to meet all obligations and fully sustain the Government credit.

The Government receipts are now increasing at a gratifying rate, but should necessity require, the Secretary may at any time, in his discretion, under the laws now in force, issue up to $40,000,000 Panama canal 2 per cent. bonds, and in addition he is able, under existing law, to issue up to $100,000,000 3 per cent. Treasury certificates of indebtedness. Thus it is claimed that in any event and whatever action the courts might see fit to take with respect to the collection of the tax under a corporation tax act, the Treasury is in no danger whatever of being short of funds.

Barbara Trumpler Will Filed.

The will of Barbara Trumpler, who died on June 29, was filed for probate yesterday. The German Evangelical Lutheran Church of Williamsbridge gets $500 and the Polish Catholic Church of the same place $100. A trust of $5,000 is made for the benefit of her granddaughter, Agnes B. Trumpler, and her son, Frederick W. Trumpler, receives property at Wakefield, N. Y. Her son, Frederick W., and daughter, Katie T. Trumpler, are made the residuary legatees.

OLD FAMILY SPLIT OVER TWO CHILDREN

Father Wants to Take Them from Grandmother and They Don't Want to Go.

NOR UNCLE TO LET THEM GO

C. H. Jones Has the Law on His Side, but He'll Have to Fight to Get Them, Say Dead Mother's Kin.

Because of two little children, the niece and nephew of "Skipper" William Cole, Acting Assistant Superintendent of the Staten Island Ferries, some heartstrings are to be inevitably wrung if the threatened suit over the children is filed and carried to the bitter end. And the end can't help being bitter. The two sides, living together, have loved the children together; now they have parted.

They call his "Skipper" around the ferry house at St. George because from 1880 up to two years ago he was Captain of one of the ferryboats plying between Manhattan and Staten Island. Everybody calls him that, even his little niece and nephew, whom he may lose in the courts.

The "skipper" is unmarried, about 40 years old, comfortably portly, and red-cheeked. The ole home stands at 136 Norwood Avenue, Clifton, S. I. The "skipper" is the head of the house there, living with his mother, Mrs. William Cole, who is a little over 60 years old, and with his nephew and niece. His younger sister was Jennie Cole.

Some thirteen years ago she married Chauncey H. Jones, who was and is now employed in the office of J. Pierpont Morgan & Co. He has been there twenty-one years, of which his mother and sister, Miss Minnie Jones, are proud. He is now coupon clerk.

Jennie Cole was the "baby sister' in the Cole home. After her marriage she remained at the Cole house in Clifton, S. I. After a year or two a cottage was built next to it, and she and her husband went to live in that.

The first child was Marion, a girl, born twelve years ago, and the second and last, Chauncey, a boy, at whose birth his mother gave up her life. Then the two children and their father went back to board in the oCle home. That was nine years ago.

Mrs. William Cole had her big son and her two grandchildren. She gave much time to Chaucey H. ad Marion Jones, and n the three years that have gone by she has come to love them as if they were her own. And the big, red-cheeked, unmarried "Skipper" loves them too.

"Son, this is how all this business has come to a head," said the "shipper" last night, explaining how the present separation trouble came about. "Jones set back his plate at the breakfast table along about the first of June, and said shortly, 'Well, I'm going to move away on the first of next month and take the children.'

"That was a considerable shock. There was something back of it about which I will not speak, but he knew it was coming. The two chcildren were told by their grandmother that they must get ready to go with their father, though the advice broke her heart. They were his children. They did not want to go with him.

"Wednesday before last he came to the house with a moving van and a carriage, accompanied by three or four truck drivers. I had been forewarned, and I had a policeman in the house. They did not know I was home; they thought my mother was alone. I first stepped out and told the whole lot of them not to take anything out of the house until I gave permission. The truck drivers put up their fists to fight. I called the policeman, and they slunk out like whipped dogs.

"When Jones got to the house he called to his daughter: 'Put on your clothes and get ready to go with me.' When she saw me she jumped into my arms, crying out: 'Skipper, I don't want to go.'

"The whole kit and boodle of them went away from there, but Jones consulted a lawyer about getting some furniture and some other stuff he had in the house. This was readily given up when it was asked for in the proper way. Now he has moved to 113 Fisk Avenue, Westerleigh, where he lives with his mother and sister. The home idea has come somewhat late.

"I hear that Jones is to bring suit for Jennie's children. For their sake he shall not have them until I have exhausted everything with which I can fight. Circumstance has given me something with which I can fight. Nine and twelve years with their grandmother, and now to take them away!"

The "Skipper" hadn't spoken of his feelings about the children. He was asked if he didn't love them, too.

"Good God, boy, I'm human," said the Skipper. "They love the Skipper, too. We've been together too long, too long!"

Capt. Cole said that Jones had tried to lure his children away from his house by telling them stories about him and by offering them inducements. They have remained with the "Skipper" and his mother, he said, and Jones must go to law to get them if he can.

"In the beginning, though, it broke our hearts to counsel it, he could have taken them," said the Skipper, "but after he came bulldozing his way into our home, when he thought only my old mother was there—after that, he'll have to fight to get them.

At the Jones home, in Westerleigh, it was said that Mr. Jones was absent. Miss Minnie Jones, his sister, said that he certainly intended to bring suit to get possession of his children. The Joneses, she said, were among the oldest families on Staten Island, and therefore anything Capt. Cole said about them would not be believed. As for her brother, he had worked for J. P. Morgan & Co. for twenty-one years, beginning as a boy, and working up to be a clerk.

Miss Jones denied that there was any woman in the case other than herself and her mother, for whom, she said, her brother had decided to provide a home, and into which he desired, and would, bring his children. She was sure he hadn't provided the home because he intended to marry again.

Friends of both parties in Staten Island say that the "skipper," who has steered some tricky boats across some hard waters in his time, has a tough piece of piloting ahead of him.

MEYER'S NEW POLICY.

Won't Transfer Naval Officers from Posts They Fill Unusually Well.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Secretary Meyer enunciated a new policy in the navy to-day when he announced that the appointment of Commander William F. Fullam to the new armored cruiser, the West Virginia, which was made during the Secretary's absence, would probably be withdrawn. Commander Fullam is at present on duty as head of the Naval Training Station at Newport, R. I., but wishes to go to sea.

"I have not approved the assignment of Commander Fullam," said the Secretary, "and very likely I will not. He has done wonders where he is and it will be my policy in the future to retain officers for as long a time as the regulations permit in positions where they display unusual ability. Commander Fullam has done so, as has Capt. Albert C. Dillingham, in command of the training station at Norfolk. It would be a distinct loss to the service to transfer either of these officers."

Secretary Meyer was indignant over the report from Boston that he had violated the rules of the course in the recent Yale-Harvard boat race. So annoyed was he that at his suggestion the Treasury Department and the Department of Commerce and Labor issued statements denying emphatically the stories printed about him and the yacht Dolphin. Several officials of the Treasury and the Revenue Cutter Service were at the races, while the Department of Commerce and Labor policed the course and discovered not the slightest infringement of the rules on the part of the Secretary of the Navy.

NEW RULING ON WILLS.

Court Holds That Children May Dispose of Shares in Mother's Life Trust.

Supreme Court Justice Truax has completed his construction of the will of Richard H. Benson, a well-known business man of some twenty years ago, the document being admitted to probate on Oct. 24, 1889. The decision was on file in the Supreme Court yesterday, and is said to be held in considerable importance by lawyers, as it involves questions of law which will have bearing on the framing of future wills.

Sarah V. Benson was the widow of the testator, and Mary C., a daughter, married Charles Russell Burke. Mrs. Burke died in 1900, several years prior to the death of her mother, and by will Mrs. Burke left one-half of her estate to her husband, the other half going to her mother. The court held that Mrs. Burke had the legal right to dispose by will of her share in her father's estate before the death of her mother, who was entitled to the estate for life, but subject to the mother's rights.

Benson's will was admitted to probate, his widow qualified as executrix, and lived until October, 1907, but never accounted as executrix. Besides his widow, Benson left surviving him two daughters. Harriet G. and Marie C. Benson, and a son, Robert Benson. Both daughters died before their mother.

Out of this came the suit brought by Mary Van Buren Vanderpool, Aymar Sands, and James R. Turner, as executors and trustees under the will of Sarah V. Benson, against Charles Russell Burke, asking for a construction of the document.

Justice Truax holds that where a testator leaves real and personal property to his widow for life, and directs that after her death the property shall be divided among his children, from the moment of the testator's death his children in being had the right to the possession of the property on the determination of the precedent estate for life in the mother.

Justice Truax then directed that a referee should be appointed to take an accounting of the estate, which is said to be large.

CHURCHILL WANTS $250,000

If George Rector Wants to Buy—Restaurant Negotiations Reopened.

George Rector, son of Charles Rector, the restaurant proprietor, has again made overtures to purchase Churchill's restaurant, at Forty-seventh Street and Broadway. He called there on Wednesday night with a friend, who was said to be a Wall Street financier, and asked ex-police sergeant James Churchill what he would take for his lease, which is a very long one.

The reply was brief: "$250,000 for it as it stands, no less," Mr. Churchill said.

That is as far as the negotiations have gone at present.

Charles Rector is not interesting himself in what his son George is doing these days and treats with indifference the report that his offspring will open a restaurant to compete with him. There has been an estrangment between father and son since the latter married a young actress contrary to the wishes of his father.

FLAYS AGED WOMAN'S SONS.

Magistrate Compels Merchants to Help Support Mother.

FLUSHING, L. I., July 8.—"This is the most disgraceful case I ever heard of, and you men ought to be ashamed of yourselves for not contributing to the support of your old mother," said Magistrate Fitch in court here to-day, when Charles and Harry Bartlett, well-to-do fruit dealers of this place, were before him on a charge of refusing to support Mrs. Mary Bartlett, their mother. Mrs. Bartlett is about 70 years old, and in court to-day said her daughter, Mrs. Joseph Boyce, with whom she lives on Linden Avenue, has been supporting her for some time, but she now felt that her two sons should help her.

Mrs. Boyce told the Magistrate that all her mother asked from the two sons was $1.50 a week each, but they had refused to contribute even that small amount. She said she had been keeping her mother in her own home, but felt that her two brothers should be the ones to support their mother, especially when the mother gave them the money some years ago to start in business.

The Magistrate then turned to the two brothers and said he was surprised they had refused to give their mother $1.50 each a week, whereupon both the men produced envelopes which they handed up to the Magistrate. They were opened and in each of them was found $1.50 and a note agreeing to provide their parent with a similar amount each week.

TO EVADE PROHIBITION LAWS.

Express Companies Incorporated by Liquor Dealers Operate Between States

WASHINGTON, July 8.—A scheme to evade prohibition laws has been devised by the incorporation of express companies which operate between States.

In the last two or three months several of such companies have been incorporated in various parts of the country. In every instance the companies do a business close to State lines. None of them has filed with the Inter-State Commerce Commission its annual report, and, it is understood, an effort shortly will be made by the officials of prohibition States to prevent the operation of such companies.

The commission received an inquiry from the Mississippi State authorities a few days ago respecting the operations of an express company at Natchez. Mississippi is a prohibition State, yet it developed that an express company had been organized and incorporated at Natchez, the bulk of the business of which appears to be the transportation of beers and liquors from another State into Mississippi. The beverages are consigned to individuals in Mississippi, and are delivered by wagons of the express company. The curious part of the transaction is that the express company was incorporated by dealers in beers and liquors.

A similar case has arisen in Massachusetts. The Inter-State Express Company was organized at Fall River, and the company filed with the commission tariffs to cover its business. The first tariff, filed on May 22 last, governed principally the transportation of beers and liquors. Since that time additional tariffs have been filed, covering the transportation of various commodities and packages and the carrying of money.

Mrs. J. V. R. Townsend's Villa Burned.

The Steers villa at Southampton, L. I., occupied for the Summer by Mrs. Justin V. R. Townsend of this city, was totally destroyed by fire early yesterday morning. Mrs. Townsend and her family fled from the building without saving any of their effects, and had to be sheltered by neighbors for the night. Five of the servants were overcome by smoke and were dragged out by firemen. Considerable jewelry belonging to Mrs. Townsend was destroyed. The loss is $20,000.

THINKS HE'S SOLVED PRACTICAL AVIATION

German Inventor Asks War Department to Build a Novel Airship He Has Designed.

ASKS $1,200,000 IF IT FLIES

Arno Boerner Declares His Craft Will Carry 200 Persons 3,000 Miles Without Landing.

Another inventor, who is positive that he has solved the problems of practical aviation, is willing to let the United States Government pay for the construction of his airship, for which he has prepared elaborate plans. The latest airship inventor is Arno Boerner, a German, though a resident of Brussels, Belgium, now staying at the Hotel Ansonia, Broadway and Seventy-third Street. Mr. Boerner figures the cost of building an airship, according to his designs, as $600,000, and one of his proposals, as contained in a letter which he sent to the Secretary of War yesterday, is that he will build such a vessel at his own expense providing the Government will agree to pay him $1,200,000 when it is proved that the airship fulfills all his guarantees.

For some weeks Mr. Boerner, with two draughtsman and an engineer, has been at work perfecting his designs in an improvised draughting room on the thirteenth floor of the Ansonia. Some of his guarantees are startling, one of them being that his airship will carry 200 persons for 3,000 miles without landing.

Herr Boerner makes no secret of what he declares are the original features of his plans. They provide for a rigid steel bridge frame, to which are attached a number of separate balloons, independent of each other and detachable, thereby permitting of accessibility for repairs and lessening likelihood of serious accident, also insuring a better distribution of the lifting power. Every balloon would consist of two gas envelopes, one slightly smaller than the other, the space between the two being filled with a gas inimical to oxygen. Through this means, he declares, the great diffusion of gas (hydrogen) so baneful to balloonists, would be prevented. He says the arrangement would also exclude danger from the dreaded oxyhydrogen and render the hydrogen in the inner envelope less susceptible to changes of temperature.

The dynamic power of the ship, according to the specifications of the plans, is by means of several series of double, rotating, wing planes which, as they turn, are made by an ingenious mechanism already constructed to alternately spread out and fold together. They suggest huge Japanese fans, which, while rotating, can be made to open or close at any point in their periphery. They are connected in pairs and while the driving power of a pair (one motor for each pair) is identical the wings can be adjusted to exert their force in different directions, this feature permitting of steering by means of the rotating planes. He figures that the number of planes he would have on a ship capable of crossing the Atlantic would have a lifting power of 92,610 pounds.

To the bridge frame Mr. Boerner would attach aeroplanes, which he calculates would have a lifting power of 926,101 pounds. During flight, he states, the aeroplanes would supply the lifting power which during the rise of the ship was supplied by the wing planes. The latter during flight would supply the means of advancement.

Mr. Boerner is no novice as an inventor. Among his achievements abroad he points to an armor plate piercing projectile which the Krupps of Essen took up, sugar refining and petroleum burning devices and automobile parts.

Mr. Boerner was accompanied to this country by his wife. They brought with them, besides an engineer, their automobile and a chauffeur. The inventor says the world should appreciate Count Zeppelin's efforts to solve aviation, but that the Count's airship has reached the limits of its usefulness, owing to lack of sufficient power. He praised the Wrights, but again he criticizes, and says that the dynamic system alone will never suffice; that for one thing such a craft will never be able to carry sufficient gasoline for a long flight, to say nothing of carrying passengers.

The hotter the day and the dustier the course, the more you appreciate a shower bath, after the game is over.

It takes only a few minutes. And all you need is: A cake of Ivory Soap, a plentiful supply of hot and cold water and a coarse towel.

Cover yourself from head to heels with the Ivory Soap lather. Then, turn the taps and let the water descend on you in refreshing showers.

There! Look at yourself! You are a new man! Your eyes sparkle. Every nerve in your body tingles and your skin is as smooth as satin.

Ivory Soap is in use in the bath and toilet rooms of the majority of golf clubs.

It ought to be in all of them. It would be if golfers who appreciate the importance of pure soap would insist on it.

AN AUDIT'S BROADER FUNCTION

The old-fashioned auditor verifies his client's accounts. He stops there.

The more recent and higher type of auditor audits for errors of method and practice as well as for verification.

An audit by our staff goes further than either. It interprets the significant facts which lie behind the figures. It defines unfavorable conditions and tendencies, and leads naturally to the broader work of scientific organization, which is receiving so much attention from business houses to-day.

We offer auditing service of any scope of which a client may be in need.

TAFT LAUDS UNITY OF THREE NATIONS

France, United States, and England in Union That Cannot Be Torn Apart, He Says.

SEES AN INDIAN PAGEANT

President Then Returns to Washington from Champlain Tercentenary—Ambassadors Express Good Will.

BURLINGTON, Vt., July 8.—President Taft's participation in the Lake Champlain Tercentenary celebration ended to-day and he left here late to-night for Washington.

With the other guests of honor President Taft attended a dinner in the gymnasium of the University of Vermont. Although the dinner hour had been set for 6:30 it was an hour later before the President arrived.

In the meantime scores of guests, including a number of women who had reached the building at the appointed hour, found the doors locked and stood shivering on the stone steps in a chilling wind that swept down from the north. The committee in charge of the event had decided out of respect to the President to wait until he had arrived before admitting the other guests.

The doors were still locked when Ambassador Jusserand and his wife reached the building, and they drove away to return later. Gov. and Mrs. Hughes found the crowd somewhat augmented. The situation was explained to the Governor, who waited in his carriage.

Other carriages arriving with guests congested the driveway to the building, until finally the matter was brought to the President's attention. He promptly sent word to the committee in charge that the guests should all be seated before he arrived. Whereupon the doors were opened, and soon after the President put in an appearance, taking a place between Gov. Prouty, who presided, and Mrs. Prouty.

"The effect of such a memorial," said the President in his speech, "upon our international relations cannot but be good. But what I am especially glad to welcome is the intimacy of relations that such memorials as this are apt to increase between this country and Canada."

The President's reference to "the presence of every member of the distinguished company of the traveling show of which I am a part," especially amused the company and later Ambassador Bryce declared that the "showing company is absolutely giving its last performance of the season."

Declaring that there seems to be a distinctive character and a peculiar individuality in Vermont men, the President continued:

"We heard a great deal about your deserted farm at one time. Whether this was put forth for the purpose of inviting innocent outsiders to come in, or whether it really represented any actual condition, certainly it has passed. I don't think there are any deserted farms in Vermont to-day. You have wrestled with the problem, and you have made a great success. You are not all millionaires, but you are all in that condition of respectable wealth or respectable poverty that are the two best conditions to make a good people. You preserved your traditions just as the English did, and accomplished reforms though you do preserve your traditions.

"You elect your Judges by the Legislature, I should think in a way that might be improved, and the tenure of office is practically for life, because you believe that when you have got a good thing you ought to keep it.

"So, too, with respect to your Congressmen and your Senators. You have learned that the way to exercise an influence in Washington far beyond anything that your population entitles you to, is to keep your Congressmen and your Senators there.

The President referred to a remark of a Southern politician that it was time to break up the solid North, and said that "references are made to the fact that Vermont is just about as solid as Alabama, and Georgia."

"Well," he went on, "what the effect on Vermont would be if the South were really to break up and some of those States become Republican, perhaps we cannot say. It is my own theory that Vermont and many another Northern State has been made solidly Republican because there was a solid South, and that one of the benefits of breaking up a solid South would be that there would be no solidity anywhere on sectional lines.

"But one thing I am bound to say, that even if Republican majorities are pretty certain in Vermont, there is something about a Republicanu majority in Vermont every four years that a man who has been a candidate for the Presidency studies with most anxious concern, and that is whether the majority of the people that favor the Republican ticket in Vermont at a Presidential election, shall amount to more than 20,000, for, if they don't, the Republican candidate ought to make other arrangements for the next four years."

Then he turned to Canada.

"We have been going ahead so rapidly in our own country," he said, "and our heads have been somewhat swelled with the idea that we were carrying on our shoulders all the progress that there was in the world. But that is not true, as you will realize when you think a moment. And we have not been conscious, or as fully conscious as we ought to be, that there is on our north, with a border line between it and us of some 5,000 miles, a young country an da young nation that is looking forward, as well it may, to a great national future.

"They have 9,000,000 people, but the country is still hardly scratched; it is still undeveloped. They have two great strains—the French and the English.

"They are under a government abroad, to which both strains acknowledge full loyalty, which has exhibited a great wisdom in its treatment of the dominion, and in giving to the dominion the practical and almost a complete autonomy. The bond between them and the mother country is sweet, but light, and there is nothing that prevents the indulging on the part of each, whether French or English, in the traditional pride of the race of each.

"Now, they are going on; they are building railroads, they are exercising great discretion, and they are taking from us many of our best farmers, who are in search of rich wheat fields in the West.

"All of these things, if we adopted a short-sighted policy, would perhaps arouse in us a jealousy and a desire to prevent a growth on their part into what we might regard as a competitor of ours.

"That, I think, is a most short-sighted policy. They cannot have a prosperity that we cannot and must not share. And we cannot have a prosperity on our side that they will not derive a benefit from. Therefore, each may look upon the growth of the other with entire complacency and with an earnest desire that the ideals and conditions that they have formed may be carried to fruition, and I am glad to feel, from a National standpoint, that these celebrations, these memorials, are a permanent step forward in bringing about that union of feeling and sentiment and neighborhood effect that ought to be encouraged between those two great powers on the North American continent."

Ambassador Bryce, Ambassador Jusserand, Postmaster General Rodolphe Lemiuex of Canada, and Gov. Hughes were the other speakers.

The scene of the tercentenary celebration shifted to-day from the shores of New York, where it has been in progress at Crown Point, Fort Ticonderoga, and Plattsburg, to Vermont, with Burlington as the setting for the day's ceremonies. Vermont had been celebrating with New York throughout the week, but to-day's visit of President Taft, the French and English Ambassadors, Gov. Hughes of New York, and the New York commission and the members of the Legislature, had long been anticipated as the crowning event and the city was gay with decorations for the occasion.

The President and his party arrived from Bluff Point on the steamer Ticonderoga at 11 A. M. They were met at the Champlain Yacht Club dock by Gov. Prouty and his staff. The shores of the lake were black with people and they crowded the way to the City Hall Park, where the President reviewed a parade and where the literary exercises were held. The First Regiment of the Vermont National Guard escorted the President.

Taft Calls Celebration Unique.

The President declared in his speech that the Champlain celebration would fill a unique place in history as the memorial of renewed expression of the union and the amity among Great Britain, France, and the United States.

The French Ambassador, M. Jusserand; the British Ambassador, Mr. Bryce; Gov. Hughes of New York, Gov. Prouty of Vermont, and Postmaster General Lemieux of Canada were the speakers of the day in addition to President Taft.

Gov. Prouty presided at the City Hall Park exercises. President Taft early in his speech paid compliments to the men of Vermont.

"A man who can claim Vermont lineage," said he, "has something to be proud of. My father knew every man in the State of Ohio that had come from Vermont. And there is something about Vermont men, whether you meet them in California or Ohio, or any other State—and they are in every State—that makes between them a bond almost equal to a bond of Freemasonry.

"Now, my friends, I am not in the theatrical business and I have not fully understood until the last three days what was meant by a continuous show. Now I know, and it affects differently those who are engaged in it and those who come in only at one time.

A Colossus of Rhodes.

"I have had the pleasure of attempting to compose the differences arising between the Governor of New York and the Governor of Vermont, and it has been at times a difficult task. I do not mean to make that harmonious union they speak of now, and that I hope will continue to be preserved, any more difficult by suggesting a solution of a problem about to arise in respect to the place where the monument to Samuel Champlain is to be put.

"I suggested last night that it might be well to submit it to a committee consisting of the French Ambassador, the English Ambassador, and the Chief Executive of the United States, and that we might then reach a conclusion that would be satisfactory to nobody. I don't know how you are going to satisfy everybody unless you make Champlain a Colossus of Rhodes, and put one foot on New York and one foot in Vermont, and then when you do you will interfere with that ambitious plan of your Mayor with reference to a deep waterway.

"My friends, this is a most unique and many-sided memorial. I know there has run through your minds as there has through mine this morning the happy feeling of being present to hear such beautiful speeches from the heart as we have heard. We meet to celebrate an event and a man upon whose life and upon the acts of whose life turned in a way which he little expected the whole settlement of this country. We meet here to celebrate his virtues and to congratulate France, his country, as one that could produce such a hero.

Amity of the Powers.

"But the feature of this memorial that I think is so unique is the gathering here in amity, in peace, and in a union that cannot be torn apart, of three great powers, England, France, and the United States, and with England's fairest daughter, the Dominion of Canada.

"I ask you where in all the history of memorials can you find one that in that respect will match this. Only yesterday, and it will be the same to-day, two regiments of Canadian soldiers, the Governor's Foot Guards and the Royal Highlanders, will march shoulder to shoulder with the militia of Vermont and the regulars of the United States. They will all understand the same orders in the same way, and you won't feel, except by the difference in color, that you are looking on any different or varied race.

"And now, my friends, I am not going to keep you any longer. If there is any one thing that my experience in a continuous show has taught me it is that each man ought to limit his particular stunt. I thank you."

Postmaster General Lemieux of Canada, in his speech, said that the occasion was one "to proclaim our determination that now on and forever the American Commonwealth and the Dominion of Canada shall always promote and advance the cause of peace, harmony, and civilization on this vast continent.

Bliss Carman read an ode, "The Champlain Country." It began thus:

When the sweet Summer days
Come to New England, and the south wind plays
Over the forests, and the tall tulip trees
Life up their chalices
Of delicate orange green
Against the blue serene;
When the chestnut crowns are full of flowers
And the long hours
Are not too long
For the Oriole's song;
When the wild roses blow
In blueberry pastures, and the Bobwhite's note
Calls us away
On the happy trail where every heart must go;
When the white clouds float
Through an ampler day,
And the old sea lies mystical blue once more
Along the Pilgrim shore,
Crooning to stone-faced pastures sweet with fern
Tales of the long ago and of the far-away;
And when to the hemlock solitudes return
The gold-voiced thrushes, and the high beach woods
Ring with enchantment as the twilight falls
Among the darkening hills,
And the new moonlight fills
The world with beauty and the soul with peace
And infinite release;
Is there any land that history recalls
Bestowed by Gods on mortals anywhere
More goodly than New England or more fair?

Following the day's exercises came a review of the troops, in which the Fifth United States Infantry from Plattsburg Barracks, the Governor General's Footguards from Ottawa, and other military organizations participated.

BITTER CRY AGAINST THIRD AVENUE PLAN

Twenty-five Per Cent. Worse Than Killing the Road, Says One Protestant.

STOCKHOLDERS AGAINST IT

Fooled Too Often and Robbed Too Often—Some Street Railroad History Recalled Against New Issue.

Yesterday's hearing before the Public Service Commission on the reorganization plan for the Third Avenue Railroad was devoted to the protestants against the proposal to issue against the road's $37,500,000 of bonds and $16,000,000 of stock, and to provide $8,500,000 in cash, $15,000,000 of refunding bonds, $31,000,000 of adjustment bonds, and $20,000,000 of stock, the stockholders to be assessed $25 a share. Protestants were not lacking. Attorney S. R. Levy, representing some Third Avenue stockholders, and Robert R. Perkins, a stockholder for twenty-five years, gave the commission plenty to listen to for an hour and a half.

"I want to tell you," said Mr. Perkins in his protest to the commission, "a little history of this road. Twenty-five years ago it had a capitalization of $7,000,000, being $5,000,000 of first mortgage bonds and $2,000,000 of stock. A few years later the stock was increased to $4,000,000 and the stockholders were given what was termed the 'privilege' of subscribing to the increase. The proceeds were supposed to be used for making improvements and for acquiring properties. Later the stock was increased to $6,000,000 and then to $8,000,000, and so on until it reads $16,000,000—all to pay for improvements and to acquire properties such as the Forty-second Street, the 125th Street, and the Union Railway lines.

"In these increases the stockholders were assessed 700 per cent. on their original holdings. What became of the $14,000,000 history does not record, but shortly after the last dollar was paid in rumors began that there was a floating debt, and soon we discovered that the floating debt ahead of the stock was $23,000,000.

"The stock, which had been selling for more than $200 a share, dropped nearly 200 points. The road went into the hands of a receiver, and a reorganization plan was devised which first deceived and then robbed the stockholders. To liquidate the $23,000,000 of debts, $37,500,000 of bonds were put ahead of the stock. You have heard from Mr. Whitridge what became of the difference.

"Mr. Whitridge talked of the road perishing. I will not argue that point here, as I do not think the commission was impressed by it. But the remedy he now suggets for the road's extremities, it seems to me, amounts to at least 25 per cent. worse than death for the stockholders. The stockholders have submitted to two robberies, and the bondholders' committee, I believe, has relied too confidently on the gullibility of the Third Avenue stockholders. You cannot fool all of the Third Avenue stockholders at present.

"They suggest as an alternative to this plan the foreclousre of the mortgage. That would be inequitable enough, but I tell you that the bondholders' committee does not want to foreclose the mortgage, for in doing so they would foreclose the Third Avenue stockholders out of the property.

"Get rid of the Third Avenue stockholders by foreclosure? Never! They wouldn't get rid of us for anything. We are the best asset in the treasury of the company. We gave up $14,000,000 for nothing; we allowed them to issue thirty-seven millions of bonds ahead of our stock to pay off twenty-three millions of debts, and now they propose to have us give up $4,000,000 more for less than nothing.

Mr. Levy, representing stockholders of the Third Avenue road, declared that the plan was an insult to the stockholders and an affront to the public.

Mr. Levy submitted the following specific points of protest:

1. The additional and new proposed bonded indebtedness is 60 per cent. more than is necessary to pay the just liabilities of the bankrupt railroad.

2. The proposed plan calls for the issue of a gross sum of bonded indebtedness much larger than is warranted by the assets of the road.

3. The plan proposes to issue bonds to a greater amount than is warranted by the earning capacity of the road.

4. The plan as proposed is inequitable to the stockholders, in that it proposes to issue bonds to a much larger amount than is required to pay the equitable liabilities and debts of the Third Avenue Railroad.

5. The value of the stock being thus absolutely nullified, we object to the plan because it seeks to assess and collect $4,000,000 from the stockholders without giving in return any real valuable consideration, except an additional $4,000,000 of utterly valueless stock.

6. We object to the plan on the ground of public policy because it proposes to burden the road with bonds which the earning capacity of the road cannot support, and stocks for which there is no warrant either in assets or earning capacities, thus creating so-called "securities" which are a menace to the investing public, whose knowledge of the values behind such securities is necessarily imperfect.

7. We earnestly object to the proposed plan of reorganization as illegal because it places the management of the property in the hands of the adjustment bondholders without placing upon them any liability as stockholders, while the stockholders, who have the liability devolving upon them by law, have no effective voice in the management of the property.

The hearing will continue at 2 o'clock to-day.

DURING THE MONTHS OF JULY AND AUGUST,

Distinctive Summer Suits for Men
Complete assortments, at $15 to $43
To the man who finds need in mid-Summer for replenishing his wardrobe often comes the vexation of being compelled to choose from "what's left."
Some shops make sudden demands upon the manufacturer for duplicates—demands which are rarely met, for the very good reason that his own season is closed and he is already busy making Fall garments.
No such problem confronts us. Maintaining a perfectly equipped organization of our own, as fast as assortments dwindle they are replenished; more than that, our designers even create additional models as the season advances.
To-day we are really in position to serve you as well as we were at the season's beginning.

INDEPENDENTS WAR ON RED TAXICABS

Seek to Enjoin Them from Picking Up Street Fares Unless Publicly Licensed.

SAY THEY EVADE THE LAW

By Free Lancing When Only Licensed for Special Stands—1,500 Public Hackmen in Combination.

George F. Holbert of 5 Beekman Street, attorney for some 1,500 independent cabmen, announced yesterday that he would ask the Supreme Court to-day for an injunction restraining the New York Taxicab Company, which operates the red taxis, from picking up fares in the streets except with those machines that have public licenses.

Mr. Holbert also said that this suit was only the beginning of a series to be instituted by the independent cabmen against the corporation cabmen, who are forcing them to the wall. Suit is brought first against the red taxi people, went on Mr. Holbert, because the worst offenders, in the opinion of the hackmen, they are.

The city provides for two kinds of hack licenses. Certain property owners may permit certain cabmen to stand in front of their property to the exclusion of other hackmen, and to these are issued special licenses. For this exclusive right these cabs are permitted by law to carry fares only from the property in front of which they stand. Their lamps carry no numbers, and, according to Mr. Holbert, they are not allowed to pick up fares along the street.

The public hackmen, to whom an ordinary license is issued, carry numbers on their lamps and pick up fares anywhere. They are subject to arrest if they attempt to invade the territory occupied by the specially licensed hackmen.

According to the attorney for the independent cabbies, the taxicab people have a few of their machines provided with public licenses to do a sort of cruising business, but most of them are specially licensed to stand in front of some hotel, restaurant, or other public place.

The red taxi chauffeurs have orders, however, so it is alleged in affidavits which Mr. Holbert says he will present to the court, to pick up a fare whenever they can get one, whether the fare comes out of a building in front of a red taxi stand or not. Moreover, it is declared, the chauffeurs have two sets of lamps, one with and one without numbers, which they put on to suit the business they happen to want to do at any time.

At the office of the New York Taxicab Company it was said that the company had a number of machines provided with a public license to pick up fares, and that only these did that sort of business.

RECORD CORN CROP 3 BILLION BUSHELS

Produce Exchange So Estimates on the Government Report of 109,006,000 Acres Planted.

WHEAT, 663,000,000 BUSHELS

Estimated from Government's Figures of Condition of Crop—Last Year's Harvest Was 664,602,000 Bushels.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The crop reporting board of the Bureau of Statistics of the United States Department of Agriculture estimates from reports of correspondents and agents of the bureau as follows:

The preliminary estimate of the area of corn planted is 109,006,000 acres, an increase of 7,218,000 acres, or 7.1 per cent., as compared with the final estimate of last year's acreage.

The average condition of the corn crop on July 1 was 89.3, as compared with 82.8 on July 1, 1908, 80.2 on July 1, 1907, and 84.8 the ten year average on July 1.

The average condition of barley on July 1 was 90.2, as compared with 90.6 last month, 86.2 on July 1, 1908; 84.4 on July 1, 1907, and 88.3, the ten-year average on July 1.

The average condition of rye on July 1 was 91.4, as compared with 89.6 last month, 91.2 on July 1, 1908; 89.7 on July 1, 1907, and 89.8, the ten-year average on July 1.

The acreage of white potatoes is estimated at 3,452,000 acres, or 195,000 acres (6 per cent.) more than last year. The condition of the crop on July 1 was 93.0, as compared with 89.6 on July 1, 1908; 90.2 on July 1, 1907, and 91.0, the ten-year average on July 1.

The acreage of tobacco is estimated at 1,108,336 acres, or 232,911 acres (26.6 per cent.) more than last year. The condition of the crop on July 1 was 89.8, as compared with 86.6 on July 1, 1908; 81.3 on July 1, 1907, and 85.7, the ten-year average on July 1.

The acreage of flax is estimated at 2,741,000 acres, or 62,000 acres (2.3 per cent.) more than last year. The condition of the crop on July 1 was 95.1, as compared with 92.5 on July 1, 1908; 91.2 on July 1, 1907; 93.2 on July 1, 1906, and 90.4, the average on July 1 for six years.

The average condition of the hay crop on July 1 was 87.8, as compared with 87.6 last month, 92.6 on July 1, 1908, and approximately 82 on July 1, 1907. The condition of timothy on July 1 was 87.1, as compared with 90.2 on July 1, 1908, 82.2 on July 1, 1907, and 85.1 the ten-year average on July 1. The condition of clover on July 1 was 83.8, as compared with 95.5 on July 1, 1908, 76.4 on July 1, 1907, and 83.8 the ten-year average on July 1.

The condition of the apple crop on July 1 was 54.6, as compared with 61.4 last month, 57.6 on July 1, 1908, and 62.3 the ten-year average on July 1.

The latest edition of the statistical abstract shows the production and farm value of wheat for the five years ended with 1908 to have been as follows:

WHEAT.

Produce Exchange Figures.

The Government report of the condition of the corn crop bore out in a measure the optimistic estimates which have been received in Wall Street from private sources and from the officials of the several corn-growing States. With an acreage of 109,000,000, figured by the Government experts, which is 7,218,000 larger than last year's planting, and a condition of 89.3, the Produce Exchange statistician estimated the corn crop yesterday at 3,161,000,000 bushels, the largest on record. If the crop bears out the predictions of the experts, and the new system of estimating in use on the Produce Exchange takes into account the average deterioration for five years between the July condition and that at harvest, the crop will not only have surpassed all previous records, but will have crossed the 3,000,000,000 bushel mark for the first time in history.

The returns from the wheat crops were almost equally encouraging and the total of 663,000,000 bushels of both Winter and Spring wheat predicted by the Produce Exchange statistician from the Government figures is almost equal to last year's wheat harvest of 664,602,000 bushels.

Winter wheat, as indicated in the Government figures of 82.4, is 2 points ahead of the ten-year average and ranks with the four best years since 1900. Since the June estimate of condition was given out it has improved 1.7 points and the report bears out the optimistic news from the fields which have been received in Wall Street from time to time since the last report. The indicated crop, as figured by the Produce Exchange statistician, is 409,704,000 bushels, which compares unfavorably with the July estimate last year of 416,514,000 bushels, but is well ahead of the June, 1909, figures of 398,565,000 bushels. These figures take into account the average deterioration experienced between now and harvest in the past five years.

On the other hand, the reports from the Spring wheat crop were something of a disappointment to the optimists in Wall Street, who had been looking for a gain in the condition of the newer crop since the June report. The falling off in condition as reported from Washington, amounting to 2.5 per cent. during June, exactly coincided with the average deterioration taken account of in the method of estimating the yield, and left the predicted crop at the same figures reported last month, 253,795,000 bushels.

The estimated yield of oats from the reported condition and acreage is 962,933,000, which compares with the estimate at this time last year of 939,826,000 bushels, and the actual crop of 807,156,000 bushels.

HOW GERMANY FORCED RUSSIA

Notified Her Austria Would Invade Servia, Bobrinsky Says.

PARIS, July 8.—Count Vladimir Bobrinsky, one of the members of the Russian Duma, now visiting Paris, revealed to-day the precise nature of Germany's intervention in the Balkan crisis.

No ultimatum was delivered, Count Bobrinsky says, but Germany notified Russia that unless she yielded Austrian troops would enter Servia. As popular sentiment would then force Russia into war, and as the army was not prepared, Russia had no alternative but to yield.

Count Bobrinsky says that resentment against Germany in Russia is profound.

CHINESE LOAN NOT SETTLED.

American Participation to be Discussed Further in Paris and Berlin.

LONDON, July 8.—The meetings of the international bankers, so far as London is concerned, have been concluded without arrangements for the participation of Americans in the Hankow-Sze-chuen Railroad loan of $27,500,000 being agreed upon.

The negotiations, however, are still going on and further meetings will be held in Paris, and probably in Berlin. It is understood that the meeting of the foreign bankers was adjourned to allow the representatives of the Continental powers to consult with their Governments.

BAN ON DEAD WIFE'S SISTER.

Church Council Declares Against Marriages Recently Legalized.

LONDON, July 8.—By a vote of 224 to 24, the Church Council, which was attended by the leading Bishops, clergy, and laymen of the Church of England, declared to-day that marriage to a deceased wife's sister, recently legalized in this country, was contrary to the moral rules of the Church and to the principles of the Scriptures.

Furthermore, the use of the Prayer Book in the service solemnizing such marriages was reprobated in the strongest terms.

Chef Drowned at Deal Beach.

DEAL BEACH, N. J., July 8.—Charles Pritchard, a chef, of New York, was drowned this afternoon while bathing in the ocean just north of this place. His companion, Charles Bigot, made a heroic attempt to save him, but the strong current prevented. Pritchard was 21 years old, and was employed as chef at Deal Beach Casino. The body was recovered.

REVOLUTION MAY DIVIDE COLOMBIA

Panama's Example in Setting Up Separate Republic May Be Followed.

REVOLT BREWING IN SOUTH

Communication with Capital Cut in Every Direction, Our Consul Reports—Reyes Says Revolution Will Fail.

PANAMA, July 8.—Mail advices from Colombia report a very critical condition of affairs there. As the result of the departure of President Reyes for Europe, the various political parties, which a few months ago seemed to be united, are now completely disorganized, and there are indications that Colombia is on the verge of a great revolution.

No advices have been received here as to how the Barranquilla revolutionary movement has been accepted by the rest of Colombia, but there are rumors that a serious situation exists at Bogota. It is reported also that certain influential Colombians are publicly in favor of following Panama's example and constituting a new republic to be formed of the departments of Cauca and Antioquia and a part of Bolivar.

The movement on July 4 at Barranquilla was successful, the Revolutionists capturing the forts, the Magdalena River boats, and the custom houses. About 80 per cent. of the importations into Colombia pass through Barranquilla, so that the Revolutionists will not lack for funds.

At first it was believed that the movement was headed by a coalition of Conservatives and Liberals, but it is now learned that the Liberals refused to join in the rising, which was engineered by the ultra-Conservatives. Fears are entertained by Colombians who are inclined to peace that the situation will get beyond the control of the President-designate, Gen. Holguin, who, however, is considered an able statesman.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Two dispatches from Colombia reached the State Department to-day. One was from Elliott Northcott, the new United States Minister to that country, saying that Americans are in no danger as a result of the revolution, while the second, from Paxton Hibben, Secretary of the Legation at Bogota, stated that the capital had been entirely cut off from mail and telegraph communication with the outside world.

The dispatch was dated yesterday and probably was carried by courier to the coast. It did not contain any information as to whether the revolutionists were advancing on Bogota, but it is thought that the absence of communication with the capital is due to the wires being cut by the rebels, and that this may be in preparation for an attack upon it.

The State Department has made no requisition on the navy for the dispatch of warships to the affected districts.

REYES NOT DISTURBED.

President of Colombia Says Revolution Will Be Quickly Suppressed.

PARIS, July 8.—Gen. Rafael Reyes, President of Colombia, who is stopping in this city with his daughter, minimizes the revolution which broke out on Sunday against his government at Barranquilla, a town on the Atlantic seaboard of Colombia. He said to-day that his advices from Gen. Holguin, the President-designate, with whom he is in constant touch, are to the effect that the trouble was confined to Barranquilla.

"Colombia always needs an iron hand," said Gen. Reyes. "When I became President of the republic five years ago I had no trouble in restoring and maintaining order. Now it is a case of the English proverb: 'When the cat's away the mice will play.'

"Señor Gonzalez Valencia, who has been proclaimed President, renounced the Vice Presidency some years ago. He is my friend, and not a revolutionist. I am convinced that the revolutionists are simply using his name to conjure with.

"Gen. Holguin, to whom I turned over the Presidency on leaving Bogota, is loyal to me, and I have no fear that he will play the same trick that Gen. Gomez played on Gen. Castro when the latter left Caracas for Europe."

Gen. Reyes says he does not believe the trouble is in any way due to dissatisfaction over the tripartite treaty between Colombia, Panama, and the United States, which the coming Colombian Congress is expected to ratify. He thinks the movement is simply the smouldering remains of the revolution that he quenched on assuming power; that the Government apparently is able to control all the troops with the exception of the garrison at Barranquilla, and that it is able to cope with the situation. Gen. Reyes says he does not consider the news from Colombia serious enough to alter his plans, which contemplate a three months' sojourn in Europe before his return to the Colombian capital.

The President appears to be in fairly good health.

REYES NOT EXPECTED BACK.

W. C. Burdett Says He Has Left Colombia for Good.

There is no expectation in Colombia that President Reyes will ever return to resume his office, according to William C. Burdett, an American mining engineer, who has just returned after a six years' sojourn in that country.

"Reyes was elected as a reformer," he said yesterday, "but he soon changed his views, and he has become very unpopular throughout the country. Everybody is glad he has eliminated himself from the situation, and no one in Colombia expects him to return.

"Reyes left Bogota, the capital, in the early part of June, ostensibly for a brief trip to the coast. He went on a Government gunboat, and stopped at Gamarra, where he telegraphed for a number of politicians to meet him, among them Gonzalez Valencia, formerly Vice President. Reyes is said to have offered Valencia the Presidency at this conference, but he refused. Stopping at Mangangue, another river town, on the following day, Reyes issued a manifesto resigning the Presidency and naming Gen. Holguin, who had been Secretary of War in his Cabinet, as his successor until Congress should meet on July 20 and elect a new President.

"Arriving at Barranquilla, the principal seaport, Reyes called a meeting. The conference was held at La Canchera, a few miles above Barranquilla. Those who came were both friends and enemies of the President, but all advised him not to enter Barranquilla, where sentiment was strongly against him.

"Taking their advice, Reyes left the boat and went by train to Santa Marta, ostensibly for a visit. The next day he strolled out on the pier to watch the loading of bananas on an English boat called the Manistee, which was bound for Manchester. Half an hour before she sailed, he and his two sons went on board. His trunks were shipped out to the pier, hidden in a banana car, and were deposited on the steamer's deck as she was about to weigh anchor. Nobody, not even his most intimate friends, had the slightest idea that he was gone, until the boat had sailed.

"No one was more surprised at his leaving than his personal friends and supporters, and when the news became known, Colombians regarded his manner of leaving as a joke, and the whole country laughed. There was a note of relief in their laughter, however, as everybody was glad he had gone, thereby removing the only cause for trouble.

POTASH TRUST RENEWED.

German Government's Threat Brings Sollstedt Mine Into Line.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, July 8.—The attempt by American fertilizer interests to break the German potash monopoly has failed. The German trust, after having its life endangered for a week by the manoeuvres of the American chemical and packing companies, was renewed to-night for five years.

This means that America, which is the heaviest foreign consumer of German potash, will have to continue, as in the past, to buy of the syndicate at syndicate prices. The Americans, however, succeeded in making contracts for a heavy supply of potash below the syndicate price while the fate of the syndicate hung in the balance. The contracts for this supply have been taken over by the syndicate, which will make deliveries at the contract price, the difference being borne by the Sollstedt Mine, which made the sale.

The Americans, therefore, have secured only a temporary relief from syndicate extortion. The Sollstedt Mine, which entered into negotiations with the Americans, was frightened back into the syndicate by Government threats of a prohibitive export duty on potash.

RUSSIANS MARCH AT POLTAVA.

Thousands Join Religious March Under Hot Sun to Battlefield.

POLTAVA, Russia, July 8.—The celebration of the 200th anniversary of the Battle of Poltava, which crushed the power of the Swedes in Russia and marked the beginning of the modern Russian Empire, was inaugurated this afternoon with the so-called March of the Crosses, or religious procession.

The march was an imposing testimonial to the power of the religious faith of the Russian peasantry. Headed by the High Church dignitaries, including the Metropolitan, and fourteen Bishops, with banners, crosses, and ikons from the Poltava churches, thousands of worshippers plodded the dusty roads from the town to the battlefield under a blazing sun, the temperature being well above 100.

At the battlefield this column was joined by a second procession, bearing two wonder-working ikons dating from the battle of Poltava, the first being the miraculous ikon which Peter the Great carried with his army to insure victory at Poltava, and the second being the ikon from the Village of Zhukoff, on which the Swedes sacrilegiously played checkers before their overwhelming defeat.

The little town of Poltava is fairly submerged by deputations that are arriving from all parts of Russia to participate in the festivities.

Emperor Nicholas will arrive here early to-morrow, and it is generally expected that he will utilize the anniversary to make an important pronouncement on the agrarian problem. It is understood that Prince Kochuby, head of the Poltava Zemstvo, will ask imperial sanction for the opening of a school of higher agricultural education at Poltava.

HEAR SUFFRAGETTES, THE KING COMMANDS

Home Secretary Finally Receives Deputation After Women Appeal to Sovereign.

HUNGER STRIKE SUCCEEDS

Miss Dunlop Released from Holloway Jail After Refusing Food for Ninety-one Hours.

LONDON, July 8.—Following a direct appeal made to the King by Mrs. Despard and a deputation of Suffragettes, the Home Secretary, the Right Hon. H. J. Gladstone, accorded a very courteous audience this evening to eight of the women's representatives. Mrs. Despard was the leader of the deputation.

After hearing arguments and reading their petition, the Home Secretary made a sympathetic speech, expressing regret at the present involved situation and the belief that the matter would finally be settled in a way satisfactory to women.

Mr. Gladstone explained that he could do nothing to commit the Government. He admitted that the petition was an argument for an audience, and promised to forward it to the King.

Mrs. Despard and the contingent of suffragettes, who have been investing the House of Commons for the last week in the hope of catching Premier Asquith, have thus scored a point in their contention that they have a constitutional right to present a petition to a responsible Minister of the Crown. When the suffragettes appealed to the King, he informed them that the Home Secretary was the constitutional channel of communication, and apparently he followed this up with a hint that Mr. Gladstone would be advised to receive the deputation.

In the face of Premier Asquith's persistent refusal to meet a deputation of suffragettes it is hardly conceivable that his lieutenant would have consented to this course without strong pressure.

The latest heroine of the suffragette cause is Miss Wallace Dunlop, who was recently sentenced to a month's imprisonment in the Holloway jail for posting notices on the walls of the Houses of Parliament. Miss Dunlop organized a hunger strike in the prison and the authorities discharged her this afternoon after she had refused food for ninety-one hours. Miss Dunlop had been in prison only five days.

FRANCE WILLING TO BARGAIN.

Chamber and Ministry Favor Diplomatic Negotiations Over Tariff.

PARIS, July 8.—Deputy Chaumet proposed in the Chamber to-day that the Government open diplomatic negotiations with foreign countries for the equitable adjustment of tariff differences, and in the meantime postpone consideration of the bill.

M. Cruppi, the minister of Commerce, announced that the Government would conduct such negotiations as were deemed useful, but would not consider itself bound by the action of the Chamber.

The first portion of M. Chaumet's motion was adopted, but the second part, that for the postponement of the consideration of the bill, was defeated by a vote of 425 to 144.

PERSIAN REBELS TO JOIN

Bakhtiari Tribesmen and Nationalists Expect to Effect Juncture Soon.

TEHERAN, July 8.—Gen. Liakhaff, the Military Governor of Teheran, has received information that the Bakhtiari tribesmen are within ten miles of Kerraj, and that they expect to effect a junction with the Nationalists immediately.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 8.—Further detachments of the Russian expedition from Baku landed at Enzeli, a Persian seaport on the Caspian, last night, and the remainder of the force will land this morning. The troops will proceed immediately for Kaskin, a town ninety miles northwest of Teheran.

The expedition is commanded by Gen. Dobvor Mussnitsky, who has strict orders not to intervene in the fighting between Gen. Liakhoff and the Bakhtiari tribesmen. In case of the defeat of Liakhoff's brigade, Gen. Liakhoff and the other Russian officers will be afforded protection on the same terms as other Europeans.

TABRIZ, Persia, July 8.—Satar Khan, the Constitutionalist leader, is preparing to leave here for Constantinople. Satar Khan took refuge in the Turkish Consulate on the entry of the Russian troops into the city, but latterly he has begun to fear for his safety.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

BUDAPEST, July 8.—Dr. Alexander Wekerle has been reappointed Premier of Hungary and the other members of his Cabinet to their respective offices.

BERLIN, July 8.—Nothing is known in official circles here regarding the report emanating from the naval headquarters at Kiel that the Emperor of Russia will visit Emperor William at Kiel.

PEKING, July 8.—Prince Chun, the Regent of China, received to-day Tang-Shao-Yi, who has just returned from a tour of the world. He has been made expectant vice president of one of the Imperial boards, which is interpreted as meaning that his services are not recognized by the Chinese government.

KING URGES SPECIALIZING.

Says Britain's Very Existence Depends on Scientific Technical Training.

LONDON, July 8.—In laying the foundation stone of the new buildings of the Imperial College of Science and Technology at South Kensington to-day, King Edward encouraged the campaign in favor of higher scientific education, to the lack of which most public speakers here are in the habit of attributing England's loss of ground in her industrial race with America and Germany. After emphasizing the "supreme importance" of the highest specialized instruction in science, especially in its application to industry, the King said:

"I feel more and more convinced as time goes on that prosperity, and even the very safety of the existence of our country, depends on the quality of scientific technical training of those who are to guide and control our industries. With the present rapid growth of knowledge specialism of a high order is necessary to success."

WHEN I AM RICH

A NOVEL By ROY MASON.

IF you were dead broke—and had no job—and insufficient clothes—and nothing to eat—and you were too proud to go to your friends—and you wanted to get married—what would you do?

The hero of this novel wins out because he is an optimist. He wheels a truck on a river dock—buys expensive clothes on a bluff—rents an $18,000 apartment on his check—wins a big bet—gets a job on Wall Street—builds a railroad on his nerve—catches the Twentieth Century Limited by throwing snow balls—utilizes a hippopotamus for a chaperon—and wins his lady love. In a word he is irresistible. The story is wholesome, breezy, humorous and the conclusion is intensely satisfactory.

If such a story appeals to you take a look at it in any book store.

PIRATES SET BACK BY M'GRAW'S TEAM

Pitcher Wiltse Holds Them to One Run, but Willis Can't Stop the Giants.

MURRAY'S HIT WINS GAME

Drives a Three-Bagger Over Centrefielder's Head and Doyle and McCormick Romp Home.

New York's steady climb toward the top of the National League pennant pole advanced at double speed yesterday, for the home team won by a score of 5 to 1 on the Polo Grounds, and did so at the expense of the League leader. Pittsburg grappled the Giants on their own soil in the opening game of a series that is expected to be an epoch in the history of the 1909 championship. Twenty thousand persons were there to witness the struggle. All were primed for a battle to be fought furiously play by play, probably with a one-run margin for the victor. Homeric deeds were looked for on the part of Hans Wagner, Tommy Leach, Fred Clarke, and other famous Pirates. Fandom was fairly confident, for it knew Manager McGraw had keyed up his men to a pitch that meant they would give the Smoky City team a hard tussle. Yet the most ardent adherents of the local club were not without dread of the bold Buccaneers, who were 110 points ahead in the race for the flag, and thousands there were, no doubt, who would have been satisfied with a tie as the outcome of the first day's encounter.

Instead of which, it turned out that George Wiltse was one too many for the van of the pennant procession, and his support was eight more. Johnny McGraw's star southpaw had an assortment of puzzles the Pirates couldn't solve, whereas the Giants quickly got to the bottom of Willis's whole bag of tricks. The Harlem batsmen performed the unusual feat in the very first round of making only one hit and getting three runs with an error to aid them. New York's hit in the opening skirmish, it's true, was a three-bagger, and its effectiveness was due to combination with a base on balls, Willis's wide throw to second, and a sacrifice. But even without the sacrificial fly that brought in the third run, that triple made by Murray, snatched the advantage from the visitors, who scored once in their first time at bat and were unable to get a man around the bases again in all the rest of the game.

The fortunes of war, by the way, almost robbed New York of that same Murray's valued services for a while. Stealing second in the eighth, Red went into violent collision with Wagner, who had stooped suddenly in an attempt to take Gibson's low throw. When the burst of dust settled, Murray was flat on his back across the base, and was unconscious, while Wagner was stamping around and gripping his left arm viciously. After a brief intermission, though, the stunned baserunner came to his senses and the infielder subdued the smart in his arm sufficiently to go on earning his bank President's salary. But Red glowered at Hans and Hans gloomed at Red for several seconds, while Umpire O'Day was shooing McGraw's men off the field so play could be resumed. Theirs was a mighty shock, and they were pardonable for having their tempers a little out of plumb.

Umpires Emslie and O'Day had a hard time getting the game under way, for a long low rakish dog with which Hans Wagner frolicked in the course of practice wasn't willing to leave the field when the gong rang and had to be herded to the bench. The pup ran out on the diamond when Bridwell was batting in the first inning and stayed there until he was scooped up in a player's arms and carried off with all four legs going. Nor was he suppressed for long. When Wagner faced Wiltse in the third round the dog romped about the infield so persistently that Hank O'Day, despite his notorious leaning to leniency, felt constrained to send him to the clubhouse. The joy of the more lighthearted spectators may be imagined when it is added that the canine mascot again broke his parole and gamboled all over the foul ground every time he escaped from the arms of a player detailed as his keeper.

Pittsburg appeared to be rich in the luck often attending League leaders, for with one out in the first inning Leach sent a long fly to left that was fair because it corromed off the bleacher fence. Clarke flied to Bridwell, but Leach tallied on Wagner's drive to centre for a base, Honus taking second on the throw-in. Then O'Hara caught Storke's high one, and runmaking by the Pirates was at an end.

A man was down in the same round, too, when Doyle went to first on four wide pitches. Willis stopped McCormick's grounder and failed in an attempt to throw out Larry at second, both Giants being safe on the choice. Larry and Harry crossed the plate three feet apart on Murray's triple to left centre, McCormick fairly pushing Doyle along the path. O'Hara's sacrifice fly to Leach scored Red. Before Devlin died at first the score stood 3 to 1 in New York's favor.

The McGrawites got another run in the second on hits by Schlei and Tenney, with Wiltse's sacrifice sandwiched between them. From that point the progress of the players was largely processional until the sixth, when the Giants earned another run on O'Hara's single and Devlin's double, after which both sides ended the game with visible reluctance. The score:

Brooklyn Beaten by One Run.

Wild pitching of Bell intermingled with fumbles of McMillan and Alperman, were chiefly responsible for the defeat of the Brooklyns by Clark Griffith's team from Cincinnati yesterday by a score of 9 runs to 8. The Brooklyns made a bold bid for victory in the ninth inning, when Alperman hit into right field, scoring Burch, and Hummel also crossed the plate because the returned ball went into the Cincinnati's bench. Hummel however, was sent back to third, but scored on a fumble by Gasper, who had relieved Campbell. It was Tim Jordan's try at the bat, and then followed Manager Lumley and McElveen, neither of whom connected with the ball. Because of Umpire Klem's change of decision in the ninth inning the Brooklyn Club has decided to protest the game. The score:

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

DETROIT, July 8.—Krause won his ninth straight game, Detroit being unable to hit him except in the eighth inning. Three double plays earlier in the game saved possible scoring. Willett was very wild. Despite seven passes in as many innings the contest would have gone to a tie but for triples by Davis and Baker with two out in the eighth inning. The visitors stole bases easily on Stanage, and their fielding was more certain than Detroit's. Score:

Flanagan After New Record.

John Flanagan, the Irish-American giant, will attempt to break the world's hammer-throw record at the big athletic carnival of the American Athletic Club at Celtic Park, Long Island City, on Sunday. Flanagan holds the world's record of 180 feet, made at the American League Park, June 26, on which occasion he made a throw of 185 feet, which was not allowed on account of a foul. He is certain he has not yet reached his limit, and will endeavor to prove it. Martin J. Sheridan expects to establish a new record for the discus. In addition to these two champions in the weight events, P. McDonald, Matt McGrath and S. P. Gillies will be among the contestants in the hammer, discus and shot. The Gaelic football championship of the East will be decided after the field and track events between two of the best teams in the Eastern States.

Ford Car Racing to New York.

SEATTLE, Wash., July 8.—The Ford racing car that won the Guggenheim Cup and purse in the New York to Seattle race, started for New York via San Francisco at noon to-day. The car, which came to Seattle from New York in 22 days 55 minutes, will try to establish a new record between San Francisci and New York. The route from San Francisco will be that of the Central and Union Pacific to Granger, thence through Wyoming, Kansas City, Chicago and Buffalo.

FITZHERBERT BEATS KEENE'S HILARIOUS

Ethelbert Colt Finishes First; Alone, in Race for the Advance Stakes.

WINNER MADE HIS OWN PACE

Julia Powell, Odds-On Favorite in First Race, Has a Fatal Fall on Last Turn at Sheepshead Bay.

The rivalry between the best of the three-year olds, S. C. Hildreth's Fitzherbert and James R. Keene's Hilarious, for the championship of their age, came to the test in the chief event of the programme at the Sheepshead Bay track yesterday, and Fitzherbert won in a style that made a sorry figure of Hilarious. Except for the few strides immediately after the start, when Hilarious, with the advantage at the break, was in front, Fitzherbert made his own running at a terrific pace and won all alone, only cantering when he finished the mile and five-sixteenths course, eight lengths before Hilarious.

The three-year olds met in the race for the Advance Stakes for three-year olds and upward, but the prestige of the pair kept out the older horses, and Effendi, another three-year-old, with Hilarious and Fitzherbert, made up the field in the original list of entries. When Effendi was scratched John E. Madden added his colt Fayette, also three years old, as a forlorn hope, and when the call to the post was sounded the three that assembled were the trio that in the Spring were rated as the pick of the horses of their age in the country.

Hilarious broke best, and was clear of his rivals when he passed the starting post, but Scoville held him, and he went away hardly more than cantering, while Fitzherbert bounced out and went to racing at once, carrying such a pace that he rushed past Hilarious in a few strides, the change of places that took place then being the only change in the race. When Fitzherbert took the lead he drew clear in the first half furlong. Scoville, on Hilarious, let the Keene colt gallop on after him, though he improved his pace a trifle, while Fayette was content with third place. In that order they ran to the far turn, Fitzherbert drawing further and further away, and on the far turn slipping out so far in front that the last hope for Hilarious was gone. The Keene colt, with Scoville at work on him, dropped further away at each stride, and whipped out, lost ground until Fitzherbert was pulled up at the finish, Fayette being beaten far off, last.

The time looked as ordinary as the race seemed one sided, but the fractional time showed a singularly fast race until Fitzherbert was brought to a canter at the end, the first quarter being done in 0:23 1-5, the half in 0:46 4-5, three-quarters in 1:11 2-5, seven furlongs in 1:24 2-5, mile in 1:38, mile and a furlong in 1:51 4-5, and mile and a quarter in 2:04 3-5.

The race was the first defeat of the season for Hilarious, and the result left no room for question between Hilarious and Fitzherbert.

In the opening race, Julia Powell, starting as an odds-on favorite, in a field of eight horses, and ridden by Butwell, raced well up with the leaders to the middle of the turn into the stretch, where Lilypad crossed and jostled her, Julia Powell then stumbling and falling, with the field coming on behind her. The mare broke her shoulder in the fall, and was destroyed, but Butwell escaped uninjured. Lilypad stopped after jostling the favorite, and Ida D., one of the long chances of the race, closed from the rear and won by a neck on the post from Adriuche and Imitator, all abreast. The summaries:

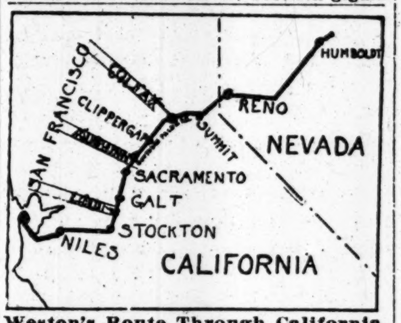
Written Exclusively for THE NEW YORK TIMES By EDWARD PAYSON WESTON.

Special to The New York Times.

SUMMIT, Cal., July 8.—Leaving Reno at 6 o'clock last evening, where they gave me a great send-off, I walked to Verdi and then slept five hours. At 3:30 this morning I started for Truckee, and passed through the most beautiful canyon in the world, crossing the line into California at 4:58 A. M. The scenery is simply grand. The Southern Pacific Railroad, running beside the Truckee River, between gigantic mountains, presents a panorama. The air is chilly, though bracing and the walking is excellent. I never felt so well and hearty in my life.



Weston's Route Through California.

On arriving at Truckee I found Mr. Brown, who had been assigned by Supt. Sheridan to guide me past the forty-two miles of snow sheds over the Sierra Nevada Mountains, the top of which I reached at 6 o'clock this evening, forty-nine miles. I shall go on to Cisco, fourteen miles further, making sixty-three miles before 10:30 to-night.

BRIGHTON TRACK LEASED.

Twenty-four Hour Race to be Held on July 30-31.

The Brighton Beach race track has been saved to sport, at least for a time, and this season will see a series of important automobile races run over the track by the sea. It was announced yesterday that the property had been leased to the Motor Racing Association and that a series of racing tournaments on broader lines than ever before attempted will be held.

There is to be a twenty-four-hour race over the course July 30 and 31. Workmen will begin immediately to put the track in racing condition. At the meet which begins July 30 there will also be a distance race for small cars preceding the big event. The twenty-four-hour race will be limited to sixteen of the best stock cars manufactured in Europe and America. More than half that number have already been pledged, it is stated, and the indications are that the list will be filled immediately the entry blanks are issued.

The Motor Racing Association is composed of automobile men interested in the trade, and the track meets will be conducted on business principles. Every class and type of car manufactured will be catered to, it is said, and the races will range in distance from one kilometer to the twenty-four-hour events.

Under the lease of the Motor Racing Association the demolition of the Brighton Beach property has been ordered stopped and work upon the repairing and rebuilding of the mile track is to begin to-day. When completed the course will be practically new. The turns will be well banked to permit of high speed with safety, and the grand stand stretch will be widened in expectation of hair-raising finishes. The fences which have been torn down are to be replaced and a new and commodious field stand is to be erected.

As twelve of the best-known makes of domestic and foreign cars are represented by members of the association, that number at least will form a nucleus of every meet promoted. The entry list, however, is to be open to the world, and non-members will be treated with equal consideration with members.

ON THE TENNIS COURTS.

Robert D. Wrenn and George L. Wrenn, Jr., engaged Edwin P. Larned and his impromptu partner, Alfred Badley, yesterday in the feature match of the third day of the doubles for the Westchester Cups on the turf courts of the Country Club of Westchester. Six times in the second set the Wrenn brothers were within a point of the match only to lose at 5—7, 8—6 and 6—5. Harold H. Hackett and Raymond D. Little, the internationalists, won the other contest, defeating C. Frederick Watson, Jr., and E. M. Smith, 6—3 and 6—3.

Mrs. S. F. Weaver and Richard H. Palmer won the final of the mixed doubles event yesterday in the tournament of the East Jersey League on the courts of the Elizabeth Town and Country Club, Elizabeth, N. J. In the final they defeated Miss Edith B. Handy and R. L. James, 6—3 and 6—4.

In the men's doubles Palmer, doubled with G. Lorraine Wyeth, reached the final round. They defeated Dean Mathey and R. A. West, 8—6 and 6—2.

Bronxville Tournament scores:
Challenge Cup Mens' Singles.—Fourth Round—Robert M. Beckley defeated Mortimer S. Weil, 2—6, 6—3, 6—4.

Doubles.—First Round—Dr. J. William Rosenbaum and William H. Connell defeated J. C. Tomlinson and F. P. Fuller, 6—3, 6—3; Paul Foerster and H. L. Ehrich defeated George S. Groesbeck and partner, by default; Robert M. Beckley and Dimon E. Roberts defeated Charles Edwards and partner½ by default; R. L. Baggs and George S. Croesbeck defeated G. S. Goodrich and S. Stewart, 6—3, 6—4; W. T. Starr and A. S. Chadburn defeated A. C. Bostwick and Artemus Holmes, by default; Sheppard Homans and Edwin P. Fischer defeated Walter Merrill Hall and William B. Cragin, Jr., by default.
Second Round—F. E. Ferris and E. E. Beckman defeated Norman G. Johnson and C. M. Barnsby, by default; Julio M. Steinacher and Roy O. Ritchey defeated R. L. Baggs and George S. Groesbeck, 6—0, 6—8, 6—1; Edgar F. Lee and Benjamin M. Phillips defeated George M. Church and A. Mansfield Kidder, 6—4, 1—6, 6—3; Morris S. Clark and Abraham Bassford, Jr., defeated Paul Foerster and H. L. Ehrich, 6—2, 6—0; W. T. Starr and A. S. Chadburn defeated Sheppard Homans and Edwin P. Fischer, by default.
Third Round—D. Britton and H. S. Robertson defeated W. T. Starr and A. S. Chadburn, 6—1, 4—6, 6—4.

SCHOONER ATLANTIC WINS ALOHA CUPS

Commodore Marshall's Big Auxiliary Takes Prizes Given by Mrs. James.

FINE FINISH IN LONG RACE

Cleveland Dodge's Schooner Corona Leads N. Y. Y. C. Fleet to Newport, Followed by Vanderbilt's Aurora.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 8.—A grand sailing breeze characterized the finish of the 111-mile race of the New York Yacht Club this morning from Glen Cove to Newport. From the committee boat, The Limited, off Brenton Reef, the finishing line, the first boat to be sighted coming toward the line scudding along at a fast pace under a strong southwest wind was Cleveland H. Dodge's fast schooner Corona. Not far behind her was Cornelius Vanderbilt's sloop Aurora, with her big sails drawing magnificently and heading straight as an arrow for the mark. Almost on even terms was Commodore Wilson Marshall's big three-masted auxiliary schooner, the flagship of the Larchmont Yacht Club, while in the distance could be discerned the big sloops Istalena and Weetamoe.

In the order mentioned these five boats passed the lightship, Corona crossing the line at 7:25:06. Aurora, admirably handled by W. Butler Duncan, Jr., throughout the long night race, came in ten minutes later, the Atlantic close at her heels. Later in the day, when all of the sixteen boats that started had finished, Commodore Marshall was heartily congratulated both by Commodore James and Mrs. James on the flagship Aloha for his grand race. The Atlantic wins the Aloha cups given by Mrs. James for the larger class of auxiliaries, beating the Aloha by more than three hours, while the third auxiliary, Enchantress, was so late that she was not timed. George F. Peabody's Iris won the Aloha prizes for the smaller class, having a sail over.

Under the easterly and northerly winds that prevailed from the start the fleet worked along slowly down the Sound until about 9 o'clock last night, when the breeze freshened from the northwest, and early this morning it switched again, coming strong from the southwest, giving the skippers and crews something to do, and affording as sporty a run for the last few miles as the most ardent yachtsman could desire.

George M. Pynchon's Istalena struck a rock while off Point Judith and immediately went to Bristol Harbor after the race, anchoring off the Herreshoff yards. No evidence of any material damage could be noticed, but Mr. Pynchon gave orders to have the boat hauled out to ascertain if there is any serious injury.

The Corona wins the cups for schooners, while Dallas B. Pratt's Sea Fox was second. In the smaller sloops Cord Meyer's Altair made a splendid run, coming in about an hour after Conora, and leading Irondequoit, which won the cup for Class M sloops by eight seconds at the line. On corrected time Corona beat the Sea Fox by about 49 minutes. Aurora beat Istalena by 16 minutes and 23 seconds. Altair beat her only rival, Mimosa II., by 6 minutes 30 seconds, while Irondequoit defeated Dorwina by 30 minutes.

The racing fleet is anchored in Newport Harbor to-night, and practically all of them will compete to-day in the special races arranged by the Newport Yacht Racing Association. The summaries:

BELGIANS' ROWING CUP.

Cambridge Defeated in Grand Challenge Final by a Length.

HENLEY, England, July 8.—The final of the Grand Challenge Cup was rowed off here to-day and won by the Club Nautique de Gand of Belgium, which defeated the Jesus College crew of Cambridge by a bare length in the fast time of 7 minutes and 8 seconds.

The Diamond Sculls, the second biggest event of the Henley regatta, was won by A. A. Stuart of the Kingston Rowing Club, who defeated Rudolph Lucas of the Mayence Rowing Club easily. Lucas broke down and gave up at the mile post, when Stuart was two lengths ahead. The winner's time was 8 minutes 31 seconds.

Merriman Wins Again in Golf.

GREENWICH, Conn., July 8.—The pace quickened perceptibly to-day in the second round of match play at the eleventh annual Connecticut State Golf championship. Three of the four matches in the first division were closely contested. The keenest as that in which Samuel J. Graham, of Greenwich, went nineteen holes to beat C. G. Waldo, Jr., of Bridgeport.

In the contest between B. P. Merriman, of Yale, and N. R. Bronson, of New Haven, the former won, one up. The medal totals were spoiled by Merriman, the present State champion, who had to pick up twice in going out, but the ending was tense.

SHAPING THE CORPORATION TAX.

The amendment to the Corporation Tax bill which Senator ALDRICH accepted on Wednesday strikes out the exemption of holding corporations, and therefore frankly opens the way to double taxation. This exemption excluded from the operations of the tax sums received by a corporation "as dividends upon the stock of other corporations." The constituent companies of the United States Steel Corporation or of the American Telephone and Telegraph Corporation will pay the 2 per cent. tax upon their entire net incomes, and the holding corporation which controls them will pay a tax at the same rate upon its income derived from their shares. This is double taxation, of course, but for that reason, we suppose, the bill would be all the more acceptable to a large majority of those who advocate its enactment.

The amendment exempting labor organizations, fraternal beneficiary societies, orders, and associations, building and loan associations, and associations organized for religious, charitable, or educational purposes does not exempt mutual life insurance companies organized without share capital. Mr. FRELINGHUYSEN, President of the Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company of Newark, in a letter to Senator KEAN, printed in The Congressional Record of July 2, calls attention to "the evidently unfair distinction in the corporation tax law as proposed between ordinary corporations not organized for profit and mutual life insurance companies, likewise not organized for profit." Mutual insurance companies having no share capital and dividing no profits among owners will still be taxable upon their incomes, although their profits are returned to policy holders in the form of annual dividends. In the view of the enthusiastic supporters of this new tax, however, any insurance company is merely an aggregation of wealth, and therefore should be made to "put up." Of course, it is illogical to exempt other mutual benefit associations and include mutual life companies, but logic is not the essence of this bill.

In the Senate debate the question was raised and much discussed, whether the Federal Government has the power to tax the privilege of doing business as a corporation under a charter granted by a State. Senator RAYNER declared that he would not vote for the bill if it were specifically a tax upon the charter or privilege of doing business as a corporation, although he quoted the decision of the Supreme Court in the case of the 10 per cent. tax laid upon the issue of circulating notes by State banks and laid with the intent to destroy that power of issue, in which the court said that "it cannot be admitted that franchises granted by a State are necessarily exempt from taxation, since, when not conferred to give effect to some reserved power of the State," such franchises would "seem to be as properly objects of taxation as any other property." The bill dodges the point, however, defining the impost as "a special excise tax with respect to the carrying on or doing business by such corporation." This is with the exception of a single word, the language employed by the court in the Spreckels Sugar case. The obvious intent of copying that language is to escape the Constitutional point.

However, in HALE vs. HENKEL, better known as the Tobacco cases, the Supreme Court said that, while the Federal Government did have power over franchises granted by the State, so far as they related to inter-State business, "it is not intended to intimate that it has a general visitatorial power over State corporations." This implies a limitation. But if the principle be once admitted and established that the Federal Government may lay a tax upon a corporation doing business under a State charter, there can be no limitation. In MCCULLOCH vs. Maryland Chief Justice MARSHALL laid down the memorable principle that "the power to tax involves the power to destroy," and "the power to destroy may defeat and render useless the power to create." If Congress may pass a law [illegible] tax of 2 per cent. upon corpo[illegible]ated by a State, many of [illegible] business exclusively within the State, then it may under the principle enunciated by MARSHALL impose a tax of 50 or 100 per cent. upon the income of such corporations. It may destroy them altogether, and that means that the enactment of this tax bill sets up the principle that the Federal Government may completely annul the right of a State to create corporations and authorize them to do business, a right not derived from the Federal Government, but possessed by the sovereign States before the Federal Government was created.

THAW AT WHITE PLAINS.

The wealthy lunatic THAW is enjoying his annual outing. Pending an inquiry into his sanity Justice MILLS has remanded him to the Westchester County Jail at White Plains, where, dispatches yesterday reported, he is "greatly pleased with the new surroundings, which are far different from those at the Matteawan Asylum." It was in the White Plains Jail that Justice MILLS, on June 29, 1908, placed THAW despite the following protest by District Attorney WINSLOW:

> We have nowhere to put him. We cannot put him in the hospital ward, for there have been a number of escapes from there, and the Sheriff will not take the responsibility for THAW'S safety.

District Attorney JEROME also objected:

> The place for him is Matteawan. He will receive good treatment there and will be well guarded. He will have no chance to escape.

Justice DOWLING had refused to modify his order committing him to Matteawan, saying:

> The safety of the community, as well as his own, demands that THAW be kept under scientific observation and restriction.

The Prison Association through Secretary MCLAUGHLIN declared that a jail was no place for a dangerous maniac. Yet Justice MILLS chose to send THAW, not to the State Hospital for the Insane, but to the hospital ward of this jail from which there "have been a number of escapes." He has repeated the experiment this year.

The species of insanity for which THAW was committed has been pronounced incurable by eighteen of the world's leading alienists. He has uttered charges and threats against persons now living. To place him in a jail which is notoriously unsafe, when expert authority declares that even a properly constructed jail is no place for him, seems to us to be a dangerous proceeding.

FIVE CENTS TO CONEY ISLAND?

The Public Service Commission's invitation obiter that somebody should ask it to order a five-cent fare to Coney Island has been accepted promptly. The complainant says that if the Commission will issue a similar invitation regarding the other lines he will complain again and invite the benevolent activities of the Commission, which is so plainly a partisan of the people. A similar question has arisen also this week before the "up-State" Commission, which has been asked to reduce the rate on the Ticonderoga Railway. Each case has peculiarities, but they are alike in this, that the rates which are to be reduced have been fixed explicitly by statute in the one case, and in accordance with law and judicial approval in the other case. The question whether the Legislature or the Commission or the court is the final judge of railway rates is, therefore, raised in State-wide form.

There is a certain novelty about the suggestion that a question of policy and reasonableness which has been once passed upon by popular representatives can be reconsidered by appointive officers. Moreover, the ten-cent fare to Coney Island has judicially been declared just. If now the Commission can overrule statutes and judicial decisions, what limits can be discerned to its powers, and if capital cannot rely upon statutes and decisions what can it rely upon? The progress of events puts force into the words of Mr. CHOATE'S argument upon the Commission's request for the enlargement of its powers:

> There are thousands of persons who will agree with me that the Public Service Commissions already have altogether too much power. They haven't the slightest consideration for anybody. They don't care anything about the actual owners of a corporation. They forget that they were created to be supervisory, and not managerial. The Commissions are seeking to substitute themselves for the charters of the companies.

And it may now be added for the Legislature and the courts. However it may be regarding the Commission's powers of repealing statutes, or its retention of such power, if it possess it, there are natural and irremovable limitations to its activities. It did not receive from the Legislature what that body could not give, namely, superiority to economic laws. Commercial laws will still act, regardless of what the Commissions, and the Legislature, and the courts may do, independently or together. Suppose, for instance, that the Commission orders a five-cent fare to Coney Island over the road included in the pending complaint. Is it not clear that the defendant road will do all the business which the reduction can influence? And will not the increased travel produce that density of traffic which the Commission has just decided justifies a ten-cent fare? Is it not clear that the diversion of traffic from habitual and natural routes produces that destructive and uneconomic competition in restraint of trade which the New York as well as the Federal anti-trust law is designed to suppress?

Moreover the Commission, by establishing a five-cent fare, will involve itself in contradictions and difficulties from which it will find it difficult to escape. The mixed ten-cent and five-cent fare to which its words commit it cannot be deduced by any logical process from a fare proportioned to the principle of physical valuation. The allowed profit on capital admittedly employed might justify any average rate of fare, but no reasoning can justify a lawful rate varied by such business considerations as the roads might themselves apply to varying conditions or classes of traffic. Law is uniform and universal and permanent or it is not law. A lawful rate which shall vary whenever the valuation of the railway's assets varies, or whenever its profit is either above or below 6 per cent., is an innovation which cannot be conceded all at once. And if conceded in the case of any one company it must be conceded in all cases. That means chaos. There would have to be as many rates to Coney Island as the application of the principle requires.

THE PROMISE OF PROSPERITY.

The country now seems within finger-reach of harvesting more dollars from more bushels than was ever done before. It is a promise, not a certainty, but the promise is as fair as reasonable men require for the adjustment of their affairs. This country has never yet harvested a three billion bushel corn crop. This year it has planted seven million more acres than it harvested in 1908, which was the maximum. And the condition is seven points better than a year ago. There seems no question left but by how much the record shall be beaten. And the price is at high level. There is thus a chance that the crop will be worth over two billion dollars, as well as a fair prospect that the bushels will exceed three billions.

The season opened discouragingly for Winter wheat, but it has made such improvement that its condition is now better than for several recent years, and not very much below the record year of 1901. If it were not for the abandonment of Winter-killed acres there would be a large yield of this crop. As it is the shortage in breadth to be reaped is recouped by the gain in Spring wheat. The combined yield promises to be about the same as last year, larger than the year before, and about the third on record. But the price ruling makes this year's crop the most valuable known. This is the result of the closeness with which consumption has pressed upon production, so that there is a buyer for every bushel. There will be 55,000,000 more bushels of oats this year, and perhaps the round billion will be gathered for the first time.

Other crops were not reported yesterday. They are known to be doing well with the exception of cotton. There are two reasons for this bumper promise. One is that the farmers are farming better, perceiving that money spent in fertilizers and labor spent in cultivation are the best sort of investment, and not mere parting with good money. Moreover it has been almost ideal weather for plant growth. The dangers to our crops are heat and drought. Both are contingencies still to be faced, but they lose their terrors largely when a cool, wet Spring has produced a well-rooted plant and growth with a good constitution.

There's many a slip, it is true, but it is not premature to begin preparations for a heartfelt Thanksgiving. The ultimate consumer may be an object of some solicitude, but it is to be remembered that the transportation and manufacture and preparation for consumption of these bounteous yields will furnish the wage fund which will temper even the prices of food products. Our farmers are simply rolling in wealth. To their unusual income must be added the "unearned increments" of their farms, making an aggregate of new wealth almost surpassing computation.

"R. H." AND HIS VICTIMS.

We have no desire to deride the few men of learning in this age who hold to a spiritual conception of the universe, but when, like Sir OLIVER LODGE and Prof. WILLIAM JAMES, they carry their theories so far as to accept, or at least to dally with, supposed communications from the spirit world through trance mediums, their experiences will inevitably be compared with those of ROBERT DALE OWEN and LUTHER R. MARSH. OWEN received with an "open mind" the antics and sayings of the materialized Katy King, and lived to see the medium he had trusted thoroughly exposed as a common impostor. MARSH'S guide among the disembodied spirits turned out to be a low criminal.

Prof. JAMES is not willing to declare that the "R. H." who maundered and chattered with the tongue of Mrs. PIPER is the veritable soul of his dead friend, Dr. RICHARD HODGSON, but obviously he would like to believe just that. To the practical mind Mrs. PIPER is either a rank impostor, kindred to BROWNING'S Sludge, and nearly all the other mediums who have forced themselves into public notice since the era of the Fox sisters, or a neurotic person subject to self-hypnosis. Her talk in her trance, as quoted in yesterday's TIMES, from the report of the proceedings of the American Society of Psychical Research, reads like the unutterable nonsense spoken by persons in the hypnotic trance, in real life, not in psychological romance or the vaudeville stage. Some of it must have sounded like the rambling of a phonograph out of order. But in the gift of evasion of direct questions "R. H." closely resembled the spirits called up in dark séances by all the fraudulent mediums.

The story of the Putnam children in the Adirondack camp might have been learned beforehand by any medium with a slight previous acquaintance with Prof. JAMES. We all know that the impostors manage to absorb facts about their victims' lives. What Dr. HODGSON said when MARTHA PUTNAM climbed on his back and put her hands over his eyes was: "It sounds like MARTHA but it feels like HENRY BOWDITCH," who weighed 200 pounds. Recalling this incident in the spirit state, "R. H." remembered that he said: "It feels like Elizabeth, but it sounds like ——." Clearly if she had ever heard the story, the medium had missed the joke, as she would be very likely to do. This seems an utterly trivial incident, however, to base one's belief, not in immortality, but in the power of disembodied spirits of the dead to communicate with the living, and it is the only thing half way intelligible in all the maundering.

Since PLATO, and long before the Gnostics, men have believed with varying degrees of conviction in "a divine part" of man which survived bodily death, but a half century of "modern spiritualism" has done nothing at all to strengthen that belief, or justify the yearning for immortality. Of old the disembodied spirits were formidable, bringing portents, avenging crimes, driving men to lunacy. The unseen ghosts of the Psychological Researchers are a poor, aimless lot, occasionally droll, but never convincing to anybody who has not made up his mind to the honesty of the medium. Mrs. PIPER is, indeed, so ineffective as a medium that we are willing to believe, from the available testimony, that she is self-deluded. So, it seems, are Prof. JAMES and Prof. HYSLOP.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

No Diplomatic Problems Are Involved. Were it not for the multiplicity of details, not easy to invent, which were given in the dispatches telling about the maltreatment of a British flag up in Toronto on Wednesday by what is described as "a party of American tourists" the yarn could be dismissed as either wholly false or a wild exaggeration of a trivial accident. Forced to admit that something of the kind probably happened, that a flag really was dragged through the mud with offensive intention, one can still protest that the fellows who did it were neither Americans nor tourists in any representative or legitimate sense.

They may have come from the United States, but they belonged to the great international brotherhood of vicious imbeciles which is distributed impartially through all countries and belongs to none any more than does the primordial slime of every sea to any one of them. There are roughs in every great city that would be capable of committing the acts reported, simply in the hope of starting a row. There is a type, known the world over, of the college boy, unlicked cubs with no sense and little hope of ever developing any, that might think it funny to annoy and disgust people in such a way. The idle rich anywhere might supply a few half-wit degenerates for whom such dull jesting might be possible; but for the Canadians to give the episode even an instant's consideration as a wrong suffered at the hands of "Americans" would be a piece of folly so grotesque as to be unpardonable.

Why the Torontonians refrained from an immediate and proper, because effective, action in the case is more than we can understand. They might have been sure that real Americans—the kind with an honest claim to the name and represented by President TAFT and Gov. HUGHES when talking to and about Canadians at the Champlain celebrations—would not have objected to anything Toronto did, so long as it did not involve the sending of flag-defiling reptiles back into United States territory. Bloodshed, of course, would have emphasized contempt unduly by treating it as indignation, but anything else within the large limits of reason would have been permissible, and, with a hinterland so chilly and so extensive as the Canadians have to the north of them, they ought without trouble to have found a place to put such cattle where they would annoy civilized folk no more for some time. The neighborhood of the Great Slave Lake would have done finely, and there would have been no anxious inquiries from this side the line as to what had become of those as happily lost to memory as to sight.

A Poet Well Out of the Common. Judging by a too brief excerpt from the poem read at Plattsburg on Wednesday, its author, DANIEL L. CADY, not only far surpassed in rhyme and rhythm the other and better-known poets who contributed mellifluous numbers to the commemorative exercises of a festal week, but he actually succeeded in performing the next-to-impossible task of making some "occasional" verses which had sense as well as sound in them. It is with an anxiety verging over into shame that we confess never to have heard of Mr. CADY before, for certainly it was no inexpert, and, therefore, no inexperienced, hand that wrote—

Sweet were these waters, tasted by CHAMPLAIN,
And healthful, sweet, and clear they must remain.

That, now, most beautifully combines history with prophecy of the kind that intends to have itself fulfilled or know the reason why, and, uttered, as it was, in a region thickly dotted with pulp mills, it was doubtless understood instantly by everybody within hearing of the poet's voice as the announcement of a sanitary ultimatum worthy of the place and time. If the owners of any of the mills were listening they must have glanced apprehensively at the Governor's face as the resonant lines pealed forth, and we confidently assume that the expression they saw there told them that the time for reforming their evil and filthy ways is come.

Again, note what Mr. CADY found it in his heart to say in oblique but obvious reference to that great subject, the tariff:

Fair were these shores in virgin beauty then,
But fairer now, set with the homes of men.
And fairer, happier shall they be when Trade
Again resumes the way from which she strayed—

which will be, of course, when Canada and the United States each stops fining herself by imposing duties on the things she wants to buy of her neighbor.

We are going to read the whole of Mr. CADY'S poem the moment we can get hold of it, and we have an impression so strong as to amount to a belief that it will prove to be worth reprinting in full in the columns of THE TIMES. There's surely something more to it than pious punk passing itself off for patriotism.

Preparing for a Conflict. So the Cubans won't arm their little army with guns bought in the United States, and their reason for refusal is that if they did, and later they had occasion to go to war with us, they would have difficulty in getting ammunition that fitted! Well, the logic of the argument is unquestionably straight and conclusion follows premise with beautiful accuracy.

The caution and foresight thus displayed is calculated to refute the charge so often made by prejudiced observers of things Cuban that the inhabitants of the island haven't the minds required for running governments and performing other hard and serious tasks. And undoubtedly they can get some real good guns in England, Germany, France, or any one of half a dozen other countries, and as much ammunition to go with the guns as they are able and willing to pay cash for. Then, of course, they will be all ready for a war with the United States—ready, that is, if we play fair and don't land more than a single detachment of marines at a time.

But, come to think of it, what are the Cubans going to fight us about? Everything considered, the United States has treated them rather well, so far, and shows no present inclination to do anything unkinder than to give them a chance to be a free and independent people—a chance which they certainly wouldn't have under any other than the existing conditions.

"CASTING" ANCHOR.

The Expression Has Been Used in All Languages.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apropos of the criticism in your Thursday's edition of my use of the expression "cast anchor," I shall be greatly interested to read the reply of your staff-purist. Obviously anchors are not "cast" to-day. But the disagreement between fact and description did not apply when the expression was first coined. Then anchors were thrown from deck, "cast" into the sea. (Iliad I., 431. They cast out the mooring stones.) All languages, whose terms I now recall, bear witness to this.

The French—Jeter l'ancre.

German—Auswerfer der anker.

Scandinavian, (Danish, Swedish, &c.)—Kasta anker.

Spanish—Echar el ancla.

And so one might run the gamut of all European and doubtless Asiatic languages. Probably the term goes back to a period antecedent to the separation of the Indo-Europeans from their kindred.

It is at any rate one of many illustrations of an idea so deeply rooted in usage, so rich in history, that it cannot, and in my judgment should not be deracinated, even though it no longer describes with pin-point accuracy.

CHARLES SPRAGUE SMITH.

Veal Harbor, Me., July 5, 1909.

When Anchors Were "Cast."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Smith is entirely right in the use of his term "cast anchor." It is one of the many instances of the survival of a word or term long after the thing to which it was applied has ceased to exist. The term "cast anchor" goes back to the days of small ships, when there were neither hawse pipes nor catheads, and the anchor was literally cast overboard. To this day the anchor is cast from small boats. The term survives in literature, although the seafaring man simply anchors instead of casts anchor. An analogous survival of a word is the term quarterdeck, which is still in use, although the thing itself went out of existence years ago.

Another somewhat similar case is the use of the term in tacking ship, "fore-bowline, let go and haul," when the chances are ninety-nine to one that there is no fore-bowline to let go.

The Prize Paving Squad.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Two of your correspondents have recently mentioned certain paving squads as putting up the fanciest brand of loafing in the city. I feel that a great wrong would be done our Eleventh Avenue squad at Fiftieth Street if I did not at once advance their claims to the title of being the most costly set of idlers that our grand old city is now supporting. The facial expression of the boss during the rare intervals he can be seen on the job is the envy of all of us on the avenue who have to work for a living. Here is a man whose philosophy has been found equal to the stress of life. I can suggest nothing more restful to a tired business man, who perchance is wearied earning the money to support this paving squad, than to come over and gaze on this living monument of peace and quietness, of silence and slow time.

The men on the paving squad have a rule, that two only of the six shall work while the other four look on. And I defy any one in New York City to move a leg or arm as slowly as the men of this paving squad have succeeded in doing by long practice.

Come over and see them, at Eleventh Avenue and Fiftieth Street. They are an object lesson to taxpayers and a great credit to Mayor McClellan.

Piecework for Public Laborers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a letter signed Henry Johnson, (NEW YORK TIMES, July 7,) the writer refers so aptly to the "workmen employed in repairing, working in the parks, and playing with other city work," that I feel called upon to record a recent experience at Van Cortlandt Park. The golf links were scheduled to be in condition by May 1, (none too early to begin the game,) but on May 11 the regular greens were not open and grass and dandelion puffs so high that altogether there was more work than play for us. The explanation was found when we passed two groups of workmen seated comfortably with their tools around them engaged in friendly conversation, and so remaining as long as we were in sight of them. Would not a revolution be accomplished if laborers on public works could be paid at piece work rates?

Sewer Assessments.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I noticed in yesterday's paper an article under the head of "Sewer War in Queens." In regard to the article, very likely you were not aware of the fact that there was a decision of the old General Term in this district which held that sewer assessments can be laid even though sewers were laid in streets where the title was not in the city. I haven't any doubt that if such assessments were sent to the Board of Assessors, the Corporation Counsel would advise the board that they had power to levy the assessments. If they were levied there is no power to set them aside, except to reduce them to the fair cost of the work under the statutes governing the levying of assessments.

Pacing Animals.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Potamian may be quite right in his explanation why we swing our arms, and perhaps he can explain why it is that the giraffe and llama move the legs on one side together, as does the camel, whenever it is moving fast. Why should these animals form an exception to the general rule, the more than one has a very short body and the others very long?

REINDICT CAPT. FRANKLIN.

New Proceeding Eliminates Errors in West Point Embezzlement Case.

The Federal Grand Jury returned a new indictment yesterday against Capt. Thomas Franklin, U. S. A., who was indicted several weeks ago on charges of embezzling money from cadets at the West Point Academy and also for grand larceny from the Government. Judge Hand recently sustained demurrers to the previous indictment charging embezzlement. The new indictment is framed for the purpose of meeting the points raised by the demurrers.

Capt. Franklin is under $4,000 bail awaiting his trial. His alleged defalcations aggregate $5,650.94, of which $4,831.68 represents vouchers presented to Gen. Mills and Col. Scott for approval covering commissary supplies for the Academy, which Capt. Franklin handled.

FINED FOR INSULTING FLAG.

Modern Barbara Fritchie Had Boy Arrested for Shooting at It.

Magistrate O'Connor in the Yorkville Court fined William Scanlon of 331 East Twenty-third Street $10 for insulting the American flag yesterday morning. Scanlon was accused of shooting roman candles through the flag on the night of July 5, and was summoned to court by Mrs. Henry Jennings, the owner of the flag.

Mrs. Jennings, who lives on the second floor of the house in East Twenty-third Street, said in court:

"I love the American flag. This young man deliberately shot holes in it, and I think he should be punished."

Scanlon said that there had been ill-feeling between his family and Mrs. Jennings for some time, but declared that he did not intentionally shoot holes in the flag.

"TWENTY-FOUR O'CLOCK."

Says Comparatively Few Railway Officials Favored the Idea.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I write to express to you my appreciation of your excellent comments on the so-called "Daylight Saving" proposition which Sir David Gill rightly styles "a wildcat scheme." Referring to the article which appeared on July 3, however, I wish to correct one inaccurate impression. In speaking of numbering the hours from 1 to 24 you say "the railways have always hankered to do that."

There has been no movement on the part of anyone in this country among railway officials looking to the adoption of the 24 o'clock notation since April, 1886. The suggestion then came from an outside source to the American Railway Association. The committee appointed on the subject after taking a tentative vote reported against any further action. Only a comparatively small minority of the railway officials favored the idea then, and there is no reason to suppose that a different feeling exists to-day. If the notation of time could be made over again many a reform, such as dividing the hours into one hundred instead of sixty parts, might be introduced with more or less advantage in itself. But, as you state, under present conditions it is doubtful whether the gain at best would not be more than offset by the inconvenience and annoyance which would attend the effort to make the change.

With the adoption of Uniform Standard Time in 1883, however, the case was different. Every section of the country must use one or another standard of time, the question being how large a section extending east and west is it possible to induce to use one standard. That question has been answered throughout the civilized world by its division into sections one hour apart.

From a railroad standpoint, both as affecting their practical operation and the convenience of travelers the adoption of uniform standards was essential. Their experience since 1883 has proved the utility of the present system; from this the Executive Committee of the American Railway Association, at a recent meeting, expressed its opinion, by a unanimous vote, as opposed to any departure.

IRISH REPRESENTATION.

It Does Not Represent a Sacrifice by the English.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I notice in your columns of Monday's issue that a correspondent, Kinarla, mentions the continuance of the "unduly" large number of Irish members in the British Parliament as "a great sacrifice made by England to Ireland." He is evidently ignorant of the reason for the number allotted to Ireland. It is the result of a bargain made formerly for England's benefit, which she cannot in honor now change. The number was settled by the terms of the Act of Union, which, as is well known, was passed only by bribery and corruption, for England's interests. Can Kinarla be a child of the empire to think it a sacrifice for his country to keep its pledged word? England has got to stick to her treaty; most Englishmen think she ought to do this. If Kinarla does not, it may please him to remember that by the confession of Mr. Balfour's financial commission, the report of which was issued nearly twenty years ago, England is robbing Ireland annually of about $13,000,000 by overtaxation in violation of the Act of Union.

Ireland has asked for redress in this matter, but it has continually been refused. As "one conversant with the course of British legislation and administration of Irish affairs during the past thirty years," which Kinarla evidently is not, I can assure him that England has made no "sacrifice" for Ireland. She has passed a lot of beneficial legislation; she has done much to settle the land question—for that she is being well repaid and will sacrifice nothing. But in matters of primary education, industries, emigration, and taxation she has continued to act with flagrant injustice.

New York, July 5, 1909. DUBLINER.

For Coolness on Sweltering Nights.

To those who take a cold bath each morning and therefore are not specially sensitive to the use of cold water, I can recommend the following practice for sweltering nights.

On retiring, or later, if one chooses, take his dip the same as he takes it in the morning, but instead of using a towel upon his body, don his night dress without such usage. One step further which I generally take is to sprinkle the sleeping apparel with cold water. I have also dipped this in the cold water, wrung it out, and donned it with the body still wet from the bath.

After this practice during the night and when half asleep I have been sometimes afraid that I might be taking cold, but nothing of the kind has ever happened. I have always been assured comfortable sleep and rest. I have practiced this since entering upon my seventieth year, as it is a regimen not exclusively for the young.

THE SNAPPERS.

See the mighty host advancing,
North, south, east, and west!
Ever brisk, alert, and anxious,
Never taking rest.

Seeking now the loftiest mountain,
Now some barren shore;
Now 'mid earthquake's devastation,
Or Niagara's roar.

Found at times in an ancient city,
Then where bathers shriek;
Following the great and witty,
On the slum folk, wicked, weak.

Now in the schooner "Tansy Bitters,"
Cruising a rural creek,
Posing, pestering Farmer Fennell,
And his good wife meek.

Coming, coming, hundreds, thousands!
Snap, snap, snap, click, click!
Camera fiends are on the rampage—
Catch you 'less you're quick.

PHIPPS HOSPITAL

A WORLD'S MODEL

Plans Comprise the Best Features of the Greatest in This Country and Europe.

TO TREAT MENTAL DISEASES

Patients Will Be Kept in Restraint, but It Will Be Done in Deceptive Ways.

Announcement was made yesterday that Grosvenor Atterbury, the architect, of 20 West Forty-third Street, had completed the plans for the Phipps Psychiatric Hospital at the Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, for which Henry Phipps of this city gave $500,000 early last Summer.

This clinic for the treatment on the most advanced scientific lines of those afflicted with insanity and mental disorders of varying types and degrees, physicians and alienists say, will be practically in a class by itself in this country. So truly was this felt to be the case that shortly after Mr. Phipps permitted the announcement of the gift to be made Mr. Atterbury and Dr. Adolph Meyer of 35 Mount Morris Park, this city, who was chosen by the Trustees of Johns Hopkins Hospital and University to the Directorship of the clinic, went abroad, spending two months studying the architecture and conduct of the most progressive institutions of the kind in the world, to be found in Vienna, Munich, and other Continental cities.

The plan which Mr. Atterbury has now completed is a combined result of these studies abroad by Dr. Meyer and himself. The hospital is not the reproduction of any clinic in the world, but is designed to embrace the most desirable features of all.

In the construction of the exterior of the building, however, Mr. Atterbury had little latitude, as the function of the building is desired to be as nearly as possible that of a ward of the general hospital of the university. It, therefore, seemed especially important to hospital Trustees and designer that, architecturally, it should not be conspicuous in any way, and, therefore, in its exterior treatment the building has been made to harmonize, as much as possible, with the other buildings of the Johns Hopkins Hospital. These are all quite simple in character and of a dark red brick with slate roofs and simple stone trimmings.

In the interior, however, quite the opposite theory has prevailed, and it will be as unlike the other wards of the hospital, or of any other hospital, as is compatible with the necessary practical requirements of the service. Tile, marble, and mosaic are to be omitted except where necessary for hygienic reasons, and the interior will be decorated in such finish and colors as will most effectively promote a homelike feeling and aspect. To this end fireplaces will be built in wherever practicable.

While the theory of nonrestraint will undoubtedly be practiced to the fullest extent, all the necessary safeguards will be provided, but in such a fashion as not to be noticeable, or in some attractive guise. In place of the ordinary iron guards, for example, the windows will be made safe by the use of plant shelves with small glass inclosures over them, like window conservatories, and in other cases where protection is needed it will be effected by means of metal trellises upon which vines can be trained, so as to serve both the practical and decorative purpose.

The provision for recreation and diversion of various kinds has also been considered of the utmost importance, and all possible has been made of the limited grounds for such purposes. The interior court of the building is to be developed into an informal garden, with fountains and bay trees, and the roof will be used largely for roof garden purposes, and the large recreation room, containing a stage for theatrical representations and an organ, are included on the top of the building.

The three general functions of the building comprise research, the educational and clinical departments, together with an out-patient department.

In the educational and research divisions will be these various departments: In the basement, well above ground, out-patients' waiting room, four examination rooms, and room for electrical treatment, class demonstration room, and rooms for apparatus and storage of records. On the first floor will be the main entrance and entrances for out-patients and students, as well as administration offices, laboratories, and waiting rooms for visitors and patients. The second floor rooms will comprise the library, a consultation room, a small research room, Director's suite, and the lecture hall, with seating capacity for 150. The psychological and biological laboratories will be on the third floor, with ten research rooms in all, while the fourth floor will be used for the staff quarters, photography, and animal hospital and research, with exercising spaces for patients.

JAMES A. RICHMOND'S WILL.

Former President of Broadway Railroad Leaves $175,000 to a Niece.

The will of James A. Richmond, a prominent figure in traction affairs twenty-five years ago, and at one time President of the Broadway Railroad, was filed for probate yesterday. He died in Paris, France, on June 7 last. The will shows the estate to be worth at least $175,000.

Mr. Richmond, who was unmarried, bequeathed, in trust, to his niece, Annie Snell Ingham of 1,088 Delaware Avenue, Buffalo, N. Y., 175 bonds of the Broadway Surface Railroad, par value $1,000 each, and bearing 5 per cent. interest. The testator provides that at her death 100 of the bonds are to go to his nephew, James Richmond Ingham, and the remaining 75 bonds will go to his grandniece, Helen Cloe Ingham. Anna Snell Ingham is made the residuary legatee.

Donald McKay of Englewood, N. J., and Clark L. Ingham of this city are named as executors.

W. F. WHITEHOUSE'S WILL.

The Testator Leaves Estate to Widow, Not Mentioning His Six Children.

The will of William Fitzhugh Whitehouse, formerly of this city, but living when he died in Chicago, was filed for probate yesterday. The petition gives the value of the estate at $20,000 in real estate, and personal property "estimated at $10,000."

His widow, who lives in this city, gets the entire estate, a clause in the will saying: "Fully convinced that she will make proper distribution and the best use of all property, I hereby devise all my real and personal estate of whatsoever nature to my beloved wife Frances Sheldon Whitehouse."

No mention of the six children is made in the will. His daughters, Mrs. Frances S. Ramsey and Mrs. Lily B. Coventry, are living abroad, the former in Russia, the latter in England. Three sons, William F. Edwin S. and Norman O. Whitehouse, live at the Knickerbocker Club, and another son, Henry J. Whitehouse, lives at Mount Kisco, N. Y.

The testator was a member of the Union, Knickerbocker, and University Clubs.

NEW $20,000,000 STATION.

Kansas City Council Passes Ordinance for Erection of Railway Terminal.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 8.—An ordinance was passed by the City Council last night and signed by the Mayor, legalizing the erection in Kansas City of a new union railway station.

The proposed station, it is said, will cost $20,000,000.

DIVORCE A BLESSING, FORMER JUDGE SAYS

Redounds to the Welfare of Both When Fairly Obtained, Declares H. B. Brown.

ANSWERS MGR. GIBBONS

Cannot Perceive Why Marriage Partnership Cannot Be Dissolved as Business One Is.

Special to The New York Times.

OLD POINT COMFORT, Va., July 8.—Divorce, when fairly obtained, without fraud, and upon due and personal notice to the other side, generally rebounds to the welfare of both sides and proves a real blessing, according to ex-Justice Henry B. Brown of the United States Supreme Court, who spoke on "The law and procedure in divorce" before the Maryland State Bar Association to-day. He treated marriage as a civil contract.

"There is no question connected with the administration of the law so fertile of litigation," he said, "and so exacting of public attention as divorces. Thousands of decided cases have turned upon their validity. The clergy have made them a specialty, and have generally been outspoken in denunciation of the acknowledged evils and discreetly silent in respect to their utility, ignoring the distinction between the causes for which they may be granted and the procedure by which they are obtained.

"The head of the Roman Church in America, a man for whom I have profound respect, has painted divorce as 'a monster, licensed by the laws of Christian States to break hearts, wreck homes, and ruin souls.' This is certainly a gruesome picture.

"That separation of Church and State, which is a cardinal principle of American jurisprudence, is nowhere more applicable than in that which concerns the marriage relation. By the Greek and Roman Churches marriage is regarded as a sacrament, an impressive word of somewhat indefinite meaning, standing generally for something exempt from the control of the civil authority.

"It is not perceived why the partnership created by marriage should so far differ from a commercial partnership that one may be dissolved at pleasure while the other is absolutely indissoluble. A proper regard for the interests of the State as well as the preservation of domestic happiness would seem to require that when the whole object of the matrimonial compact had been defeated by the habitual, persistent, and uncontrollable conduct of either party, and that relation which should represent the acme of human happiness is made to stand for all that is most repugnant to our desires and anticipations, a severance of the ties should be permitted.

"I cannot recall a divorce fairly obtained, without fraud, and upon due and personal notice to the other side, that did not apparently redound to the welfare of the parties and prove a real blessing."

GIANTS ENTERTAIN PIRATES.

Give Them a Theatre Party to Celebrate Yesterday's Victory.

To celebrate their victory over the Pirates yesterday, the Giants gave a theatre party last night at the Lyric Theatre, where Georgia Caine is appearing in "The Motor Girl." The members of the visiting Pittsburg team were the guests of honor and occupied a box, while the Giants sat in the orchestra. As a special feature there was an impromptu baseball game between members of the company, which the audience, and especially the members of the two teams, applauded. In the afternoon Frank Hennessy, the producer of the show, took all of the chorus girls in the cast up to the Polo Grounds in automobiles to cheer for the Giants.

New Players for W. A. Brady.

William A. Brady announces these engagements for his productions next season: Lillian Sinnett, to appear in the support of Louis Mann; Beth Sommerville, a Western actress, to appear as Mrs. Bartlett in "Way Down East"; E. A. Sparks, who was formerly with Harry Woodruff in "Brown of Harvard," to apear in the part of Randolph in "The Gentleman from Mississippi"; Julia Hanchett, to fill the rôle of Mrs. Bennett in "The Man of the Hour," and James J. Moran, who will be seen as Gibbs, the broker, in the same play.

Bigelow in an Impromptu Act.

Charles A. Bigelow attended the performance of "The Follies of 1909" at the Jardin de Paris last night, and when in the scene showing a travesty on a hypnotic act volunteers were requested to appear on the stage Mr. Bigelow, to the surprise of the management and the actors, offered himself as a subject. Before the audience would let Mr. Bigelow depart he had to sing several popular songs.

Mme. Pavlova to Dance Here.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 8.—Mme. Pavlova, premiere ballet dancer of the Imperial Opera, has signed a contract with a New York theatrical firm to appear in that city in the Autumn.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Alice Lloyd, the English comedienne, who has been appearing in America in vaudeville, will sail for London on the Mauretania on July 14.

Children's carnival week, planned for the six days beginning Monday, July 12, at Palisades Amusement Park, has been postponed until a week later.

An augmented orchestra of thirty musicians required to furnish the music of Gertrude Hoffman's classic dances at Hammerstein's Roof Garden, has been secured from the orchestras of the Manhattan and Metropolitan Opera Houses. Max Hoffmann will conduct.

Klaw & Erlanger arranged yesterday for the production of a musical comedy entitled "The Air King." The book and lyrics are by Harry B. Smith, and the music by Raymond Hubbell. It will receive an early metropolitan production.

E. F. Albee has invited the dancing teachers of New York, Newark, and Jersey City to attend next Monday afternoon's performance of Mlle. Dazie's pantomime act at Keith & Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre.

The Shuberts announce that their next musical offering will be an elaborate production of the English version of "Die Herbstmanoeuvre," by Karl von Bakeny and Emerich Kalman. The English title will be "The Dancing Dragoons."

Alfred Latell, the former jester and animal impersonator, has been engaged by the Shuberts to appear with Eddie Foy next season in a new production.

Henry B. Harris announces that Jefferson De Angelis, now starring in "The Beauty Spot," and Georgia Caine of "The Motor Girl" company will appear at the benefit to be given at the Arverne Pier Theatre on Sunday, July 18, for the Hebrew Infant Asylum.

TROOPS ARRIVE AT MINES.

To Check Riotous Coal Strikers—Night Attack on Colliery.

GLACE BAY, N. S., July 8.—A trainload of troops arrived to-day from the barracks at Halifax to assist in quelling the riotous disturbances at the mines of the Dominion Coal Company, growing out of the strike of the United Mine Workers. The train bearing the militia arrived at about 3 o'clock. As it drew near a sudden downpour of rain sent the crowds of idle miners and others hurriedly to shelter.

The recourse to military police assistance is not welcomed by all the citizens, some believing the City Government is able to meet the situation.

Women figured in the demonstrations to-day near No. 1 colliery, joining the men and boys in throwing sticks and stones and in deriding the miners who are resisting the strike order. At this point a policeman and the manager of the mines were slightly injured while trying to protect the workmen who desired to enter the mine.

To-day President McDougall and Harry Bousfield of the United Mineworkers' Association visited several of the collieries and addressed the strikers and others assembled at the gates, pleading with them to maintain order, even declaring that the calling of names should not be indulged in.

Disturbers last night poured volleys into the Dominion Coal Company's plant, burned some of the property, and destroyed the fencing. A special force of eight constables was sent out, and when the train arrived an attempt was made to surround the officers and drag them away. With drawn revolvers the constables resisted, however, and regained the train. The engine whistle was blown and the train was rushed through the mob in the darkness.

Both sides in the conflict appear to have gained confidence and determination since the inauguration of the strike on Tuesday, and an early settlement of the dispute is looked upon as unlikely.

DISPUTES NEW YORK LIFE.

Hotchkiss Says Discharged Agents Did but Little Business.

ALBANY, July 8.—Replying to requests for a statement regarding the claim of the New York Life Insurance Company that owing to the limitations prescribed by the New York insurance law it had been obliged to discharge a number of agents, State Superintendent of Insurance William H. Hotchkiss said to-day that most of these agents were part time men, whose commission income was very small.

"Some time ago," said he, "the department, noticing the statement made by the New York Life Insurance Company that it had dismissed a large number of agents, asked the company to forward a list of those dismissed, showing the amount of business and paid-for policies written by each. This list has now been tabulated by States and by number and amount of policies. It shows that the total number dismissed was 1,223, of whom 240 were residents of this State; 844 were agents of more than a year's standing, 379 having been appointed in 1909.

"Our tabulation shows that 482 of the dismissed agents, or 39 per cent., wrote no business at all either last year or this; 229 wrote but one policy, and 139 but two policies. Thus 850, or upward of 68 per cent. of the total, wrote not more than two policies each, while but fifty-one, that is about 4 per cent., wrote more than ten policies.

"These figures suggest that the claim that a large number of men have been deprived of their means of livelihood by the action of this company is rather wide of the mark. Clearly most of them were part time men of extremely limited productivity, and whose commission income was very small. The average business written in fifteen months by each of the agents whose services were dispensed with was but $4,213."

FERRYBOAT IN A CRASH.

The Nassau Rams the Ferry Rack at the Battery, Injuring Two Women.

Caught by wind and tide and trying to avoid other boats in the river the municipal ferryboat Nassau, entering her South Ferry slip from Staten Island yesterday, was driven against the rack extending out off the Battery. The boat struck with terrific force and some of her passengers were bruised by being thrown against the seats in the forward part of the vessel.

Most of those on board were waiting at the forward end to disembark when she struck. Mrs. Maria Groves of 88 Broad Street, Stapleton, was standing on the stairway. She was flung headlong down stairs. Others fell on top of her. Mrs. Jacob Kissenger of 135 Canal Street, Stapleton, was knocked over by the shock and her head struck one of the seats.

An ambulance from the Hudson Street Hospital was summoned. Dr. Spaulding found both women suffering from bruises. They refused to go to the hospital and took the boat back to their homes.

Capt. George Baxter of the Nassau said that it was impossible to avoid the accident and that only by a quick signal to the engine room and a turning to port did he avoid striking the heavy float at full speed. The boat sustained little damage and continued in commission.

BROKER DROPS DEAD IN EXCHANGE DEBATE

George W. Jacques, Old-Time Copper Trader, a Victim of Apoplexy on Metal Board.

EXCITED BY REFORM TALK

Hughes Committee's Criticism of Price-Fixing Methods Up for Discussion When He Collapsed.

In the excitement of a debate on reform measures to answer the condemnation of its methods contained in the Hughes Committee report, George W. Jacques, one of the oldest members of the New York Metal Exchange, died of apoplexy at the monthly meeting of the Board of Managers yesterday. Mr. Jacques was 63 years old and had long been associated with the tin and copper trade, which during his experience has passed almost entirely into the hands of the agents of the big smelters, and made the Metal Exchange little more than an echo of what it had been in the past.

It could not be learned yesterday what part Mr. Jacques had taken in the debate at yesterday's meeting of the managers, of whom he had been one for ten years, but it was learned that a spirited debate, such as has not often been seen at the meetings of the board in recent years, was in progress, when the veteran metal man collapsed. He had been away from business for several days, and when he came down to the old Exchange Building at Pearl Street and Burling Slip yesterday his associates noticed that he looked an ill man.

Although the meeting was the regular monthly session of the Board of Managers, which is usually but slimly attended, there was an unwonted number of the Metal Exchange members on the floor yesterday afternoon when the meeting was called to order. The Exchange had witnessed an actual sale of copper on Wednesday, the first in eighteen years, and it was expected that this first step toward making the Exchange an actual market would be followed by an attempt at the board meeting to reform the methods of fixing artificial quotations which led the Hughes Committee to condemn the Exchange in round terms.

When the meeting opened a resolution was offered abolishing the Quotation Committee, a body whose delegated power to fix quotations, published as the "official" New York prices of metal, by which contracts are made with producers and consumers without any metal being actually sold on the Exchange, has been the chief cause of criticism. What part Mr. Jacques took in the debate could not be learned at the Exchange yesterday, but that the argument was heated and protracted is indicated by the fact that the resolution first put forward was being reconsidered when Mr. Jacques collapsed.

He died before an ambulance summoned from St. Gregory's Hospital arrived, and the body was left in the committee room until an undertaker could be summoned from uptown.

James E. Pope, President of the Pope Metals Company, whose broker Mr. Jacques had been in recent years, went out to the dead man's home in Elizabeth, N. J., to notify his family.

It was James E. Pope who broke the eighteen years' stagnation on Wednesday by buying fifty tons of copper on the floor for August delivery. He purchased it from one of the members of the Quotation Committee at 13 cents per pound, which has been claimed by the opponents of the quotation makers was under the current market price.

The critics of the Exchange management, of whom Mr. Pope was one of the leaders, having run for President on the reform ticket in 1908, have contended for years that prices have been made without reference to the general market, and that it was not possible to buy or sell metal on the floor at the prices quoted. The sale on Wednesday to Mr. Pope was looked upon as the result of the fear that the Exchange would lose its charter when the Legislature meets as a result of the Hughes Committee's strictures.

George W. Jacques had been a member of the Exchange for twenty years. He began business as a boy with the old-time importing house of A. A. Thomson & Co., and when tariff changes encouraged the development of the tin-plate industry here he engaged for a while in the manufacture of tin plate himself. Later he went back with his old firm and remained with them until their dissolution several years ago. Mr. Jacques leaves a widow and two sons and a daughter. The body was removed late in the day to the family home in Jersey Street, Elizabeth.

ASKS SALE OF RAILROAD.

Preliminary Foreclosure Bill Filed Against Norfolk & Southern.

NORFOLK, Va., July 8.—A sale of the Norfolk & Southern Railway property, which has been in the hands of receivers since July, 1908, is asked by the Trust Company of America of New York, which is trustee under the railway's $15,000,000 first and refunding bond issue of May 1, 1908, in a supplemental bill of foreclosure filed in the Federal Court here to-day calling for an immediate settlement. The action is based on default in interest on the railroad's mortgage for three interest periods from May 1, 1908.

The supplemental bill asks that all the mortgaged property "with the appurtenances, effects, and franchises in said mortgage mentioned, or which may be covered thereby, may be sold in one lot and as an entirety, unless a sale in parcels shall be required."

The bill calls for an answer by the railroad on Aug. 2.

CORROBORATES ELLA GINGLES

Story of Lacemaker's Landlady Helps Establish Some Details.

CHICAGO, July 8.—The trial of Ella Gingles, charged with the theft of laces from Miss Agnes Barrette, a former employer, was resumed in Judge Brentano's court to-day. Assistant State's Attorney Short stated that he would produce a mass of testimony to impeach the story told of an attack upon her in the Hotel Wellington by the defendant. Crowds again flocked to the courtroom, but only those directly concerned with the proceedings were admitted.

Tecla Linderman, the fourteen-year-old daughter of Miss Gingles's landlady, was the first witness for the defense. She testified that she had seen a piece of lace about the defendant's neck while she was ironing some lace. This testimony was introduced to show that the defendant possessed the necklace which she alleges was stolen from her by Miss Barrette. The girl failed to identify a necklace in court as the one worn by Miss Gingles.

Mrs. Sophia Linderman, the mother of Tecla, testified that Miss Gingles usually arrived home at about 7 o'clock in the evening. At 6 o'clock on the evening of Jan. 4, witness said, Miss Barrette and another woman visited the witness's home, and without being invited walked at once to Miss Gingles's room, where they overhauled her belongings. Her clothing was strewn about the floor and covered with dirt and candle grease during the search. Miss Gingles came home at 7 o'clock, as usual, and an hour later the three women left the place. It was nearly midnight when Miss Gingles returned home.

"Describe her condition," asked Mr. O'Donnell, the defendant's lawyer.

"She was crying and her face was swollen," said the witness. "I asked her what was the matter, and she said she could not tell because she said they would kill her. She was trembling and excited, but all I could get out of her was that she had been treated terribly."

Mr. O'Donnell next directed Mrs. Linderman's attention to the bathroom incident of Feb. 16.

"Do you remember being at the Wellington Hotel in February?"

"Yes, I was there for about two hours. Miss Joyce, a stenographer in your office, and Miss Bennett were with me. Ella was in bed."

"What was her condition?" asked Mr. O'Donnell.

"She was a raving maniac," answered the witness, "and continued to scream: 'Don't kill me, Miss Barrette. I won't drink any more of your wine—you told me he was a doctor—there goes the man over the transom now.'"

This attack on Miss Gingles is alleged to have occurred on Feb. 16. Mrs. Linderman's visit was made on the following day, when the young lacemaker was found in the bathroom. Miss Gingles's story of this occurrence aroused comment because of its similarity to her narrative of the alleged attack of the previous month.

FRENCH BISHOP WINS SUIT.

Mayor Must Pay for Having Lock of Church Door Picked.

PARIS, July 8.—Difficulty in raising funds to support the Church since the separation law went into operation has led several Bishops to order priests in their diocese to refuse to perform religious services for families who are in arrears with their contributions.

At the Village of Goudoux, near Bourges, a Catholic family resolved to have a religious funeral without paying the arrears. The Mayor, predicating his action on the clause of the separation law according the use of the church to the faithful, had the door opened by a locksmith and the funeral was held inside the church without a priest.

The Bishop thereupon sued the Mayor for $400 damages, and the Court of Bourges has handed down a decision in favor of the Bishop.

REUBEN LINDHEIM DEAD.

Retired Merchant Expires Suddenly After a Rheumatic Attack.

Reuben Lindheim, a retired merchant, of 303 West Eighty-fourth Street, died suddenly yesterday at Larchmont, where he was spending the Summer with his family. He went to Larchmont two months ago suffering from an attack of rheumatism. He and his family occupied the White Cottage in Larchmont Avenue, having leased it for the season.

While Mr. Lindheim did not greatly improve after reaching Larchmont, there was no thought that he was any worse, and his family believed that the Summer's rest would restore him to full health. His son, Norvin R. Lindheim, a lawyer of 60 Wall Street, was hurriedly summoned to his father's bedside yesterday morning. Mr. Lindheim had suffered a sudden rheumatic seizure of the heart. He died shortly after noon. The funeral will be held this afternoon, the interment being at Cypress Hills Cemetery.

Mr. Lindheim was 58 years old, and for years was engaged in the export trade. He retired two years ago. He was a member of the Progress Club and the Temple Emanu-El. A wife and son survive him.

Gambler Frank Felton Dies in Hospital

Frank Felton, the gambler, known to his intimates as "Big Frank," who shot and killed Guy Roche in front of the Herald Square Theatre on Thanksgiving night, 1904, died on Wednesday in the Peekskill Hospital of appendicitis after an operation. Felton came to this city from Chicago and purchased "Lou" Betts's gambling house at 128 West Thirty-six Street. His feud with Roche was of long standing. On the night before the shooting Roche went to the clubhouse with $20 and went away with $1,400 after a dispute with Felton. Roche refused before he died to charge Felton with the shooting, and Felton was acquitted by a Coroner's Jury.

GEN. DE GALLIFET DIES OF APOPLEXY

Marquis Had Long and Adventurous Career in Service of France.

HIS PART IN DREYFUS CASE

As Minister of War He Disciplined the Element in the Army Dissatisfied with Exile's Pardon.

PARIS, July 8.—General, the Marquis De Gallifet, former Minister of War, died to-night. He was stricken with apoplexy on Sunday, which was the third attack within the last few months.

Gaston Alexandre Auguste, Marquis de Gallifet, who held for a few months the portfolio of war in the Waldeck-Rousseau Ministry, which pardoned Dreyfus, was well known in France for his adventurous career as a soldier.

He was born Jan. 23, 1830, and enlisted in the First Hussars as a private in 1848. Early in his military career he killed the fencing master of the regiment in a duel, and in the course of four or five years had won enough recognition to be gazetted Lieutenant in the crack Guides de la Garde. In the Crimea he was made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor for bravery at the capture of the redoubts before Sebastopol, and he served with equal distinction under Gen. Douay in the Italian campaign of 1859.

At the siege of Puebla in the Mexican war in 1863 a shell ripped him open. The surgeons gave him up as mortally wounded, but according to his own account he pulled a small mirror from his pocket, said to himself, "You have not the face of a dead man," and set himself to recover. His determination saved his life, and except that he had to wear a small silver plate in his body for the rest of his life he grew as strong as ever.

After other campaigns in Algeria and Mexico, he fought through the Prussian war as a General of Brigade. He was at Sedan and took command of his division when Gen. Marguerette was mortally wounded. The Marquis was released by the Prussians in time to help in the subjection of the Commune. Stern soldier as he was, he was accused of using unnecessary harshness toward his prisoners. It was said that he would make those brought before him hold up their hands. If they showed powder stains, he would say, "Oh, take them away and shoot them. Don't worry me." In reply to these charges, however, the General remained silent, holding that a soldier has no right to discuss such matters.

When the republic was established he was sent to subdue the Algerian insurrection, and he extended the French domains as far as El Goleah. For this success he was made Commander of the Legion of Honor. On his return to France his advancement in the service was rapid, and at 51 he attained the highest rank in his reach and was made a member of the Conseil Supérieur at the War Office, which carried with it the command of four army corps in the event of another war.

His promotion was assisted by the clearness of his political vision. Although a royalist by tradition, he saw that the republic was firmly established, and he loyally supported it. He was the close personal friend of Gambetta, and always refused to flatter the pretensions of Boulanger. This led to his being deprived of his military posts when that adventurer was temporarily in the ascendant.

In 1899 France was in the throes of the Dreyfus case. The disgraced Captain was on his way back from exile, and it seemed as though another revolution was imminent. Gallifet believed in the innocence of Dreyfus, and joined as Minister of War, the coalition Cabinet formed by Waldeck-Rousseau. The second trial was held at Rennes, and Dreyfus was found guilty, "with extenuating circumstances." A few days later Waldeck-Rousseau prevailed on President Loubet to grant him a pardon, and De Gallifet issued, on his own responsibility, a general order to the army announcing that the incident was closed.

The French Army, however, had suffered severely by the long-drawn-out scandal, and De Gallifet set himself to restore its morale. He disciplined severely the officers who refused to accept the solution reached, and did not hesitate to remove Gen. de Negrier from the highest command for inciting subordinates to disaffection. In May, 1900, he resigned.

Since then he had lived in retirement. He married in early life a daughter of the late Charles Lafitte, but separated amicably from her. He leaves two sons, both in the French Army, and one daughter, the wife of Baron Frederic de Seillière.

Department Store Expected to Take Block in Which the Present Black, Starr & Frost Building Stands.

For the fourth time in the last ten months the Charles T. Cook home, at 594 Fifth Avenue, on the southwest corner of Forty-eighth Street, was sold yesterday, and while the name of the purchaser was withheld, it was learned last night on good authority that the property had passed to Black, Starr & Frost, jewelers, now at Thirty-ninth Street and Fifth Avenue. From the same source it was learned that the jewelry firm intends building quarters for itself on the site of the old Cook home and the adjoining property at 4 West Forty-eighth Street, belonging to Mrs. Lansdale Boardman, which was included in the purchase recorded yesterday, the combined pieces of property bringing a price in excess of $700,000.

In the opinion of real estate operators significance atached to this move on the part of the jewelry firm, because their removal to new quarters further up the avenue will put on the market the only parcel of property in the block now partly occupied by them not controlled by another group of operators. By the purchase of this parcel those who control the remaining parcels in the block would have the complete block at their disposal. It was said last night that a department store was likely to take over the entire block after the removal of Black, Starr & Frost.

Yesterday's sale was negotiated by the Douglas Robinson-Charles S. Brown Company, representing the purchasers, and Albert B. Ashforth, representing George G. Heye, who held the property. Neither of these brokers would confirm the rumors concerning the purchasers of the property.

The combined properties form a plot fronting 25.5 feet on Fifth Avenue and 125.10 feet on the street. The Fifth Avenue parcel with the other plot in the block was owned formerly by Columbia University. When the Trustees decided to sell the property in 1894 the residents had the option of buying the homes they occupied. Charles T. Cook, then President of the Tiffany Company, purchased his property for $295,000, receiving a discount of $15,000 because of his long tenancy of the premises. Mrs. Boardman's lot at that time was valued at $95,000.

In October last year the widow of Mr. Cook sold the property for $440,000, the purchasers disposing of it again in a few weeks to Mr. Heye for $480,000. In March of this year Mr. Heye sold the property for $550,000 to J. D. Ichenhauser, an art dealer, who announced his intention of erecting an eight-story studio building, part of which was to be used as an art studio. For some reason this project was never carried out, Mr. Ichenhauser failing even to take title to the property. Later, according to Mr. Ashforth, another buyer contracted through a firm of brokers to buy the property for $510,000, but failed also to take title.

EXCELLENT CROP REPORT

Government's Statement Indicates Record Corn Yield and Good Wheat Harvest—More Gold for South America.

On financial markets yesterday interest centred almost exclusively in the Government's report on the crop conditions as of July 1. The showing was in every respect in keeping with the high hopes generated by the excellent weather conditions throughout the month of June and the various individual State reports. In Winter wheat, which went into the ground under adverse conditions, improvement has been so continuous that yesterday's condition figure of 82.4 places the crop in point of promised yield among the four best outturns of the past decade. Spring wheat displayed a loss of 2.5 per cent. during the month, but the percentage of 92.7 is, with the exception of the July figures of 1904, the best in eight years, and indicates a harvest, according to the new method of computation, of 253,796,000 bushels, which, combined with Winter wheat, would make a total crop above 663,000,000 bushels, practically the yield of 1908. It is in the showing of corn, however, that the most complete satisfaction may be taken, for, with an addition of 7,218,000 acres to last year's area, there goes a July condition of 89.3, an improvement of 6 points and more as compared with June 1, an exceptional condition which points to a harvest of 3,161,000,000 bushels, over 400,000,000 bushels above last year's yield, and by far the greatest crop on record. As if to make the tale of records complete, the condition of oats is also unusually high, and the acreage so large as to promise a yield of 963,000,000 bushels, which has been exceeded only by the crop of 1902, and then by less than 26,000,000 bushels. All in all, therefore, this showing of the agricultural position of the country is a most auspicious one, and, while trying weeks are still to be passed through, in the absence of extraordinary weather conditions we may safely count upon harvests which will add no little impetus to the already growing pace of the business world.

On the Stock Exchange the publication of this excellent crop statement was the signal for a moderate profit-taking movement, which resulted in general heaviness and rather sharp declines in certain issues in the final hour of business. Southern Pacific (preferred and common,) Union Pacific, Reading, Wabash, and the Copper stocks were directly affected, and losses of a point or so occurred in these shares. Elsewhere the declines were confined to fractions, and the movement as a whole was so slight as to be without importance. Outside of the crop report the day's news was without special interest, although in a general way the preponderance of items dealing with the renewal of activity with manufacturing concerns of all kinds as well as the submission of statements of increased railroad earnings, pointed unmistakably to further expansion in business.

Some reflection of this revival is at last being found in the money market here, although the supply of funds is still so great as to promise little in the way of higher rates for weeks to come. Inquiries from out-of-town borrowers are increasing, and similar demands upon banking institutions at interior centres are checking the flow of funds in this direction. Foreign exchange rates underwent no change in the course of the day, but further engagements of gold for shipment to South America were reported. The Bank of England in its weekly statement noted an exceptional increase in the percentage of reserves to liabilities, a natural consequence of the passing of the mid-year disbursement requirements.

THE COFFEE MARKET.

Coffee showed continued steadiness yesterday, although the demands for the near months were somewhat less urgent. The market opened steady, unchanged, to an advance of 5 points, and closed steady net unchanged to 5 points higher, the gain being limited to the September contract. Sales were reported of 28,250 bags.

While the European markets made a steady showing, the fluctuations indicated an easier situation, so far as the near months were concerned, with Havre closing net unchanged to ¼ higher. Hamburg was unchanged to ¼ lower at the New York opening, and neither of the Brazilian markets reported any change. Receipts at the two ports were heavy, and the interior Sao Paulo movement suggested a continued large movement in the near future. Spot coffee was quiet; 7¾@7⅞c for Rio No. 7. The contract prices were as follows:

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Day of Sluggish Trading with Interest Limited to Scattered Issues on the Curb.

GOLD STOCKS STILL WEAK

Goldfield Consolidated Has Narrow Market with Prices Fractionally Lower—Nipissing Sells ½ Point Up.

Curb trading was in minor volume yesterday and price movements were without interest. Among the mining shares the desultory trading developed only fractional fluctuations. Nipissing was strong, selling up from 10 to 10½, on transactions of 1,500. In the gold stocks the activity which Goldfield Consolidated had shown in markets earlier in the week diminished to transactions of less than 3,000 shares, the price continuing to incline downward. The other gold stocks were correspondingly inactive and weak.

⁂

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT—Net changes were small yesterday, although at one time the market showed practically a cent loss on September at the West, following early strength in response to heavy rains and floods in the Southwest. The Government report issued just before the close received a bullish construction. Liverpool closed ⅛d to ¼d net higher. Argentine shipments were estimated at 2,000,000 bushels, or the same as the previous week. No export business was reported. No. 2 red in New York was still nominal, $1.45 elevator and free on board, afloat, and quoted at $1.20⅝ for new end of August. No. 1 Northern, Duluth, $1.35⅝, and No. 2 hard Winter $1.33⅜ nominal free on board, afloat.

CORN—There was a strong advance in July corn at the West, but later months had a cent break. In the late afternoon the whole market turned stronger. Liverpool declined ¼d, and Argentine shipments were estimated at 3,600,000 bushels, compared with 4,590,000 bushels the previous week. Not only were receipts at Chicago smaller than expected, but the estimate for Friday was only 77 cars, causing a sharp upturn in cash corn. Exporters took eight loads. Old No. 2 in New York was quoted 78c elevator and 77¼c free on board, afloat; New No. 2, 54c, Winter shipment.

[illegible] IN WALL STREET.

[illegible] Report Discounted?

As [illegible]ntly happens in the case of [illegible] piece of "bull news" which has been [illegible]ed forward to and discussed from all points of view for a week or more, yesterday's Government crop report failed to stimulate the enthusiasm on which the bulls had been counting. Publication of the report was to be the signal for an aggressive demonstration, which would pull the market out of its rut. Somehow or other, the calculations were wrong, and stocks were rather weaker after the report came out than they had been at any previous time during the day. This caused no great surprise to a large number of traders, who had been contending that the favorable features of the report had been pretty well discounted; in fact, some of this class made rather large commitments on the bear side yesterday, confidently believing that the market would recede rather than advance in connection with the crop statistics given out. They thought that the market had approached a stage where it was a sale for at least a quick turn on the publication of good news, and intrinsically no one could have looked for anything much better than the crop estimates.

***

The Public Judgment.

The next stage in the market proceedings, brokers said after the close of business, was to ascertain what influence the crop figures would have on the public. Not infrequently, Wall Street reaches its own conclusions in advance of the outsiders concerning any particular events, and acts accordingly. Sometimes the public judgment is in the nature of a reversal of the decision rendered by Wall Street speculators, and the latter's influence in the market is overcome by outside buying or selling, as the case may be. The theory is quite widely held that the brilliant crop outlook is going to induce a much larger public participation in the market, and that the result will be reflected in prices very soon. Cynics suggest that there may be enough stock around loose in Wall Street, which will be readily handed out as soon as an outside demand develops.

Attitude of Outsiders.

Even conceding that the crop outlook, combined with the steady improvement in railroad and industrial conditions, is calculated to inspire public confidence in the market, there is a radical difference of opinion as to what the effect would be. It is one thing to be optimistic regarding security values, but quite a different thing to make actual commitments based thereon. In bearish circles it is argued that the revival of trade will mean that the thousands of merchants and manufacturers throughout the country, instead of buying securities, will need all their surplus funds to take care of their expanding business. There is a tradition that in dull times the surplus capital of such individuals find employment in the stock and bond market, and is withdrawn from those channels as soon as it can be used to good advantage in private affairs. Exceptions are taken to this theory, however, by the bulls, who insist that if the public really wants to buy stocks, it is going to find the money with which to do so. In confirmation of their statements, they point out that some of the biggest bull markets we have ever had have occurred when business was running under the highest pressure, and at the same time public buying of securities went on at a tremendous pace.

***

Accumulation or Liquidation.

In a comparatively dull market, both the bulls and the bears managed to find plenty of good reasons to support their position. If prices are gradually sagging, or even declining with some rapidity, the market is being manipulated with a view to accumulating cheap stocks. That is what the bulls say. The bears twist the market's action around so that to them it means a quiet but steady feeding out of long stock by important interests. In other words, one side contends that stocks are being liquidated, while the other is equally confident that they are being accumulated. Needless to add, both of these views found ardent supporters yesterday.

An Old Steel Rumor.

At periodic intervals Wall Street hears that the United States Steel Corporation is buying in the Great Northern ore certificates, and it heard this again yesterday. The theory is that it would be a very good stroke of business for the Steel Corporation to acquire a large part, or possibly all, of the Great Northern ore certificates, and then the royalties which it is obliged to pay on the ore mined from the Great Northern tract would all go back into its own treasury. For purposes of imagination this does very well, but somehow or other the United States Steel Corporation has not been able to perceive the advantage of such a course up to this time, and according to some of the leading interests in that concern, it has no particular desire to gather in the certificates. Considering the amount of new construction work which the corporation has mapped out, it is just possible that it will need the bulk of its available funds for that purpose. As a market argument on the ore certificates, however, the rumor of their purchase by the Steel Corporation did well enough.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, July 8.—It was another day of dullness and narrow fluctuations on the local Exchange. No definite trend developed during most of the session, and what little activity occurred was almost entirely confined to such arbitrage shares as Reading and United States Steel, both of which were inclined to sag.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

American Securities Close Steady on the London Exchange.

LONDON, July 8.—The supplies of money exceeded the demand on the market to-day, and discounts were steady.

Business on the Stock Exchange was of small dimensions, and principally in the evening up of the books prior to the settlement. Investment issues continue to benefit by cheap money, the good Bank return assisting in the steadiness later. Home rails were inclined to ease on the revival of the coal trade dispute, and copper shares were easy. Rhodesian diamond shares were the most active among the mines.

American securities opened ⅛ below to ⅜ above parity. A slight improvement followed, but this was lost before midday, and at noon prices were from ¼ lower to ¼ higher than yesterday's New York closing. Southern Pacific and Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé improved a trifle in the afternoon, but the New York opening depressed the market sharply. Then a slight recovery occurred, which caused a steady close.

Bar silver steady at 23 7-16d per ounce.

Money, ¾ per cent. Rate of discount in the open market, for short bills, 1¼@1 5-16 per cent.; for three months' bills, 1¼@1 5-16 per cent.

PARIS, July 8.—Trading on the Bourse to-day was quiet and prices were irregular.

Three per cent. rentes, 97f 67½c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 18½c for checks.

BERLIN, July 8.—Trading on the Boerse to-day was dull and prices were irregular.

Bank of England.

LONDON, July 8.—The weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes:

Total reserve increased £55,000, circulation decreased £18,000, bullion increased £36,289, other securities decreased £11,994,000, other deposits decreased £8,694,000, public deposits decreased £1,981,000, notes reserve decreased £70,000, Government securities increased £1,500,00.

Bank of France.

PARIS, July 8.—The weekly statement of the Bank of France shows the following changes:

Notes in circulation decreased $23,625,000 francs, treasury deposits decreased 62,675,000 francs, general deposit decreased 44,700,000 francs, gold in hand increased 1,275,000 francs, silver in hand increased 175,000 francs, bills discounted decreased 154,425,000 francs, advances increased 8,275,000 francs.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, July 8.—North Butte was the feature in the Boston market to-day. Selling orders were again in evidence, and the stock recorded a further decline of over 2 points, selling at 52¼, before noon, over 7,000 shares changing hands during the morning hours. The market closed steady at the recovery.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Firmer on Rain News—Closes Steady at 5 to 10 Points Net Advance.

Cotton recovered part of Wednesday's loss yesterday on unfavorable weather reports from the South. Fluctuations in the late trading were somewhat nervous and irregular, but the close was steady at a net advance of 5 to 10 points. The market opened firm at an advance of 5 to 12 points in response to better cables than expected. Private cables attributed a late advance in Liverpool to a better demand from China for cotton goods in Lancashire. It did not seem that the bad crop reports have frightened spinners into the market for future requirements, as it was reported that certain New York State mills have shipped a few hundred bales to New York for delivery on July contracts. On the other hand, there is very little Southern selling against the coming crop. Contract prices were as follows:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Wed. Close.
July	12.17	12.14	12.13@12.15	12.04
August	12.19	12.06	12.10@12.11	12.01

June	12.22	12.22	.....@.....	.....

Spot cotton was quiet, with prices 5 points lower, at 12.60 for middling upland and 12.85 for middling Gulf. Sales nil.

Southern spot markets were telegraphed as follows: Galveston firm, unchanged, at 11⅞c; sales, 206 bales. Norfolk steady, ⅛c higher, at 12⅛c; sales, 10 bales. Augusta steady, ⅛c higher, at 12⅛c; sales, 592 bales. St. Louis steady, unchanged, at 12c; sales, 50 bales. New Orleans quiet, unchanged, at 12 1-16c; sales, 1,143 bales. Memphis firm, unchanged, at 12c; sales, 100 bales.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Jacob S. Schlussel and Clement Cleveland, Jr., have been elected members of the Stock Exchange.

Clark, Dodge & Co. and Moffat & White have purchased $3,250,000 two-year gold receivers' certificates of the Atlanta, Birmingham & Atlantic Railroad.

The Committee on Stock Listing of the Stock Exchange has listed $1,552,800 additional guaranteed special stock of the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne & Chicago Railway Company.

Of the $1,500,000 gold to be shipped to Argentina to-morrow $1,000,000, it was learned yesterday, will be forwarded for the banking and grain house of Louis Dreyfus & Co.

The time for the deposit of Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railway Company 4½ per cent. notes with the Central Trust Company under the reorganization plan, by which the road is to be taken over by the Baltimore & Ohio, expires at the close of business to-day. Of the $15,000,000 notes outstanding 95 per cent. have been deposited with the committee, and more than two-thirds of the certificates of deposit issued against these notes have assented to the readjustment plan.

Announcement is made by the First National Bank of Chicago, the First Trust and Savings Bank of Chicago, and Potter, Choate & Prentice of New York that all of the offering of $12,500,000 Morris & Co. first mortgage sinking fund 4½ per cent. gold bonds had been sold yesterday when the books closed at 3 o'clock. Pending the issue of engraved bonds, negotiable interim certificates will be delivered. Application will soon be made for the listing of the bonds upon the New York and Chicago Stock Exchanges.

Of Interest to the Public

The information in the New York Sun of June 24th, concerning the ownership of the properties in the Province of Esmeraldas, Ecuador, fabulously rich in Gold and Platinum has attracted widespread attention. History as well as recent examinations of these properties has established the fact that they were the practically inexhaustible Treasure House of the Incas and that their development by Gold Dredges will bring to all those interested the surest and largest returns of any business in the world to-day.

Five hundred and twenty-five thousand acres are owned in fee simple by Americans.

Before it is too late, inquire of the Ecuadorian Government about these properties, and of reliable people of experience about the wonderful profits in Gold Dredging. If you will investigate, you will realize what this means.

Copies of the article in the Sun of June 24th will be sent you, on application to

DOESN'T REMEMBER MARRYING

Answer of Enos Johnson's Wife to His Suit for Annulment.

Enos Johnson, a Professor of music, has brought suit in the Supreme Court for an annulment of his marriage to Edith L. Chase, solemnized about a year ago, on the ground that at that time she was already married to Capt. Arthur Wallace Chase of the United States Army at Wilmington, Del. That wedding, it is said, took place on Dec. 2, 1896.

A deposition made by William Lea of 1,903 Market Street, Wilmington, father of Mrs. Chase, and who is connected with the family of former Gov. Preston Lea of Delaware, was filed with the court's clerk yesterday. He certifies as to his daughter's marriage to Capt. Chase and that Chase is still alive. He further deposes that his daughter sued for a divorce from Chase in Delaware, but that the suit was dismissed.

Mr. Lea goes on to say that he has never seen Johnson and does not know whether his daughter married him or not, but that a man giving that name called at his home in Wilmington and asked to see Mrs. Lea, wife of the deponent, but was referred to the family lawyer.

"I came to New York," says Mr. Lea, in his deposition, "in March last, and found my daughter at the Hotel Lincoln in the care of a trained nurse, having been seriously ill. I took her home. She told me she had no recollection of her marriage to Johnson, but said that while she had been a guest at the hotel he had given her music lessons there. My daughter is 30 years old, and was 23 when she married Capt. Chase."

It was reported that Capt. Chase was killed in the Spanish-American War, but this turned out not to be the case. It is said that he was at one time tried by court-martial for insubordination.

MENE WALLACE GOING HOME.

Eskimo Will Be Sent Back on the Jeanie If He'll Promise to Stay.

Mene Wallace, the Eskimo boy who was brought here from the arctic regions by Commander Peary in 1896, is to be taken home to Greenland, if he really is willing to go, on the Herbert L. Bridgman expedition's schooner Jeanie, if the boy and his guardian agree to certain conditions.

Mene has just had an attack of pneumonia, and Commander Peary and Mr. Bridgman believe he will be much better off in his native land. He will be taken there, therefore, if he will agree to stay there, to respect the discipline on the vessels taking him north, and not to attempt to take a supply of firearms with him, besides promising to be good generally.

Mene will probably leave here on a steamer for Newfoundland a week from Saturday. It is planned to have him make the rest of the voyage on the Jeanie, which will sail north on July 21.

Mene Wallace and his father were two of a party of five Eskimos brought here by Peary. Mene was adopted by William Wallace, Superintendent of the Museum of Natural History, and took the name Wallace. All the Eskimos died except Mene, who was to be educated in Manhattan College.

About Easter time he disappeared, and it was said he was located in Montreal and brought back by his guardian. He is now at Mr. Wallace's home on Long Island.

Steps Toward a Nickel Fare to Coney.

Jonas Monheimer of Coney Island filed a formal complaint with the Public Service Commission yesterday against the charge of 10 cents for the trip to Coney Island by the Coney Island & Brooklyn Railroad on days other than Saturday or Sunday. The company will have ten days in which to answer, and if the answer is not satisfactory to the commission hearings will be held. Afterward the commission is likely to make an order in accordance with its recent opinion.

Physician Too Late; Patient Dead.

Dr. Clemens Fulda of 107 Kent Street, Greenpoint, received a note in the last mail yesterday asking him to call immediately upon an old patient, Gustave Nitschke, a shoemaker, of 173 Meserole Street. Dr. Fulda called at the old man's home last night, and being unable to get in, forced the door. He found Nitschke dead on a lounge of apoplexy. Nitschke was 65 years old. He had been a shoemaker in Greenpoint for forty years, and made a specialty of military shoes and boots for policemen.

J. A. Wasserman Not Tried for Extortion.

Former Police Sergt. Joseph A. Wasserman, who, in a story in THE TIMES of July 1, was mentioned as having been on trial, in January, 1908, for extortion, writes this newspaper to point out that there was an error. Mr. Wasserman was accused of disobedience of orders in having refused to sit on a bench in front of Police Commissioner Bingham's office, the order having been made as a matter of discipline. He was never tried on an extortion charge.

GRANNISS TRUSTS CREATED.

Will Leaves Fund of $150,000 to the Widow and Smaller Sums to Others.

By the will of George H. Granniss, filed for probate yesterday, $150,000 is left to the Guaranty Trust Company in trust for the benefit of his widow, Anna K. Granniss, during life. At her death this is to be divided among his nephews and nieces, children of his brother, Robert A. Grannis, and deceased sister, Maria L. Tweedy. His nieces, Laura Tweedy White, and Mary Wadsworth Granniss, receive $10,000 each.

Of the residuary estate, the testator leaves in trust two funds of $10,000 each for the benefit of his nephew and grandnephew, Robert Granniss and Theodore Tweedy, the interest to be paid to them until they reach the age of 25, when they are to get the principal. A trust fund of $2,500 is made for his nephew, Thomas Homer King, under the same conditions. Isabel and Annie D. Gilbert, cousins of the testator, get $5,000 each, and a like amount goes to Julia W. Colton.

A trust fund of $2,500 was made by the will for a nephew, Harry G. King, but it was revoked by codicil, the testator giving as his reason "that by his conduct toward his father during his lifetime and his mother since his father's death, he as alienated all respect or affection which I have had for him."

No petition accompanied the will to show the value of the estate. Robert A. Granniss and Granville M. White are named as executors.

STATE'S RECEIPTS INCREASE.

$400,000 More for Last Nine Months Than for Similar Period Last Year.

ALBANY, July 8.—Reports made to State Controller Gaus indicate that the State's revenue will exceed the estimates of $33,420,400, made for the year ended Sept. 30. At the end of June the receipts for nine months were $9,323,952, or about $400,000 greater than the amount that had been received for the same period last year. On this basis the increase over last year is expected to be about $600,000. The receipts for September are always larger than those of any other month.

MOVE IN U. S. EXPRESS FIGHT.

Dudley Asks Stockholders If They Want a Meeting Called.

All shareholders of the United States Express Company holding more than 100 shares have received circulars from John L. Dudley, whose proceedings in the New York County courts for the appointment of a reciever and permission to examine the books of the company were recently decided against him. Mr. Dudley wishes to determine whether the stockholders really desire to have a meeting called.

The Hatt and Banister Committee of shareholders, which has been active in pushing the campaign against the management of Thomas C. Platt and his sons for two years, received the support of over 55 per cent. of the shares, but couldn't get the necessary 66 2-3 per cent. because the large holdings of the American and Adams Companies who were allied with the Platts. The Dudley letter, which was sent out yesterday through his counsel, L. H. Newkirk, recites the allegations made against the present management of the company in the court proceedings and concludes: "Would you care to have a meeting called at which time stockholders could vote as circumstances might require."

It is understood that Mr. Dudley intends to renew his proceedings for permission to examine the books without asking in addition the appointment of a receiver.

SMITH & CO. LIABILITIES.

Failed Consolidated Exchange House Owes $360,741.

An estimate of the assets and liabilities of the failed Consolidated Exchange house of W. B. Smith & Co. was made public yesterday by Marsh, Weaver & Wemple, attorneys for the receiver. The deficit amounts to $207,693, but the explanation is made by the attorneys that litigation is now pending against the firm involving $100,000, which is not included in the liabilities as stated, and that on the other hand there is included among the liabilities a balance due on a number of large judgments aggregating about $60,000.

The cash and quick assets are placed at $27,643 and accounts receivable at $125,406. Liabilities, consisting chiefly of amounts due customers, amount to $360,741.

WESTERN MARYLAND PLANS.

Bondholders Seek to Foreclose Mortgage for a Reorganization.

The general lien bondholders' committee of the Western Maryland decided yesterday to seek foreclosure of the mortgage covering these bonds with a view to paving the way for the reorganization of the road. The committee will hold another meeting on Monday, and the chances are that at that meeting the reorganization plan will be fully formulated. The committee, in advance of its final action on the plan, would not discuss its terms yesterday, but it is learned that the plan will call for the substitution of preferred stock for the existing $10,000,000 of general lien convertible bonds, thus substituting a stock issue for this mortgage indebtedness, by which means fixed charges of the property will be kept down and its financial position strengthened by the reorganization.

Buy $3,250,000 A., B. & A. Certificates.

Clark, Dodge & Co. and Moffat & White have purchased $3,250,000 two-year 5 per cent. receiver's certificates of the Atlantic, Birmingham & Atlantic. The proceeds will be used partly for the completion of the line into Birmingham and partly for other purposes, including probably the purchase of equipment. The certificates are a lien on the property prior to the road's first mortgage bonds, and become a first lien on 303 miles of line and important terminal properties and a lien on 334 additional miles of line subject to underlying bonds.

To Pay St. Louis & San Francisco Notes

The St. Louis & San Francisco has called for payment on Aug. 6 the $6,000,000 of notes which would have fallen due next Dec. 1. The recent sales of general lien 5 per cent. bonds having placed the company in funds for this purpose, the management decided to call the notes instead of leaving them run until maturity. This places this borrowing in permanent form instead of leaving it in the temporary shape of a short term note issue.

Where 30,000 Christians Perished Within Two Days.

THE first adequate description of the massacre of Christians at Adana will be published in THE TIMES next Sunday. The Rev. Herbert Adams Gibbons, who passed through those two days of slaughter, in which 30,000 perished at the hands of the maddened Turks, has arrived at Paris, and the story that he has told to a representative of this newspaper gives the full picture of perhaps the worst atrocity of modern times. It is a dramatic recital of intense interest. Its publication on Sunday will be accompanied by photographs illustrative of the scenes and events which it describes.

Some of the Magazine Features.

A few of the other features and articles to be published in THE SUNDAY TIMES: The second of the volumes selected by Dr. Eliot for his ideal five-foot library, "The Journal of John Woolman."——The arrival of President Taft at Beverly, and here is an article which every one who enjoys a "good story" should read.——A full presentation of a sermon of most unusual character, by Bishop Williams of Michigan, delivered in this city on the Fourth of July.——An article by Ferrero, the distinguished Italian historian, on the millionaire's place in America.——An article on Spiritualism, which is bound to interest those who do not believe in it, as well as those who do.——A capital "Letter" from Hashimura Togo, in which the "Japanese Schoolboy" takes up the subject of the tariff.——An article by Herman Bernstein, from Moscow, depicting present conditions in Russia.——Interesting correspondence from London anent plays and players, including an interview with Charles Frohman.——An article describing Art Forgeries.——A feature of much interest bearing on the approaching Hudson celebration.——An article describing the great fight being made to better the health of New York City, and the results that are inspiring the authorities to even greater efforts.——Clever satires by Thomas L. Masson and J. W. Foley.——A good "Summer" story, describing the English fad of "caravaning" in the Summertime.——And many other features and articles in widest possible variety.

Eight Pages of Good Pictures.

The Picture Section of THE TIMES next Sunday will include a fine full-page reproduction of Albert Maignan's spirited painting, "Sounding the Tocsin."——Then there will be a series of pictures of President Taft at the Yale Commencement; photographs of the trials of the Wright aeroplane and of Harvard's triple victory over Yale on the Thames. Then there will be some good pictures of fast polo playing; a reproduction of an interesting new painting by Sir John Collier; pictures of President Taft as a golfer; of the estate of Richard Delafield at Tuxedo; of singers and actresses of the New York stage; of New York children in the hot Summertime, and other good pictures of timeliness and interest.

Readers should remember to order THE SUNDAY TIMES from their newsdealers in advance, as the edition is always sold out early.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

MORRIS FREEMAN.—Schedules in bankruptcy of Morris Freeman, tailor, 361 Canal Street, show liabilities of $1,986 and assets of $1,105, consisting of stock, $700; fixtures, $200; accounts, $150; checks, $50, and cash, $3.

MARY MAYER.—Mary Mayer, living at 2,090 Webster Avenue, the Bronx, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $10,711 and no assets. Among the creditors are Mr. and Mrs. John F. Dowd, $5,000, and Millard Marcuse, $2,000, both on bonds.

KRULISH MARBLE COMPANY.—Judge Hand has appointed J. Waring Parks receiver in bankruptcy for the Krulish Marble Company, 365 Avenue A, with a bond of $4,000. The assets are $7,300, consisting of stock, $2,000; machinery, $2,000; accounts, $3,000; office fixtures, $200; truck, $100; also, some contracts which are expected to show a profit if completed.

CHARLES I. STILL.—Charles I. Still, dealer in paints and wall paper, at Ossining, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $6,956 and assets of $4,009, consisting of equity in real estate, $600; stock, $2,500; fixtures, $75; accounts, $727; horse and wagon, $100, and cash, $7. Among the creditors are the estate of Nicholas Field, $3,088, secured; Rudolph Acker, $463, and the Ossining National Bank, $210.

CHARLES W. ASCHENBACH.—Charles W. Aschenbach, a salesman at 105 Hudson Street, living at Ridgewood, N. J., has made an assignment to Arthur Butler Graham of 346 Broadway. He was formerly President of the Charles W. Aschenbach Company, dealer in wagons and harness on Murray Street, but got out of that business about five months ago. Mr. Graham said that the liabilities are $14,623, nominal assets $6,052, being a claim against A. Gamboa & Co. of Yucatan, Mexico, the actual value of which is estimated at $50, and 25 cents cash on bond.

MARCUS WERTHEIM.—Marcus Wertheim, a salesman, of 229 East Eighty-fifth Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $43,329 and no assets. Among the creditors are Mrs. Sarah Manister of Brookline, Mass., $35,000; Mrs. Hannah Wertheim, Troy, $5,000; Salomon M. Hydeman, Albany, $1,879, and Gordon Wendell, $1,232. Mr. Wertheim was formerly of Wertheim Brothers, clothing manufacturers, 18 Astor Place, against whom a petition in bankruptcy was filed on Aug. 8, 1902, which was dismissed a few months later when it was said that a settlement had been made with most of the creditors at 35 cents on the dollar.

MOSES SCHEINBERG.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Moses Scheinberg, jobber in woolens and dress goods, 61 Hester Street, by these creditors: Geffen & Becker, $76; Moses Smith, $158 on an assigned claim of Weinstein & Lurie, and George Haerle, Jr., $350. It was alleged that he is insolvent, made preferential payments of $2,000, and transferred merchandise and accounts of $2,000. He began business on Jan 2, 1908. Judge Hand appointed Elbert B. Hamlin receiver. It was stated that he had disposed of a large quantity of merchandise, and the assets left are about $2,000 in stock and accounts.

SAMUEL SINGER.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Samuel Singer, doing business as S. Singer & Co., wholesale dealer in hosiery, underwear, and shirts, 224 Walker Street, by Myers & Goldsmith for these creditors: H. B. Claflin Company, $1,619, and Boesneck, Broesel & Co., $324. It was alleged that he is insolvent, made preferential payments of $2,500, and transferred merchandise and accounts of $2,500. Judge Hand appointed William Blau receiver. Myers & Goldsmith stated that the liabilities are $20,000, and that the assets consisted of stock, $4,000; accounts, $1,000; small equity in some Brooklyn real estate and some property in Oklahoma. He has assigned some accounts to the State Bank, it is said, kept the proceeds, and refused to pay any of the creditors. The place is closed and in possession of a City Marshal.

Out of Town.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, July 8.—John A. Morrill, a salesman of Lowell, filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy to-day, showing an indebtedness of $41,211, of which $560 is secured. The assets are given as $2,697. The unsecured claims aggregate $40,208. The principal creditors are W. L. Allen of Brookline and Adeline A. Allen of this city, jointly for $40,000. Among the assets are 225 shares of stock of the Lowell Tannery Company at their par value, the total sum being $1,125; life insurance, $597; property in reversion, $50; bills and promissory notes, $625.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD.

Broadway Building Sold—Fifth Ave. Corner Re-sold—New Building on William St.—Dealings by Brokers and at Auction.

L. J. Phillips & Co. yesterday completed the first sale of property on Broadway, between Thirty-fourth and Forty-second Streets, since the sale of the Saranac Hotel property to Henry Phipps last Fall. The brokers sold for Thomas Simpson of Scarsdale, N. Y., to Felix Isman of Philadelphia the four-story store and loft building at 1,439 Broadway, between Fortieth and Forty-first Streets, with a frontage of 20.9 on Broadway, by 60.4 and irregular. The property is south of and adjoining the Broadway Theatre, on which Mr. Isman also holds a lease for a long period of years.

The property, which covers an area of about 1,200 square feet, has been held at $210,000. At that price Mr. Isman would be paying $175 per square foot, the highest price paid for property in this section of Broadway since the sale of the Saranac Hotel, for which Henry Phipps is popularly thought to have paid $1,250,000. Property in this section has been held at such prices that purchases have been most rare, this being only the second in almost a year.

Mr. Isman is said to have purchased the property as an investment. It is at present occupied by a clothing firm which holds a lease on it for a number of years.

The sale of the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-eighth Street is reported in detail in another column.

New William Street Building.

Still another big office building is to be added to the group of structures along upper William Street, for the housing of insurance and jewelry interests. The latest addition is to rise at 123 to 133 William Street, on a plot 130.6 by 96, which adjoins the Royal Baking Powder Company's fifteen-story structure at the southwest corner of Fulton Street. It is to be twelve stories high and is to be put up by the 125 William Street Company, of which H. B. Smith is President. The company represents the Stokes-Smith concern, one of the largest insurance companies of Philadelphia. It is to be built on property belonging to the Reformed Protestant Dutch Church, which was leased to the company a couple of years ago for a term of eighty-four years.

The Dutch Reformed Church is a large holder of land in this section and most of it is under long-term leases to concerns which either have reimproved it or intend so doing at the expiration of present leases.

Fur Importers Move North.

Indications are growing that the wholesale fur importing trade is shifting its headquarters northward from the district below Fourteenth Street to that between Twenty-third and Thirty-fourth Streets and west of Broadway. Frederick Fox & Co. yesterday leased for the Crown Embroidery Works the ground floor and basement of the new twelve-story building at 38 to 44 West Twenty-sixth Street, with a floor space of 12,000 feet, thus completing the leasing of the entire building. The lessees are Thorer & Praetorious, fur importers of Leipsic, Germany, who have hitherto had offices at Eleventh Street and University Place. Recently there moved into West Twenty-sixth Street Liebes & Co., Eisenbach & Brothers, and other large fur houses. The district has a considerable number of large new loft buildings, and it was a matter of interesting speculation among real estate brokers as to what line of business would make the district its home.

West Twenty-fourth Street Dwelling Sold.

Joseph Corbit & Co. have sold for Mrs. Elma L. Horton, the four-story brown-stone dwelling, 349 West Twenty-fourth Street, to James E. Mitchell. This is the first time this property has been sold in over forty years.

Edward C. Williams has sold for Henry P. Jackson to a client of Gross & Gross, 152 East Thirty-third Street, a three-story dwelling, on lot 18.9 by 46.

Sale of Downtown Building.

Cammann, Voorhees & Floyd have sold for a client of George R. Read & Co. the four-story building 43 West Seventeenth Street, on lot 25 by 92.

Nettie B. Thomas has sold 255 Washington Street, a four-story business building, on lot 26.9 by 88.1 and irregular, at the southeast corner of Murray Street.

Upper East Side Building Sold.

Oscar Quinto sold for R. Fleig & Co. 210 East Ninety-eighth Street, a four-story building on lot 25 by 101, to a client of David Hymes, and resold 2,387 Second Avenue, a five-story building on lot 30 by 87, for a client to R. Fleig & Co.

C. A. & A. H. Herter have sold 108 and 110 East Ninety-first Street, two five-story flats, on plot 54 by 100.8, adjoining the southeast corner of Park Avenue.

Huberth & Gabel have sold for the estate of Charles A. L. Amend 323 and 325 Second Avenue, adjoining the southwest corner of Nineteenth Street, a three-story dwelling and a five-story flat, on plot 52 by 100. The buyer is Axel Olsen, who will raze the present buildings and erect on the site a six-story elevator apartment house.

Margaret G. Ronayne has sold 722 and 724 Second Avenue, southeast corner of Thirty-ninth Street, two four-story buildings with stores, on plot 40.4 by 40 and irregular, to Eliphalet L. Davis.

West 102d Street Dwelling Resold.

Annie Gold of Los Angeles, Cal., resold 308 West 102d Street, a three-story high-stoop brownstone dwelling, on lot 19 by 100. She bought the house a few weeks ago from Frank Ainsworth.

Charles E. McManus was the buyer of the flat on the northeast corner of 108th Street and Broadway from William Waldorf Astor, the sale of which was recently reported.

The Columbian Board of Brokers has sold to a client for the Schneider Trading and Grocery Company a five-story flat at 17 West 118th Street.

Sale of Property on Heights.

The Union Real Estate Company has sold to John D. Fellmann 523 West 179th Street, a two-story dwelling, on lot 15.6 by 75, adjoining the Church of Our Saviour, at the northeast corner of Audubon Avenue and 179th Street.

John L. Hobson of Haverhill, Mass., sold the block front on the south side of 190th Street, extending from St. Nicholas to Wadsworth Avenue, to builders for improvement. The parcel has a frontage of 300 feet on the street, 83.6 feet on St. Nicholas Avenue, and 66.6 feet on Wadsworth Avenue.

New Apartments Planned.

Plans have been filed for a twelve-story apartment house, to be erected at 848 to 852 Seventh Avenue, for the Rockford Realty Company, of which E. C. Potter is President. It is to be of brick with limestone trimmings, with a frontage of 75 feet and a depth of 81 feet, and will contain twenty-four suites of apartments. It is to cost $450,000.

Plans have also been filed for a six-story apartment house with twenty-four suites, to be built for the Phillips-Jullien Realty Company, at 409 to 415 West 114th street, and for a six-story flat for the Acme Building Company, at 325 and 327 East 120th Street, from plans by Bernstein & Bernstein, architects, to cost $50,000.

The Bronx plans for new buildings comprise a six-story flat, to be built for George F. Johnson at a cost of $125,000, at the southeast corner of Longwood Avenue and Beck Street; two four-story flats for the John Marx Construction Company, to cost $50,000, on Hoe Avenue, south of 173d Street.

Sales in Bronx.

M. J. Levinson has sold for Frederick A. Getterisome to the Annisen Realty Company the southwest corner of Union Avenue and 168th Street, a six-story building on plot 41 by 92.

Edward R. Cohn has resold to the Universal Operating Company lots 25 to 28 in the Waldo Hutchins estate tract, which was recently sold at auction by Bryan L. Kennelly. The property measures 100 by 100, and is on the east side of Fieldston Road, opposite the plaza formed by the intersection of Riverside Avenue, Fieldston Road, and 236th Street.

S. Osgood Pell & Co. report the sales at Colonial Ridge, Port Chester, N. Y., of plot 86 with house and plot 75, which is one of the largest in the property.

Brooklyn Lots Sold.

The Columbian Board of Brokers has sold 18 Moore Street, Brooklyn, for a client to the Mosholu Park Realty Company; also, for the Armour Realty Company forty-eight lots at Jackson Park, Burlington County, N. J.

Alfred C. Green of the A. C. Green Company has sold to a client, through the firm of Fenwick B. Small, fifteen lots on the east side of East Seventh Street south of Beverly Road. The plot will be improved immediately by the erection of one-family detached cottages.

Sales at Jamaica.

The William P. Rae Company reports the following sales on its development, Hillcrest of Jamaica: Plot, 60 by 100, on Inglee Avenue, south of Van Sicklen Street, to C. G. Rose; plot, 60 by 100, on Moritz Avenue and Union Avenue, to W. A. Devenney; plot, 40 by 100, on Orchard Street, south of Van Sicklen Street, to Mrs. P. Duggan; plot, 60 by 100, on Grand Avenue, south of Union Avenue, to Emil J. Piroth; plot on Ackroyd Avenue, south of Union Avenue, 60 by 100, to a party who is going to erect a very desirable one-family house.

Chester Hill Park Sales.

During the first three days sales in the new Chester Hill Park development, in Mount Vernon, sixty-three lots were sold and on many of the other plots options have been taken. Among the purchasers were Ira Barnett, six lots; Edgar Ellinger, six lots; Harold Hastings, six lots; William Elsmann, three lots; Charles Hilborn, four lots; J. J. Murphy, three lots; L. H. Kopp, three lots, and J. W. McKnight, three lots. Several of the new owners intend to erect homes on their property at once. There were between 300 and 400 visitors at the development during the holidays.

Sale at Thousand Isles.

The McVickar-Gaillard Realty Company reports that it has sold for the estate of M. R. Anthony, on Point Marguerite, Alexandria Bay, Thousand Islands, a tract consisting of fifteen acres, with four cottages, boat houses, docks, &c., to a syndicate headed by Capt. Clarence R. Thomson and J. B. Reid of Alexandria Bay.

Tenants for Downtown Stores.

M. & L. Hess have leased for the Improved Property Holding Company the seventh loft at 56-60 Madison Avenue, connecting with 23 and 25 East Twenty-sixth Street, and 18 and 20 East Twenty-seventh Street, containing 15,000 square feet, to H. Bernstein & Co. for a term of years at a rental aggregating $50,000. Also, for the Sterling Bronze Company to the Empire Cloth Examining, Shrinking, and Finishing Works, the first loft at 107 to 113 West Twenty-fifth Street, for a term of years at a rental aggregating $40,000.

TO THE WONDERFUL AND DESERVED POPULARITY OF

with the finest bathing beach in the world (where 50,000 people are in the surf at one time;) its five miles of Elevated Ocean Boardwalk (with 3,000 Rolling Chairs;) its germicide climate; pure water, and modern sewerage system; its clean and perfectly paved streets and New Jersey's famous roads for motoring; its splendid theatres, amusement piers, and great fleet of sea-going sailing and fishing yachts; its noted 18-hole Golf Course; its countless other amusements and attractions; and its 300,000 daily Summer visitors from all over the world, the Marlborough=Blenheim contributes the most modern and complete accommodations to be found anywhere.

If located in New York, London or Paris it would be one of their noted attractions. Occupying two blocks of central ocean front, with open air Plaza and Solariums overlooking the Boardwalk and the Ocean; its exterior is a striking architectural feature, while inside, the spacious Galleries and Exchanges and their artistic decorations have received a merited popularity with the cultured and refined patronage of the House. There are four dining rooms, two American and two a la Carte (all with white service) and separate American and European Plan Kitchens.

The Guest rooms are large and thoroughly modern, the lavatories have running ice water and the 400 private baths are each equipped with both hot and cold sea water and fresh water. Exquisite music, every night throughout the year, is one of the most appreciated features. Ownership management.

Atlantic City is but 3 hours from New York.

POLICE SHAKE-UP; 4 CAPTAINS MOVED

Those Familiar with Department Say Transfers Will Weaken the Force's Efficiency.

EXILE STRICT COMMANDERS

Men Bingham Picked to Rule Disorderly Precincts Sent to Unimportant Posts—Those He Disciplined Advanced.

Commissioner Baker shook up the Police Department yesterday, transferring four Captains, one Acting Captain, and twenty-four Lieutenants. The only reason the Commissioner would assign for the changes was the phrase stereotyped by his predecessors, "For the good of the service," but those who follow with attention the fortunes of policemen saw in his action a distinct weakening of the efficiency attained by Gen. Bingham, and could find comfort only in the Commissioner's announcement that at present he does not contemplate shifting any more men.

Here is the list of changes:

CAPTAINS.

Thomas Palmer, from Coney Island to Stapleton, S. I.
Edward S. Walling, from Stapleton, S. I., to Far Rockaway.
William F. Fennelly, from the Adams Street Station, Brooklyn, to Coney Island.
James E. Hussey, from Flushing Avenue, Brooklyn, to Adams Street.
Acting Capt. Martin D. Corbett, from Far Rockaway to Traffic Precinct B.

LIEUTENANTS.

William J. Eggers, from Newtown, Queens, to Fifth Street.
Dennis Lyons, from College Point to Charles Street.
Walter Norris, from Richmond Hill to East 128th Street.
Samuel Hammond, from East 104th Street to Newtown.
James F. Tucker, from Charles Street to College Point.
James E. Fitzpatrick, from Fifth Street to Richmond Hill.
John Shea, from Central Office, Manhattan, to Mercer Street.
Daniel Davis, from Coney Island to Grand Avenue.
William Smuller, from Bath Beach to Coney Island.
Charles Lutz, from Parkville to Sheepshead Bay
James Kerins, from Sheepshead Bay to Parkville.
Matthew F. Kennedy, Vernon Avenue to Bath Beach.
Frank E. Finn, Bath Beach to Snyder Avenue.
James Murray, Coney Island to Fifth Avenue.
William F. Fogarty, Brooklyn Borough Hall Squad to Bath Beach.
Thomas Maguire, Brooklyn Borough Hall Squad to Fort Hamilton Avenue.
John J. McGowan, Brooklyn Borough Hall Squad to the 168th Precinct.
Joseph Conboy, Fifth Avenue to Coney Island on desk duty.
Charles S. Eason, Grand Avenue to Coney Island, desk duty.
Patrick B. Lane, Oak Street to the Criminal Court Squad.

In the transfers the point which attracted most attention was the fate of the Coney Island officers. Capt. Palmer has been banished to Stapleton, S. I., and two of his lieutenants, Daniel Davis and James Murray, have been transferred to other precincts in Brooklyn. It was held to be a clear indication that the tight hand over Coney Island is to be relaxed.

Capt. Palmer is known to be one of the ablest men in the department. He is a scholar and an accomplished French linguist. He is a thorough disciplinarian, and above all suspicion of graft. He was put in Coney Island by Commissioner Bingham with strict orders to co-operate with Inspector Russell in cleaning up the dives and disorderly houses. They succeeded, and both have been sent to far-distant points, and two of their lieutenants have also been shipped off to quiet, uninteresting precincts.

To take Capt. Palmer's place Capt. Fennelly has been moved from the Adams Street Precinct, which is known as the Tenderloin of Brooklyn. He was there at the time when Commissioner Baker was in charge of Brooklyn, and the condition of that borough aroused the wrath of Commissioner Bingham. In speaking of the transfers yesterday Commissioner Baker went so far into the reasons of this particular assignment as to say:

"Capt. Fennelly kept the lid on in the Brooklyn Tenderloin for a year and a half and I guess he can do the same in Coney Island."

But it was generally believed that his régime would be nothing like as determined as that of his predecessor.

Far Rockaway gets a new commander in Capt. S. Walling, who moves over from Stapleton, S. I. He is the son of ex-Police Commissioner Walling, and takes the place of Acting Capt. Corbett, who goes to the Traffic Squad. Far Rockaway was a year or so ago a resort of gamblers, and Commissioner Bingham made a large seizure of gambling paraphernalia there. Some doubt is expressed as to whether the new Captain will be a strong enough man to hold the lid down. His friends, however, congratulate him on gaining an admirable Summer precinct.

The transfer of Capt. James E. Hussey from the peaceful regions of Flushing Avenue, Brooklyn, to the Adams Street Station, is taken as meaning a step toward his rehabilitation. He is one of the Inspectors whom Commissioner Bingham "broke." At the time of the bill giving the Police Commissioner authority to depose Inspectors, Hussey, with two other Inspectors, went to Albany to oppose it. He did not, however, lose his rank for that, but for dissatisfaction with the manner in which he handled his inspection district, which took in the Manhattan Tenderloin. He is now to look after the Brooklyn Tenderloin.

Lieut. Eggers, who is moved from Newtown to the Fifth Street Station, was the head of Commissioner McAdoo's famous "vice squad." He was dismissed for failing to close certain resorts, but lately got back to the department by way of the courts. Commissioner Bingham thought that the outskirts of the city were good enough for him, but Commissioner Baker has now put him in the important precinct of Fifth Street. He said of him yesterday:

"I know all about Eggers, and if he is ever an Acting Captain while I am Commissioner I'll buy the drinks."

Other announcements yesterday showed that there is a new Chief in Mulberry Street. Permission was accorded to Patrolman Bernard R. Connolly of the Arsenal Station to retire on $700 a year pension. Commissioner Bingham had refused to allow this, on the ground that he was still capable of doing his work. First Grade Detective James J. Finn was reduced to patrolman and sent to the West Sixty-eighth Street Police Station, and the immediate staff of ex-Deputy Woods was scattered.

To re-establish Brooklyn Headquarters Commissioner Baker transferred Lieuts. Julius Petersen, James B. Walsh, Daniel S. Mundy, and David McMahon to the Brooklyn Information Bureau and provided them with a Sergeant and patrolman. They still, however, lack a Deputy Commissioner, and it was said yesterday by Commissioner Baker that he would not appoint either of the two new deputies until next week.

Deputy Commissioner Stover had his first experience yesterday as trial Commissioner. To the delinquents before him he was patient and lenient. There was none of the hectoring to which the accused have been accustomed of late, and he allowed them to cross-examine at considerable length the complaining Sergeants.

Half a smile flitted across his countenance as Patrolman Fitzgerald of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station, who was accused of being off post, turned the tables on the Sergeant.

"Did you not tell me," he asked, "that you stood for twenty minutes talking at Fifty-ninth Street to the Sergeant of the next precinct? Do you call that being on your own post?"

"Don't argue," was all Mr. Stover said. "Ask any questions you like, but don't argue."

Most of his decisions he reserved, apparently puzzled by the excuses of the patrolmen for sitting down while on duty, and unable to decide off-hand if a man really had to take off his boot to remove a crease from his stocking, or was so ill from something he had eaten in a restaurant that he had to seek shelter in a watchman's shanty.

He took particular interest in a case in which a dead dog on Seventh Avenue was in question. Patrolman Joseph Falke of the Tenderloin had not reported it, and the Sergeant explained with heat.

"It was a large shepherd dog, weighing 28 or 30 pounds, full in the glare of the electric light, and Falke wasn't concerned about it."

The patrolman replied that the only dog he had heard of as dead on his post was a little black one that belonged to a colored woman, and had met with an accident. Even though the patrolman that preceded Falke and the one that came after him had each reported the dead animal and the case seemed clear, the Commissioner listened patiently till every question had been asked and then took the case under deliberation.

NOTHING DOING

In Any Murder in the Last Six Weeks Save Yesterday's—That Settled.

The Detective Bureau is still working on the series of murders of the last six weeks. Capt. Carey was asked yesterday about developments in these cases.

"Have you made any progress in the Sigel murder?" was asked.

"Nothing doing," answered Capt. Carey.

"Anything to say about the Bersin murder?"

"Nothing for publication."

"Has the woman murdered in Thirteenth Street been identified?"

"No identification yet."

"Can you tell anything about Pognano, the Italian who was shot on the night of July 4?"

"No arrests made."

"But is it true, Captain, that the Brooklyn burglars have been captured?"

Capt. Carey cheered up at once.

"Yes," he said; "I am told they have been taken."

A story was circulated yesterday to the effect that the murder of Elsie Sigel was precipitated by the announcement that she was about to marry an American who was to arrive here from the West, and that her Chinese associates feared that she would confess to him all that went on in her life in Chinatown.

"Just dope," said one of the detectives "working" on the case.

Woman Raves When Told That Her Old Prison Friend Is Gone.

Charlotte Gralther, who for the last five years has been a voluntary prisoner in Yorkville Court prison, was taken from there to Bellevue Hospital yesterday for examination as to her sanity, following the death of her pet cat, Rubin, her constant companion and friend during her prison life. She has seen little of outdoor life since 1904, when she appeared before a magistrate in Yorkville Court one day and asked to be committed to a cell. She had no home and no means of earning her living. She became a trusty in the prison, under a six months' sentence. At that time her age was fifty-one.

At the expiration of the six months she again appeared before a magistrate and asked that her sentence be continued. Her evident liking for prison led to a recommitment each time. She was energetic, clean and a willing worker, and was of much help to the matron in the woman's ward of the prison.

Shortly after her first commitment a kitten found its way into the prison. Mrs. Gralther took it in hand and cared for it. The kitten grew into a full sized cat, fat and lazy, and content to sit for hours in the lap of her chosen mistress. They were constantly together during the woman's years of prison life.

The constant confinement, however, told on the health of Mrs. Gralther and about three weeks ago, when her last commitment expired, she found a place as a servant with a family in East Fifty-sixth Street.

Immediately after the woman left the prison the cat refused all food, the matron says, and continually meowed for its mistress. As the days passed the animal became thin and weakened and died on Wednesday.

Mrs. Gralther had not forgotten the cat and on Wednesday night she visited the prison. When told that Rubin was dead she fell against the door, almost in a faint, and then began to scream and tear her hair. All night long, in a cell, she screamed and ranted incoherently, the keepers say, and yesterday she was committed to Bellevue.

DENIES CODE TRICKERY.

Not Favored by New Building Law, Says Hollow Tile Company Head.

H. M. Keasbey, Vice President and General Manager of the National Fireproofing Company, one of the largest manufacturers of hollow tile fireproof bricks in the country, which has been frequently mentioned in the Building Code revision squabble as having obtained a decided advantage over all other methods of fire protection by the provisions of the majority report of the Revision Commission, denied yesterday the assertion of William J. Beach, President of the Pennsylvania Cement Company, that there has been trickery in the drawing of the new code and that the amended majority report was drawn in the offices of the National Company.

"The statement that the Democratic leader in New York City is interested in this company—a statement many times repeated," added Mr. Keasbey, "is without any foundation in fact."

In conclusion, Mr. Keasbey said:

"The existing code does not give hollow tile the opportunity that it deserves. The proposed code would give it a fairer chance, but would give it no advantage over good concrete construction."

Bridge Clips Off Ship's Topmasts.

The four-masted schooner Northland lost all of her topmasts while passing down the East River yesterday in tow of two tugs. She was being shifted from an East River pier just above the Brooklyn Bridge to Black Tom, back of Liberty Island. Her topmasts were too high to pass under the bridge, and she swung broadside on, and before her headway could be checked went crashing against the bridge structure, her topmasts being carried away. Then she passed on and was taken to an anchorage down the bay.

Fox Estate to Relatives and Charity.

The will of Simon Fox, who died at the Hotel Majestic on June 12 at the age of 96 years, was filed yesterday. His daughter, Mrs. Joseph Steindler, gets $5,000, and $5,000 goes to each of three grandsons and $1,000 to each of three granddaughters. The Beth Israel Hospital, the Home for the Aged and Infirm Hebrews, and the Hebrew Benevolent and Orphan Asylum receive $500 each.

LET POLICE ALONE, THEY TELL M'CLELLAN

Taxpayers Denounce the Mayor's Efforts to Run the Department from City Hall.

RABBI WISE ATTACKS HIM

Says Praise from Him Is Censure and Censure Praise—Row Over Resolutions.

The Greater New York Taxpayers' Conference held a meeting at the rooms of the Board of Trade and Transportation yesterday and adopted resolutions denouncing Mayor McClellan, calling on him to restore control of the Police Department to the Commissioner instead of running it from the City Hall. The adoption of the resolutions was preceded by a speech by Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and a debate, which lasted two hours.

As soon as the resolutions were introduced, and even before, differences developed which at frequent intervals threatened to throw the meeting into confusion. Most of the trouble was caused by members of a rival taxpayers' organization, known as the Congress of Taxpayers. The Executive Committee of that body was meeting at the Trinity Building, a little further downtown, at the time the Taxpayers' Conference met, but some who are members of both bodies soon left the downtown meeting and appeared on the scene to raise objections to the resolutions.

Ex-State Senator George W. Brush of Brooklyn, President of the Taxpayers' Conference, was in the chair. In starting it off he said it had been called not on behalf of any individual, nor was there any partisan politics involved, but purely to register a protest against the Mayor's action in transferring control of the Police Department from 300 Mulberry Street, where it belonged under the provisions of the Charter, to the City Hall. He then read a letter from ex-Deputy Police Commissioner Bert Hanson, whose dismissal from the department was one of the conditions the Mayor imposed on Gen. Bingham as the price of his continuance in office. In this Mr. Hanson said:

> The present police situation presents one phase which is little understood by the public. After an intimate relation with the police force, I know that most of its members are clean, honest, well-meaning men, ambitious to win advancement by honest efforts and faithful service. The public little realizes what the force could and would do if given a fair chance.
>
> The men were beginning to feel that it was no longer necessary or even advisable to truckle to politicians, and that only by faithful service could advancement be won. Of late the better element inside the force has been strenuously fighting against the worse, and the better element was in the ascendant. Now that political manipulators again control the department, the better element of the force is wholly despondent. The public may fight for its rights, but the policemen cannot protect themselves.

After this letter had been read, and when Dr. Brush was on the point of introducing Rabbi Wise, Ira J. Ettinger, counsel for the Congress of Taxpayers and a member of the Executive Committee of the Taxpayers' Conference, jumped to his feet and demanded the floor. In the first sentence he counseled deliberation and protested against any action on the resolutions at the meeting.

"If this gentleman wants to make a speech," said Rabbi Wise, interrupting in turn, "I will return to the Adirondacks, whence I came solely to address this meeting. I have no time to lose."

Mr. Ettinger sat down, protesting, as Dr. Brush ruled that Rabbi Wise had the floor. The rabbi was warmly applauded as he arose, and his speech was frequently interrupted by applause.

"It may seem strange that I appear to defend Gen. Bingham, who a year ago attacked the Jews of New York," said the rabbi. "I do not defend Gen. Bingham. He needs no defense other than his own record and the condemnation of a Mayor whose censure is praise and whose praise is censure. Gen. Bingham made an unfair and unjust statement concerning the Jewish population of this city, but when convinced that he had done an injustice he retracted like a man. He had made a mistake and was big and manly enough to admit it.

"We have been tolerant of Mayor McClellan because we have felt that in none of his actions has there been a cash consideration involved. But if a man sell out the city for a Gubernatorial nomination or a Judgeship—can he still remain a gentleman?

"It is said that Mayor McClellan is a professor of politics at Princeton—a chair once occupied by Grover Cleveland. The boys ought henceforth to boycott the classes where he lectures because of his misconduct in office during the last week. And if Princeton has committed the fatal bunder of putting him in a chair that Cleveland once honored, Princeton ought to atone for it by removing him at once.

"The Duffy case is merely a pose, a pretense, an excuse. Justice Gaynor's wrath, let us hope, is genuine. But the Mayor, who is incapable of grasping a real issue, has converted this issue into a bit of political chicanery. Let us not imagine that this is the Mayor's stand against police tyranny or for the freedom of New York's citizenship. It is McClellan's surrender, not his stand—not his stand, but his fall. A message should go out from this meeting that New York City is ashamed of its Mayor."

The resolutions were then introduced. With the lengthy preamble left out they were:

> Resolved, That we demand that the Mayor revoke his order, which virtually makes the City Hall Police Headquarters; and, be it further
>
> Resolved, That we demand that the Mayor restore Capt. Russell to his former position as Inspector, pending a hearing on the charges stated by the Mayor to have been the cause of his reduction in rank.

Mr. Ettinger at this point renewed his protest. He moved to amend the resolutions to preclude any partisan action until a future meeting.

"I have an opinion of this entire affair and know what is at the bottom of it," said he.

Dr. Abraham I. Korn, a Harlem real estate man, who is a member of the rival Taxpayers' Congress; John Pullman, a Brooklyn delegate, and Magistrate Hylan of Brooklyn also spoke against the adoption of the resolutions. Adolph Bloch and Allan Robinson, president of the Allied Real Estate Interests, spoke in their support. Magistrate Hylan said it was the best day's work the Mayor had ever done when he removed "that arbitrary Czar, Bingham."

"At the Magistrates' meetings he attended he used the most profane language I ever heard. I told him why criminals escape in the courts when they cannot be convicted under the law, and he said 'To hell with the law, the police should take the law in their own hands.'"

This and many other statements made by the Magistrate were challenged by delegates at the meeting. The vote which was taken immediately after he concluded was overwhelmingly in favor of adopting the resolutions.

A TOAST FOR SAN FRANCISCO.

Residents of New York Asked to Drink Its Health on Its Anniversary.

A formal invitation has been extended to the people of the City of New York to drink the health of the City of San Francisco at noon on July 19 in honor of the one hundred and fortieth anniversary of the discovery of the Golden Gate by Gaspar Portola and the rebuilding of the city. The invitation was handed to Acting Mayor McGowan yesterday by Robert Achille Roos, who called upon him with credentials from the Mayor of San Francisco and the Governor of California.

Mr. Roos told Mr. McGowan that a similar invitation has been extended to President Taft and three foreign rulers whose names he did not mention. New York is the only city which will be included in the invitation, in recognition of its liberal contributions to San Francisco after the earthquake.

The Portola festival is to be one of the most elaborate fêtes ever celebrated on the Pacific Coast. It will run from July 19 to July 23, and will include all sorts of parades and other pageants.

MUST HELP AGED FATHER.

Dr. Caesar Deutch Compelled by Court to Aid His Parent.

Dr. Caesar Deutch of 375 East Tenth Street was brought before Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions yesterday by Assistant Corporation Counsel Stiefel, that he might be instructed to contribute to the support of his feeble and half-blind old father, who otherwise would become a public charge.

Mr. Stiefel said that the physician had a good practice and lived comfortably in a $45 a month apartment. His investigation showed that the old man had labored hard to give his sons an education, and that another son, a dentist, was contributing $2 a week toward his father's support.

Dr. Deutch said that his practice was on the east side and largely charitable. Judge Rosalsky told Dr. Deutch that he would either have to pay $3 a week toward his father's support or else go to jail. The physician replied that he did not clearly see how he could pay the money and was given a week to decide.

WRIGHT MAY FLY TO-DAY.

Only a Few Finishing Touches Required to Complete Repairs.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—It is expected that a flight of the Wright aeroplane will be attempted to-morrow afternoon. A few finishing touches remain to be made before the aeroplane is ready for further tests. The Wrights, who have until July 28 in which to complete the official speed and endurance trials before the board of Signal Corps officers, are making as much haste as is consistent with safety to complete these trials, as they must be in Germany in August, and desire to attend to various business matters in this country before leaving for Europe.

No date has been set for the official trials, and no extension has been granted to A. M. Herring, the New York aeroplanist who holds a contract similar to the Wrights. Until Secretary Dickinson returns Herring's application will not be acted upon.

No Sugar Investigation on Now.

It was denied at the Federal Building yesterday that the present Grand Jury was holding any further investigation into the $1,250,000 loan of the American Sugar Refining Company to Adolph Segal, as a result of which that corporation and eight individuals, including President Washington B. Thomas and John E Parsons, were recently indicted. The Grand Jury is investigating the disappearance of the books of the United Copper Company and the affairs of two small benefit insurance companies.

CITY BREVITIES.

By consent of counsel for both sides, Supreme Court Justice Erlanger adjourned yesterday until July 29 argument on the application of the New York Central Railroad for a permanent injunction restraining the Borough President from taking up the tracks in Eleventh Avenue.

Members of the Knee Breeches Makers' Union to the number of 3,500 went on strike yesterday in the shops of 110 contractors in Manhattan, Brooklyn, and Brownsville for twenty per cent. increase in wages, the union stating that during the last two years the wages have been cut.

The will of John B. Pannes, filed yesterday, directs that "my body be cremated and burned to ashes after death." It gives to Babette Buess of 111 East Ninety-fourth Street $300, and to his nephew, John Pannes of St. Louis, his watch and chain. A diamond ring goes to Mrs. C. E. Bosworth of 1,040 Simpson Street, who is also made the residuary legatee.

A divorce was granted to Mrs. Elizabeth Crane Livingston by Supreme Court Justice O'Gorman yesterday from Joseph E. Livingston, who at present lives in Denver, Col. The suit is the second brought by Mrs. Livingston.

Pending a trial of the action brought by Mrs. Theresa Tonkin, a dressmaker, at 68 West Fifty-sixth Street, for a separation from George Tonkin of Newark, she will receive alimony at the rate of $100 a month and a counsel fee of $250 by a decision of Supreme Court Justice Erlanger yesterday.

Andrew Nelson, a carpenter of 104 Garden Street, Hoboken, was instantly killed last night by falling from the roof of the roof garden being constructed at the American Music Hall, Forty-first and Forty-second Streets, near Eighth Avenue, to the floor of the garden, fifty feet below.

SUE EX-OFFICERS OF LINCOLN TRUST

H. C. Brown and P. H. Goodwin Allege They Bought Concern's Stock Through Fraud.

BOOSTED VALUE OF STOCK

Plaintiffs Say ex-President Wilson and Frank Tilford Misrepresented the True Condition of the Company.

An action has been brought by H. Carroll Brown and Percy H. Goodwin of the banking firm of H. C. Brown & Co., 49 Wall Street, to recover $100,000 from Henry R. Wilson, ex-President of the Lincoln Trust Company, and Frank Tilford, who was a Vice President of the concern in 1907. The matter came before Supreme Court Justice Erlanger yesterday on the application of counsel for Mr. Tilford to vacate an order issued recently by Justice Guy, directing the examination before trial of the defendants and Henry C. Poor, Treasurer of the Lincoln Trust Company.

Mr. Poor, who was represented by Henry W. Taft, brother of the President, is not a party to the suit, but counsel for the plaintiffs desire to examine him about the affairs of the trust company at the time of the transaction. Decision was reserved.

The plaintiffs assert that they were induced by fraudulent representations alleged to have been made by Mr. Wilson, to pay $100,000 on account of the purchase of 1,400 shares in the trust company, at $375 a share. They say that in order to induce them to purchase the stock, Mr. Wilson "falsely and fraudulently represented that the trust company was in a flourishing condition; that its assets were in excess of $23,000,000; that its surplus, over and above unimpaired capital, was in excess of $575,000; that its profits, divided and undivided, were in excess of $209,000; that its earnings were in excess of 23 per cent.; that owing to its large deposits and available safe and profitable loans, its stock was worth in excess of $375 a share."

The plaintiffs allege that these representations were made by Mr. Wilson, not only for himself, but also for Mr. Tilford. It is asserted that the statements made by Mr. Wilson were known by him to be false.

In their answer Messrs. Wilson and Tilford set up a general denial, and as a special defense say that the financial panic that took place soon after the negotiations started caused a run on the Lincoln Trust Company and depreciated the value of its securities and caused the withdrawal of many of its deposits.

SAYS BUILDERS ARE GRAFTING.

Contractors on Court House Charged with Using Inferior Material.

WILKESBARRE, Penn., July 8.—On charges preferred by Thomas Clancey, a contractor of New York, warrants were issued to-day for the arrest of Frank Carlucci and O. Furnelli, charging them with fraud in connection with the erection of the new $2,000,000 Court House here.

Carlucci has the contract for the stone and marble work of the building and Furnelli is a sub-contractor. It is alleged that inferior material was used in the plastering, the difference between the materials alleged to have been used and those called for in the specifications amounting to $20,000.

Carlucci denounces the suit as an outrage, and says there is not a dollar of graft in the whole building.

Good Shepherd Mother Superior Dead.

The Mother Superior of the House of the Good Shepherd, at Hopkinson and Atlantic Avenues, Brooklyn, who in private life was Mary Horan, died on Wednesday of heart disease. She was 61 years old and was born in Ireland. She had been a member of the order for thirty years, and had been in this country eighteen years. She had been at the head of the Brooklyn home for nine months, having served before in Albany and Boston.

OUR SUMMER SALE IS ON!
Those who are familiar with our policy, know that when we "cry sale," there is a real substantial saving for our patrons. These prices talk, but come in and let the clothes prove these facts.
$15 and $17.50 Suits $12.75
Just remember that about 500 of these suits are from our famous $15 line that represents $25 values. It would cost you considerably more to equal the $17.50 suits in this lot. Every suit is made of guaranteed all wool fabrics. Beautifully tailored.
$20 and $22.50 Suits $14.50
Unless you appreciate the economical advantage of our tailoring methods, you can hardly grasp the full significance of this offering. Our $20 and $22.50 suits are worth one-third more according to the standards of other stores.
$25 to $35 Suits $19.50
The best imported fabrics are used in their making. Hand tailored throughout. Men with the expensive tailor shop habit should investigate—it will mean a mighty substantial saving—with no sacrifice of style, quality or fit.
